FICTION

CHRIST BEFORE PILATE. By Waldemar Ager. 277 pages. Cloth, $1.50.

An American Story. The leading character in Mr. Ager's book is Rev. Welde, an idealist and dreamer, who gradually, as the story progresses, realizes the untenable position he holds in a congregation and society, in which selfishness and cowardice have the upper hand. It is a copy of Muncaszy's famous painting, "Christ Before Pilate," which hangs in his study, that keeps incessantly the question alive in him: "Am I for Christ or am I like Pilate, washing my hands?" "Christ Before Pilate" is a novel of contemporary American life which ranks with the best.

UNDER WESTERN SKIES. By Olai Aslagsson. 262 pages. Cloth, $1.75.

STUDIES IN SCIENCE

THE GRAND STRATEGY OF EVOLUTION — *$5.00

By William Patten, Ph.D., Professor of Biology in Dartmouth College

"One of the most significant and original contributions to general theoretical biology that has appeared in years."—Raymond Pearl, Professor of Biometry, Johns Hopkins University.

THE LAWS OF LIFE — Over 140 Illustrations *$4.00

By William M. Goldsmith, Professor of Biology, Southwestern College

A popular presentation of the principles of evolution, heredity, and eugenics.

THE DAWN OF MANKIND — Illustrated $3.00

By Harold O. Whitnall, Professor of Geology, Colgate University

An interesting consideration of prehistoric man:
The Races of Man, The Dawn of History, Geology and Pre-History, Geography and Culture Stages, Two Types of Ancient Men and Their Times, The Earliest Englishmen, Ancient Habits and Habitats, The Neanderthals and Their Kin, Cro-Magnon Man and His Contemporaries, The Art and Men of the Later Paleolithic, The End of the Old Stone Age, The New Stone Age in Europe, The New Stone Age in Asia.

THE ANIMATE AND THE INANIMATE — $2.00

By William James Sidis

This work sets forth a theory which is speculative in its nature, there being no verifying experiments. It is based on the idea of the reversibility of everything in time; that is, that every type of process has its time-image, a corresponding process which is its exact reverse with respect to time.

BIOLOGY IN AMERICA — Over 500 Pages. Over 200 Illustrations $7.50

By R. T. Young, Professor of Zoology in the University of North Dakota

A view of the wonderful advances of biology in non-technical, but scientific language.

QUANTUM REACTIONS AND ASSOCIATIONS — $5.00

By P. F. Swindle, Ph.D., Professor of Physiology and Pharmacology, Marquette University Medical School

Scientific discoveries of so far-reaching a character as to render Einstein's theory, by comparison, child's play.

LIFE AND DEATH, HEREDITY AND EVOLUTION IN UNICELLULAR ORGANISMS — *$2.50

By H. S. Jennings, Professor of Zoology in the Johns Hopkins University

One-celled organisms presented as an opportunity for solving some of the deeper problems of life.

EINSTEIN'S RELATIVITY, A Criticism — $2.00

By D. J. McAdam

Explains Einstein's development of his theory and criticises its various illogical processes, disingenuous arguments and contradictions.

MARS — Illustrated $2.50

By William H. Pickering, Harvard College Observatory, Jamaica

Professor Pickering presents in this volume the results of his lifelong study of the planet Mars—its snows, its seas, its marshes, and its canals.

SANITARY ENTOMOLOGY — Illustrated *$10.00

Edited by W. Dwight Pierce, M.D., Consulting Entomologist, Formerly of U. S. Bureau of Entomology

A volume by ten expert entomologists on how insects cause or carry disease, how these insects live, and how to prevent disease by controlling insects.

THE UNITY OF THE ORGANISM — Illustrated 2 vols. *$5.00

By William Emerson Ritter, Director of the Scripps Institution for Biological Research, University of California

"Ritter's timely, interesting and suggestive work is a digest of the biological evidence for an organismal as opposed to an elementalistic conception of the living organism, be it plant, animal or man. It is a masterly assemblage of the evidence which is of peculiar significance and importance."—The Psychoanalytic Review.

THE EARLY MATHEMATICAL SCIENCES IN NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA — Illustrated $3.00

By Florian Cajori, Professor of Mathematics, University of California

Introduction—Mathematics—Practical Astronomy and Surveying—Surveys and Maps—Maritime Surveys—Meridian Measurements of the Earth—Transits of Venus, 1761 and 1769—Comets—Almanacs—Orrerics—Earliest Permanent Observatory in America—Physics—Societies and Academies and Journals —Conclusion.

STUDIES IN PSYCHOLOGY

MENTAL DISEASES, A Public Health Problem $5.00

By JAMES Y. MAY, Superintendent Boston State Hospital, Boston, Mass.

Here at last in one volume, is a clear presentation of the various mental diseases. The social, economic and clinical aspects of mental diseases are all given adequate consideration in the thirty-two sections into which the work is divided.

"I know of no book in English which covers the field which Dr. May has dealt with so admirably."
—Dr. Thomas W. Salmon

PSYCHOTHERAPEUTICS *$1.50

Edited by MORTON PRINCE, M.D.

"This symposium, by nine experts, is one of the most complete volumes on practical therapeutics or the healing influence of mental suggestion ever published."—Leslie's Weekly.

SUBCONSCIOUS PHENOMENA *$1.50

Edited by MORTON PRINCE, M.D.

One of the most important works on the subject of the subconscious ever published.

FREUDIAN ESSAYS ON RELIGION AND SCIENCE $2.00

By CAVENDISH MOXON

Religion in the Light of Psychoanalysis—A Psychoanalytic Study of the Christian Creed—The Influence of Creative Desire upon the Argument of Immortality—Epileptic Traits in Paul of Tarsus—Mystical Ecstasy and Hysterical Dream-States—Regressive Forces in Human Fellowships— Freudian Criminology—Freudian Theory and Sexual Enlightenment—Coue's Theory and Practice of Auto-Suggestion—The Development of Libidoni—Friedrich Nietzsche—Freud's Death Instinct and Bank's Libido Theory.

THE HISTORY AND PRACTICE OF PSYCHOANALYSIS $4.00

New and Revised Edition

By POUL BJERRE, M.D., Stockholm. Authorized Translation by ELIZABETH N. BARROW

The author allies himself neither to the Freudian school, nor to any of its offshoots. His attitude as a thoroughly independent investigator particularly adapts him to the task of setting forth the basic principles of his subject in a way that they may be understood not only by the beginner in practice, but by the lay reader whose interest has been awakened in the matter.

CHILD BEHAVIOUR $3.00

By FLORENCE MATEER, Psychologist, Massachusetts School for the Feeble-minded, Waverly

This book marks a new epoch in child study. The new objective and animal psychology have been used by the author and the findings by them are reported in detail in this volume.

NERVOUS ILLS, THEIR CAUSE AND CURE $3.00

By BORIS SIDIS, M.D.

Dr. Sidis, in this epochal work, hits psycho-analysis some telling blows. He makes Fear a very dangerous rival of Freud's Libido.

In a masterly manner, Dr. Sidis points out the underlying causes of nervous ills and then outlines their cure.

THE CAUSATION AND TREATMENT OF PSYCHOPATHIC DISEASES $3.00

By BORIS SIDIS, M.D

Various methods of treatment of psychopathic diseases are given. These special methods developed by the author have been tried by other investigators and clinical men and have been found successful in the study and treatment of psychopathic diseases.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF NORMAL AND ABNORMAL PSYCHOLOGY $3.00

By BORIS SIDIS, M.D.

The postulates, the essential theories of normal and abnormal psychology are clearly outlined. An important psycho-biological theory of mental life is developed for the first time.

SYMPTOMATOLOGY, PSYCHOGNOSIS AND DIAGNOSIS OF PSYCHOPATHIC DISEASES $3.00

By BORIS SIDIS, M.D.

The book deals with experimental and clinical studies of various states of abnormal mental life, and especially with the symptoms and diagnosis of functional mental diseases, with all forms of psychopathic conditions, and with the manifestations of the whole domain of the subconscious.

A PSYCHOANALYTIC STUDY OF STRINDBERG
With Special Reference to the Oedipus Complex

By AXELL J. UPPVALL, PH.D.

This is a practical, individual study of the life of Strindberg, approached from a psychoanalytic point of view.

ESSENTIALS OF ECONOMICS — *$2.00

By Charles W. Heathcote

"This book, consciously adapted to the young, seeks not primarily to inculcate economic theory but through a presentation of elementary economic facts to stimulate a higher regard, larger patriotism, more responsible zeal, and unselfish service for our nation and its institutions."—International Journal of Ethics.

THE ORDER OF NATURE IN ECONOMICS — $1.50

By David Edward Peddie

A book dealing with the problems of labor and capital, and the causes of economic disorder. The object of the author is the presentation of a body of natural economic truth, of immutable economic laws, as a base and guide for economic thought and action.

A GOVERNMENT OF, BY AND FOR THE PEOPLE — $2.50

By Thomas L. Brunk

The book shows how the most Democratic government ever inaugurated on this continent was crushed under the sway of the present Federal Government. How our State Governments safeguard property but destroy liberty. How our Congress is but a history of Claims and Compromise Law. How the basis of our Law is still feudal and Mediævalistic.

STOP THIEF! — $2.00

By Col. V. M. Masten, Military Head of the N. Y. State Reformatory, Elmira

"Your presentation of the crime problem is by far the most inclusive and compelling of anything of the kind of which I know. As a socio-criminological study it should be used as a text book in all institutions of learning."—Rev. J. W. Hegeman, Ph.D., New York.

CRIMINAL TYPES — $2.00

By Col. V. M. Masten, Author of "Stop Thief!"

A popular treatise on crime, considering such topics as: The Criminal Mind, Links in the Chain of Crime, Prison Discipline, and Psychology and the Criminal.

CRIME AND CORRECTION — $2.00

By Col. V. M. Masten, Author of "Stop Thief!"

The crime problem reduces cardinally to common sense, common facts, and common necessities. Nothing can change the exactions involved in that condition.

THE PROBLEM OF THE HOME — $2.00

By Andrew H. Harnly, O.D.

"Dr. Harnly's book provides most excellent material for study and discussion for Parent and Teacher Associations, and all organizations devoted to the betterment of our homes, our country and of humanity."

Mary M. Bartelme, Judge of the Juvenile Court of Cook County, Illinois

STUDIES IN SOCIOLOGY

SOURCE BOOK FOR SOCIAL ORIGINS — *$6.00

By William I. Thomas

We are indebted to our savage ancestors for practically all of society's universal customs and for her lesser rules of etiquette, both of which we frequently refer to as the results of civilization. Source Book for Social Origins traces the connection between the society of our very distant forefathers and our own, and shows that many of what we call our customs have been bequeathed to us by them.

The author has grouped the materials used in seven parts: Part I, The Relation of Society to Geographic and Economic Environment; Part II, Mental Life and Education; Part III, Invention and Technology; Part IV, Sex and Marriage; Part V, Art, Ornament and Decoration; Part VI, Magic, Religion, Myth; Part VII, Social Organization, Morals, The State. The work is completed by general bibliographical suggestions.

TEMPERAMENT AND RACE — .Illustrated $3.00

By S. D. Porteus and Marjorie E. Babcock

Racial Studies—Historical Survey of Races in Hawaii—Social Analysis of Races—Brain Development—Races—Mentality of Races—Psychosynergic Traits of Races—Racial Implications.

THE HISTORICAL CHILD — $5.00

By Oscar Chrisman, Ph.D., Professor of Paidology and Psychology in Ohio University

The book is a study of child life as found among historical peoples, including the old nations of Egypt, India, China, Japan, Persia, Judea, Greece and Rome, ancient Mexico and Peru, medieval Europe, and earlier United States. The word child is used in a general sense and includes all ages up to full manhood.

G. Stanley Hall said: "The Historical Child is unique and monumental, and will always be a credit to American Scholarship."

"An imposing and interesting array of folkways of many ancient peoples."—The Survey.

THE MULATTO IN THE UNITED STATES — *$3.00

By Edward Byron Reuter of the Department of Sociology at the University of Illinois

This is a study which may well be taken into account by all students of the American race problem.

The World Outlook: "Mr. Reuter considers the sociological consequences of race intermixture in various ages and places, and concludes that for the United States segregation is desirable not only for the whites but also for the negroes, who will thus develop their race more slowly but more normally. The mulattoes will be the leaders in this development, for their white blood has made their development more rapid and increased their abilities."

WHO ARE THE SLAVS? — Illustrated, 2 vols. $10.00

By Paul Radosavljevich, Ph.D., Professor of New York University, Member of the American Psychological Association, etc.

Who Are the Slavs? is the only book dealing with the Slav as a whole and with reference to the characteristic traits of the specific Slavic tribes—Russian, Polish, Czecho-Slovak, and the South Slavic people.

THE WOMAN WHO WAITS — $2.50

By Frances Donovan

This is an account of an investigation of city restaurants and of the waitresses who are employed in them; it is a statement of facts. It has already called forth vigorous comment from a number of social workers by whom it has been read and has been pronounced by them a document of especial value to those engaged in social research.

The author gathered her information at first hand by working as a waitress in all sorts and conditions of eating places.

THE SUICIDE PROBLEM IN THE UNITED STATES — $3.00

By Adolph D. Frenay—Domnicana

DOMNICANA says: "This work is a pioneer, but with none of the crudeness of the pioneer about it. Because of its thoroughness it will be of immense value to the doctor, sociologist, economist, philosopher and priest."

"Port o' Gold" is a history romance of the San Francisco argonauts beginning with the landing of Portola, down through the American occupation in 1846 and the finding of gold two years later. Old-timers will enjoy the second half of the story, dealing with the Vigilantes and the well-known pioneers, such as Lucky Baldwin, Dennis Kearney, Joaquin Miller, Bret Harte.

"A little farther in the story one reads of the great earthquake that leveled San Francisco, and the readjustment time. Again one meets Abe Ruef, Mayor Schmidt and Big Jim Gallagher. This is an interesting story to one who loves early California history."—Evening Express, Los Angeles.

THE STORY OF THE SOIL — Illustrated $2.00

By CYRIL G. HOPKINS

"I must say that I think the book is destined to do more good, stir more thought, encourage more upward effort among the farmers of this country than any other publication that has yet appeared. It was a happy thought making a human story of it."—Ex-Governor W. D. Hoard, Ex-President Board of Regents, University of Wisconsin, Editor of Board's Dairyman, Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin.

LIFE'S MIRROR — $2.00

By MARY LARRIMER

An absorbing series of intimate talks to women by a woman.

PHILOSOPHY & ETHICS

AN INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY — *$1.75

By Holly Estil Cunningham, Professor of Philosophy, University of Oklahoma

"It does just what an introductory book in that department should do; that is, it begins with several very interesting chapters which are rather easy, and then proceeds to introduce the reader to the time-long problems of philosophy. The discussions are very clear."—Prof. W. L. Uhl, Northwestern University.

ETHICS IN OUTLINE — *$1.50

By M. W. Stryker, D.D., President Emeritus, Hamilton College

This much condensed book is meant to be the basis of college teaching in Ethics. It is crisp and clear-cut in definition. Especially does it consider the nature of Will and Conscience and the so-called Moral Sense theory.

THE SOURCE AND AIM OF HUMAN PROGRESS — $1.50

By Boris Sidis, M.D.

In this book Dr. Sidis shows the necessity of a humanistic, functional society, the sole aim of which is the happiness and cultivation of Man, in contradistinction to the organic, structural society which strives to build up the State at the expense of individuality and freedom.

TRANSCENDENTAL VALUES — $1.75

By R. P. Byers

The subject is a remote one but not inaccessible. If, historically, it has proven intractable to reason, the difficulty should be ascribed to the method used in dealing with it. For a new, a successful approach to Transcendental Values has been made by a reliance on Law rather than on Reason.

WALTER RAUSCHENBUSCH AND HIS CONTRIBUTION TO SOCIAL CHRISTIANITY — $2.00

A PSYCHICAL EXPERIENCE — $1.50

By WILLIAM C. COMSTOCK

The author says: "It should not be beyond credence that the personalities who were on earth Voltaire, Sir Isaac Newton, Martin Luther, Hume, George Washington, John Milton, Montaigne, can talk to men on earth if others can. And this the writer asserts with as firm a belief as that he lives that those very personalities named have talked to him, and through him to men, for an avowed and definite purpose.

"Let me tell a plain, straightforward tale of how it came about."

THOUGHT FOR HELP, from Those Who Know Men's Need — $1.50

By WILLIAM C. COMSTOCK, Amanuensis

With a Foreword by Rev. Joseph A. Milburn, Pastor Plymouth Congregational Church, Chicago.

This one volume contains all Mr. Comstock's works: Thought for Help, Will Higher of God, Man's Life of Purpose and Man, the Life Free.

These works are not merely curiosities of psychical experience, to be glanced at and forgotten, but are actual transcriptions from spirits, in their own words, of the faith of those in the wider life that is freed from Earth, and of their wider view of man's life in its relation to its Maker and to the whole life of the immortal self.

BEST BOOKS ON SPIRIT PHENOMENA — $2.00

By HENRIETTA LOVI

The present outline has been compiled from the viewpoint of a library worker and a student of spirit survival, in an effort to indicate noteworthy and representative volumes in the English language dealing with that branch of psychical science concerned with proofs of continuity of life after physical death—with spirit communication—spirit manifestation—spirit phenomena.

MEDICAL BOOKS

THE CURE OF PULMONARY TUBERCULOSIS BY REST AND EXERCISE

By HUGH M. KINGHORN, M.D. Illustrated $2.50

The development of rest and exercise therapy in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis is described from Brehmer to the present day. The great value of rest treatment is repeatedly emphasized and constant warning given against too much exercise.

PRACTICAL HELPS IN THE STUDY AND TREATMENT OF HEAD INJURIES

By ADOLPH M. HANSON, M.D. Illustrated $3.00

The writer has long felt that the presentation of head injuries, in an elementary and brief form, would be welcomed by the profession at large. The demands of a general Practice do not permit of exhaustive study in special fields and the increased number of injuries to the head, due to the automobile and the great industrial activities renders it imperative that the general practitioner should be familiar with the essential facts relative to such injuries, in an elementary way, at least, in order to cope intelligently with this problem. Many lives that are now lost, may be saved by prompt and proper care.

A MANUAL OF PRACTICAL LABRATORY DIAGNOSIS Illustrated $1.75

By LEWIS WEBB HILL, M.D.

Although there are books aplenty on the subject of labratory diagnosis, the author deserves the thanks of the practitioners for having prepared a brief and concise manual that contains actually all those methods of examination, and only those, that are practical and that can be carried out by physicians with such apparatus as they are likely to possess or can acquire to advantage. It includes all that information that every one engaged in active practice wants.

MEDI-CULT Illustrated $1.50

By B. F. LORANCE, M.D.

"The author of this little book explains briefly the difference between the physician and the cultist and goes on with several apt illustrations to force home to the average man the validity of the established theories of disease."

—Boston Medical and Surgical Journal

HEALTH NUGGETS $1.00

By DR. O. E. MCFADON

Health—Is health catching—Breathing—Oxygen—Starch Food—Minerals—Vitamines—Refined foods—Food—Foods, base-forming and acid-forming—Combinaions—Foods classified—Table of Nutrients and calories—Toast—Nuts—Meals—Foods, grouped for meals—Overeating—Obesity—Table of heights and weights—Constipation—Foods in constipation—Mother's responsibility—The Liver—Addicts—Premature old age—States of mind—Nature the only healer—Personality—Colds—Exercise—Some good books—A personal word.

MEDICAL QUOTATIONS Illustrated $2.50

By JOHN H. LINDSEY, M.D.

A collection of medical quotations from English prose that will please doctors and their patients.

MANUAL OF VITAL FUNCTION TESTING METHODS AND THEIR INTERPRETATION. Second Revised and Enlarged Edition. $2.00

By WILFRED M. BARTON, M.D.

The problem of investigating the various vital functions of the organism, especially those of the heart, liver, pancreas, kidneys and ductless glands, is giving practical treatment in this useful volume.

THERAPEUTIC INDEX AND PRESCRIPTION WRITING PRACTICE $2.00

By WILFRED M. BARTON, M.D.

The major portion of this invaluable book is taken up by the first part, which is a Therapeutic Index arranged alphabetically according to diseases. Finally an alphabetical list of the drugs themselves has been appended as a second part in which under each drug is given a list of the diseases or symptoms under which it is to be found in the Therapeutic Index.

DOC: FACTS, FABLES AND FOIBLES $2.00

By JOHN A. DILLON M.D.

A great deal of the contents of this book has appeared from time to time in the Kansas Medical Journal, under the nom de plume of Renig Ade. Other publications have seen fit to copy these stories from the above journal giving due credit. A number of friends, both in and out of the profession, have requested that they be issued in book form. I shall be satisfied if this publication meets the hospitable reception that has been accorded the individual stories. If this little volume brings a smile to the tired doctor or aids him to while away a dull hour, then it will have fulfilled its mission.

—The Author.

RANDOM TALKS BY AN M.D. $2.00

By M. W. PEARSON, M.D.

The book outlines and illustrates a practical up-to-date system of popular medical education. The essays 22 philosophical and religious subjects which it contains are no less interesting and timely. They are very broad in their scope, and written in the same lucid and forceful style which characterizes the book as a whole.

EPIDEMIC ENCEPHALITIS Illustrated $3.00

By LEO M. CRAFTS, M.D.

A book of real value to the profession.

WESTERN VERSE

SUN AND SADDLE LEATHER (Ninth Edition)

Illustrated $2.50

By Badger Clark

Generous has been the praise given Sun and Saddle Leather, but perhaps no criticism has summed up the work so satisfactorily as the comment of the old cow man, who said: "You can break me if there's a dead poem in the book. I read the hull of it. Who is this kid Clark, anyway? I don't know how he knowed, but he knows."

Poetry says: "Poems certain to please not only the old 'cow men,' but the most arrant tenderfoot who has never worn chaps or spurs."

Dr. W. T. Hornaday says: "Some of the Sun and Saddle Leather poems have taken hold of me with a grip that only imbecility can shake loose. I have seen many poems and verses come out of the wild portions of the West; but these are the best. They are real poetry."

THE DESERT: GOD'S CRUCIBLE

Illustrated $5.00

By Bruce W. McDaniel

"Pray tell me, friend, does the desert speak
When the red sun smoulders o'er Pinto Peak?
And what may one see in that blazing land
Of painted hills and panting sand?"

To those who are unfamiliar with our American desert, the marvelous illustrations of this most attractive volume will be a decided revelation. Those who know and love the desert will see that its many beauties have been done full justice.

SPLASHIN' SUNLIGHT AND SHADOWS

$2.00

By Earl W. Scott

Colorful poems of the old Southwest, full of splashing sunlight and shadows.

SONGS OF THE BUNCH GRASS ACRES

Illustrated $2.00

By Clell G. Gannon

"Lone Hills of the West you have heard my song
From the bunchgrass plains to the pine,
In the twilight hush or the painted dawn,
In the slanting rain—or the shine.

"You have heard my song on your topmost crest,
By the shore of your laughing rills,
You shall hear it, aye, till the singer rests
In the arms of your heart, dear hills."

THE FOREST RANGER

Frontispiece $1.50

Collected and Edited by Captain John D. Guthrie

Here are the songs sung by the Forest Rangers at their occasional meetings, or perhaps hummed around a lonely camp fire by the side of some forest trail, in the dense fir timber of the Pacific Northwest, or in the open pine forests of Florida.

RHYMES OF A RANCHER

By E. A. L. Griffin

Poems real as the Ranch Life they reflect: The Abandoned Stock Ranch—After the Sale—Buffalo Gap Fair—Camping in the Hills—Cattle Rustler's Soliloquy—Caught in a Blizzard—Cheyenne River—Christmas Day Philosophy—County Poor Farm—The Difference—"Dutchy" on Rural Telephones—Gasolitis—Gastronomic Memories—Haytime on the Ranch—I'd Like—Jury Duty.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT

RELIGION IN THE SCHOOL CURRICULUM — $1.50

By JOHN B. MEYER, Professor of Anthropology, University of Minnesota

This book is intended as an aid to teachers in connecting religion with the ordinary studies. Yet it is not to be used as a textbook, but to be read, digested, and used in such ways as one feels one can. Its indirect value as a stimulant to thought, may be quite as great as its direct worth.

MESSIAHS: CHRISTIAN AND PAGAN — $2.00

By WILSON D. WALLIS

"The most comprehensive description yet given of the messiahs of various peoples, civilized and primitive, and their roles in social, religious and political life.

"We would put Messiahs: Christian and Pagan, in every library in the land. It is a great, a beautiful, a fascinating, a vital book."—New York Sun.

SACRAMENTS AND SOCIETY — $3.00

By ALLAN W. COOKE

A study of the origin and value of rites in religion. A most interesting consideration of comparative religion.

DEVIL WORSHIP — $2.50

By ISYA JOSEPH, Ph.D.

"This book is one of the most curious details in the history of mythomania of human beings. Those who have it will never sell it."—New York Sun.

ROMAN EMPEROR WORSHIP — $2.00

By LOUIS MATTHEWS SWEET, S.T.D., Ph.D., Professor of Christian Theology and Apologetics, Bible Teachers' Training School

"The work is a scholarly one, makes many good points and is a rare contribution to the history of an obscure but important epoch."—Boston Transcript.

IMMORTALITY IN THE LIGHT OF MODERN THOUGHT — $2.00

By REV. F. C. CAPOZZI

"Our author has applied himself laboriously to the study of a theme always of interest. Wide reading in many departments has enabled him to assemble much pertinent material. His chief contributions to the literature of his subject in the light of modern thought are (a) the chapter on Evolution and Immortality and (b) the chapter on the Moral Character of the Soul, which contains a well-pointed protest against materialistic philosophy."
—American Church Monthly.

THE FOURTH DIMENSION AND THE BIBLE — $1.50

By WILLIAM A. GRANVILLE, Ph.D., President of Gettysburg College

The author points out the remarkable agreement which exists between numerous Bible passages and some of the concepts which follow quite naturally from the mathematical hypothesis of higher spaces.

INDUSTRIAL INFLUENCE ON THE PSYCHOLOGY OF JESUS — $2.00

By JESSE HICKMAN BOND, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Economics, University of North Dakota

A study of the origin, processes and results of psychological conflict in its ethical struggle.

RICHARD G. BADGER—PUBLISHER—BOSTON

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT

LIBERAL RELIGION — $2.00

By CLAUDE E. SAYRE, PH.D.—Author of "The Religion of Odd Fellowship"

In this startling new book Dr. Sayre considers the following questions: Is the Bible More Inspired than Other Books?—Is there a Hell and a Devil?—Religion and Science—Do You Want Truth or Tradition?—Do We Enjoy Intellectual Freedom in Religion?—Are the Church and its Ministry Doomed?—Do We Need Iconoclasts in Religion?—Is Prayer Ever Answered?

STARLIGHT IN THE DARK — $2.00

By CHRISTOPHER G. HAZARD

This book succeeds in imparting and developing faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

JESUS IN OVERALLS — $2.00

By A. L. PICKENS

The author says: "The inspiration of some of the author's poems have come as a result of real overall work; other some arose from dress suit occasions. I believe I enjoyed the overalls more than the dress suit; to my acquaintances the reason will be obvious; I owned the overalls."

THE FUTURE UNROLLED — $2.00

By JOHN VUILLEUMIER

A fascinating study of the prophecies of Daniel and their fulfillment.

EVOLUTION AND GENESIS — $2.50

By KARL R. STOLZ, PH.D.

The Doctrine of Evolution—Science and Christian Thought—The Literary Structure of the Early Genesis Stories—The Stories of Creation—Surviving Values of the Genesis Creation Stories—The Creation of Man—The Problem of Evil—The Rise of Earliest Civilization.

SCIENCE, EVOLUTION, RELIGION — $1.00

By E. T.

This book is no defence of religion. Religion does not need any defence. The author sets forth points bearing on science, evolution and religion from a technical point of view.

THE EVERYDAY PHILOSOPHY OF JESUS AND HIS BROTHER JAMES — $2.00

By ARTHUR BARBER

"I like your non-theological, non-controversial, non-technical approach to the subject. It is reasonable, human, appealing. It has distinct flavor of its own."

—Rev. Newman Matthews, Andover, Mass.

THE HOLY SPIRIT — $2.00

By B. P. ROBERTSON, D.D.

"I would encourage a wide study of this vital book on an important subject."

—L. R. Scarborough, D. D., President South Western Theological Seminary

IMPORTANT FICTION

THE QUESTION OF DOLLY — $2.00

By SARA LIPPINCOTT

Dolly is a hot-headed little Southern beauty transplanted in the North, where she finds plenty of questions of her own to answer, to say nothing of making plenty of questions for others.

HICKS JAROU — $2.00

By MRS. JAMES C. FIFIELD

A remarkable story of a body manufactured by a scientist and the various spirits that chose to inhabit it.

GAELIC FOLK TALES — $2.00

By MARY GRANT O'SHERIDAN

These charming stories all have a historical foundation.

"It should be on the list of supplementary reading."—The Chicago Daily News.

SPIKE — Illustrated $2.00

By BADGER CLARK, Author of "Sun and Saddle Leather"

"About the easiest book of this year's crop, to read, is Spike.

"Spike is an ordinary cowboy, impecunious, chivalrous, philosophic and original. Badger Clark takes rank as a genuine cowboy writer and a humorist; he doesn't do any four-flushing, for, as Spike would say, he knows the difference between a real and a hair-brand' "—Montana American.

PETER MIDDLETON — $1.75

By HENRY K. MARKS

"It is a work of genius."—Chicago Daily News.

"Wells, Galsworthy, Bennett, and Cannan—none has written anything comparable to this amazing novel. This, I am aware, is extravagant praise. I have never been more earnest."—The Chicago Tribune.

"The book of the year."—The Liberator.

WHO WAS IT? STORIES — Illustrated $1.50

By JULIA H. JOHNSTON

The chief characters in Miss Johnston's stories are unnamed, this detail being left for the children to supply. And with all eagerness they guess about Noah, Jonah, Joshua and others, attaching to themselves, before they know it, a precious fund of religious knowledge which will accompany them through life.

WHIRLING AROUND THE WORLD — Illustrated $2.50

By LILLIAN SUTTON PELEE

"A book of travel which is unique. It is made up of twelve short stories, each of which is set in the countries visited during a trip around the world. No guide book or descriptive travel record could present such a vivid understanding of the hot-blooded Hawaiian half-breeds, for instance, as the story of Antone's love for the beautiful Chinese-Hawaiian girl, Orcella.

"The customs and superstitions which are still dominating influences among the natives—whatever their mixtures of blood or education may be, are presented vividly and effectively."—

Walnut Park News

BEAK HOLLINS, A Story of a College Athlete — Illustrated $1.75

By JOHN H. CLAUSEN

For nearly a full year Beak Hollins of the Columbia track team and his classmate Ben Ferrisen had a real problem on their hands.

Of course, the problem contained a girl,—but there also was an unusual foot-race which complicated things considerably.

THE DISPUTED TITLE — $2.00

By MARIETTA DOUGLAS

What more do you need for good reading than a disputed title and a modern bandit?

TIM AND JIM, A Modern Fad in Practical Operation — $2.00

By G. L. YOUNG

Should it be thought that, Jim at times uses rather strong language, language often more forcible than elegant and more pointed than polite, it must be remembered that he was an earnest soul, talking under the impulse of strong convictions, under a sense of right and an urge of duty—and that he was talking to his cousin.

UP IN THE ROCKIES — $2.00

By L. ALLEN HIGHLEY

"How strange that I should be living up in the Rockies all these years without really seeing them," said Mr. Atwood, to himself. "This being a holiday, I'm going to take it as a day off for a change. A little recreation will do me good, and I'll more than make it up by doing better work afterward. The day is really mine anyway if I care to take it!" And what a day it turned out to be!

NEW PLAYS

TEA AND LITTLE RICE CAKES AND OTHER PLAYS — $2.00

By Margaret Scott Oliver, Author of "The Turtle Dove"

Tea and Little Rice Cakes, a Chinese Fable—The King's Son, a Japanese "Let's Pretend" Story, in One Act—He, on Whom a Sandal Fell, a One Act Play Concerning the First Cinderella—The Lost Child, an American Indian Play—Hallie in High, a Comedy—Shadow and Substance, a Play in One Act.

THE FAIRIES — $1.50

By Mayce F. Seymour

This play is ideally adapted to the use of club women. The inanimate objects about the house all come to life and discuss how they are driving their owner to death, but later the fairies bring the play to a happy ending.

PLAYS WITH A PROLOGUE — $2.00

By Mary Larrimer

These six one-act plays have proved themselves successful in production. The first one, Sacrifice, is a miracle play with its setting in the Maine woods.

THE CLASS WAR IN HEAVEN — $1.75

By Luke

Would you be more assured that your life continues after death in a world that is now invisible? Would you like to conceive of that world as real; of life there as human, the logical continuation of life as we know it now? Then read this drama of human destiny in a future world.

SIX ONE ACT PLAYS — $2.00

By Edgar Morette

The plays are widely diversified. The first, a drama, The Short Cut, is set in a shabby boarding house in New York and the leading characters are two people at the end of their rope, a woman of the streets and a bank clerk who had used the bank funds. In a Swath is in the living room in a home in a Belgian village, when the German soldiers take possession. The Waif is an episode of the Reign of Terror. The others are comedies.

ROBERT E. LEE, A Play — $1.75

By Charles S. Farris

This play in five acts is a masterly presentation of General Lee.

INTERROGATION — $2.00

By Mary Brewster

"A play of New England, in four acts with a prologue. The first act opens on a Hollowe'en scene in a country home in which is brought out the fact that two sisters desire to marry the same young man.

"There is fine opportunity for character portrayal and many interesting and appealing situations."

THE OLDEST AND LARGEST REVIEW IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE DEVOTED TO POETRY AND DRAMA

Poet Lore

WORLD LITERATURE AND THE DRAMA

A MAGAZINE THAT WILL KEEP YOU IN TOUCH WITH THE BEST LITERATURE ALL OVER THE WORLD

POET LORE is the oldest and largest review in the English language devoted to poetry and drama. In its pages appear the best work of the world's greatest writers. For over thirty years it has been an active pioneer in promoting an interest in international letters. Mæterlinck, Hauptmann, Tchekkof, Schnitzler, D'Annunzio, Gorki, Andreyev, Bjornson and Synge are among those Poet Lore has introduced to the American public.

A MAGAZINE FOR THE LITERARY EPICURE

"A periodical that stands steadfastly for good literature."—The Dial.

"There is no more helpful publication in the English language for the student and teacher than POET LORE."—Journal of Pedagogy.

"POET LORE devotes itself to the study of pure literature. Few magazines savor so little of Philistinism, in any of its various forms in modern times."—Review of Reviews.

NEW BOOKS IN PREPARATION

MODERN PAINTING AND VARNISHING

By F. W. Vogel

A complete, practical book for painters, paint dealers, private consumers, architects and manual training schools, describing clearly and concisely the manufacture and application of paints and varnishes according to modern practice. The book is divided into four parts; the first dealing with the manufacture, properties and uses of all kinds of paints, varnishes and painting materials, such as paint vehicles, driers, volatile thinners, white pigments and white extenders, color pigments, varnishes, brushes and tools. Instructions for mixing paint by hand and power are also given. The three remaining parts cover exterior finishing, interior home finishing and artistic home finishing. These chapters give clear and simple instructions on the preparation, painting and repainting of wood, brick, stucco, concrete and metal surfaces, and include the painting of porch floors, blinds and trim, painting and staining of shingles, refinishing of porch furniture, automobiles, watercraft and other exterior surfaces. The sections on interior painting give full instructions on the preparation and finishing of plaster walls, wall boards and similar surfaces, transparent and opaque finishing of wood trim and floors, the refinishing of stoves, bathtubs, lighting fixtures, furniture, etc.

COMPLETE PRACTICAL SIGN PAINTER

By R. H. Forgrave

This new volume, which is partly based on "Sign Writing and Glass Embossing" by James Callingham, is written to meet the demands of those who wish to become proficient in modern, up-to-date sign painting. It is a modern, self-instructive compendium of the art of sign painting in all its branches, and contains all that is necessary to give the student a thorough, practical knowledge of the art as practised by the leading sign painters of to-day. Every page bristles with clear, comprehensive and concise mechanical features of the art.

WATCH REPAIRER'S HAND BOOK

By L. B. Pratt

An elementary and practical treatise for the apprentice and watch repairer giving correct and up-to-date methods for cleaning, adjusting and repairing all types of American and foreign watches. With the instructions in this volume any person of average intelligence can obtain a fair working knowledge of watch repairing. $2.00

ART OF BRASS FOUNDING

By C. Powell Karr

This volume covers the present-day practice in the founding of brass and its associated alloys. It is a complete and practical work and describes the various types of furnaces in general use, their advantages and disadvantages, and gives approved methods of melting, pouring and fluxing. Chapters on foundry planning, molding and molders, and foundry appliances, are included. Instructions on the cold and hot-working of brass, soldering and welding, coating and coloring, methods of analysis, and much other information useful to foundrymen are also given.

METALLURGY OF ALUMINIUM AND ALUMINIUM ALLOYS (Now Ready)

By Robert J. Anderson

This volume is a thorough and comprehensive presentation of the metallurgy of aluminium and aluminium alloys, and will be of great help to metallurgical engineers and foundrymen, also to automotive and mechanical engineers. While it has been written especially with a view to being practical, the more theoretical aspects of the subject have not been neglected, and the book may be properly regarded as a comprehensive text suitable for metallurgical courses in colleges and universities. The origin, occurrence and distribution of aluminium ores and methods of mining are taken up in an early chapter, while the production of aluminium itself by modern electrolytic methods is also discussed. The uses and applications of the metal and its alloys are treated in detail. Considerable attention is given in this volume to the preparation of alloys for casting and working, and the most approved methods for preparing the principal alloys are taken up. The best methods of melting, together with descriptions of the principal types of furnaces, are given detailed treatment. The founding of aluminium alloys, including casting losses and defects, is discussed quite fully, and the information will be of great value to foundrymen in the successful production of castings. Some of the more theoretical aspects of the whole subject are treated in the chapters dealing with the constitution of aluminium-alloy systems, and the metallography and heat treatment of aluminium and its alloys. 6¼ by 9¼. Cloth. 913 pages. 295 Illustrations. $10.00

AMERICAN SOAP MAKER'S GUIDE

By P. B. Meerbott and I. V. Stanley Stanislaus

The previous editions by William T. Brannt, on which this volume is partly based, were widely in demand by the trade, which testifies that they offered information of distinct and practical value. The new edition makes an enhanced appeal; outgrown methods have been discarded and only modern practice admitted to its pages. An entirely new chapter on the manufacture of candles has been added, while the use of synthetics in the perfuming of soaps is fully treated. The numerous formulas of stocks, the exhaustive directions and the receipts for washing powders, liquid, medicated and toilet soaps, and other soap specialties, make this a complete manual of information indispensable to the industry. $7.50

FURNITURE WORKER'S HANDY BOOK

By John W. Stephenson

The author, who is editor of "The Upholsterer" and is well-known as a writer on furniture and upholstery subjects, is preparing this volume as a much needed work of instruction and reference for all those in any way connected with the various branches of the furniture trades. It is practically an encyclopedia of the industry and contains directions for doing the many classes of work which the furniture worker and repairer are called upon to do.

MODERN GUNSMITHING

By T. T. Pierce

A complete practical work covering every phase of modern gunsmithing; written in a non-technical manner by a master gunsmith. The author has made a special study of guns primarily from the mechanical side and is an expert in this line.

OPERA MINIATURE SERIES

By
CHARLOTTE LUND

Here is a series of handy little books, which will find an immediate welcome with all opera goers and music lovers generally. Each book is devoted to one opera and gives in tabloid form just the facts that one needs to know in regard to the work in question—who wrote the music and the book, when first produced, cast of characters, and other incidental facts relating to the presentation of the work. Ten minutes devoted to reading one of these books before going to an opera will enable the reader to follow the opera intelligently, no matter in what foreign tongue it may be rendered.

INTERIOR DECORATING FOR EVERYBODY

By
LAURA THORNBOROUGH

"What shall we use or how many pieces shall we have?" is the question that invariably faces a young married couple when they start furnishing a home. This question is admirably answered by Jane Norton, who has experienced all these problems from the time she left her Southern home to come to New York where she first furnished one room which had to do as a combination of kitchenette, dining room, living room and bedroom. Later when she marries she has the experience in furnishing a small apartment, then a larger one and finally her own home.

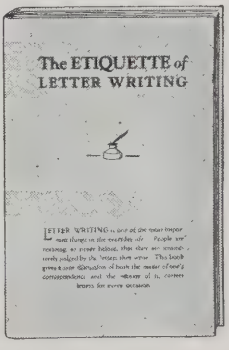
ETIQUETTE OF LETTER WRITING

By
LAURA THORNBOROUGH



This companion book to "Etiquette for Everybody" is no less useful to persons anxious to do the right thing. It is not a "model letter writer," but is a practical, useful guide to correctness and appropriateness in one's letters at all times. It discusses both social and business correspondence, with many examples. For careful writers such a book will be found as necessary as the desk dictionary.

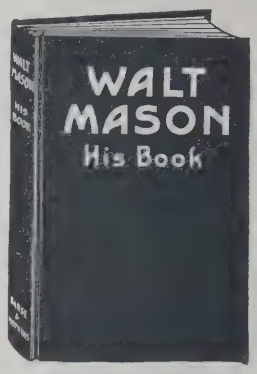
WALT MASON—HIS BOOK

With an Introduction
By
IRVIN S. COBB



Walt Mason's prose poetry is perhaps the most widely read of contemporary writers. William Allen White says: "How many millions of people are cheered year by year as they turn every day to those quaint verses! Here is a man doing a man's work in the world, making life brighter and more cheerful and more sensible in this vale of tears. Millions in money could do no more—if as much—as this man does at his day's work."

VEST POCKET ESSAYS

By GEORGE FITCH

"Vest Pocket Essays" are short talks—about four hundred words each—on miscellaneous subjects, "From Hope to Hash," "From Cabbages to Kings." Fitch's humor is good-natured, yet there is a wealth of meaning behind this fun. It is above all things a philosophic humor, though he is never cynically smart, and when he takes certain institutions to task he does it in a kindly manner.

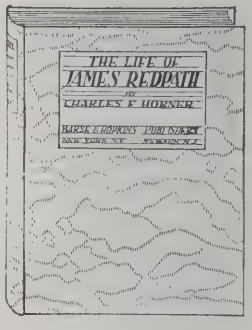
*THE LIFE OF JAMES REDPATH

By
CHARLES F. HORNER



James Redpath, founder of the first Lyceum Bureau, was a great American and had a thrilling career. His name is permanently written into the history of the Civil War period and into the progress of this nation thru three decades. Mr. Horner has made considerable investigation apart from the records of Redpath, in the books of reference commonly found in libraries and has brought to light much important and interesting material about this romantic and radical American patriot.

It is both an education and an inspiration to know what James Redpath accomplished during his life-time.

JUDITH AND JANE

By ELEANORE MYERS JEWETT

This is the story of two very different girls who became friends. They began by being anything but friendly, and Jane who was "new," found life in school rather unpleasant. Strange that Judy who apparently had so much to make her happy, should be envious of Jane who had so little! Judy, however, was not so happy as might have been expected. As for Jane, troubles came her way thick and fast. But Jane found that trouble, met by a brave heart, wins friends, and friends mean more than anything else.

*HAT MAY

An Enchanted Princess

By LUCY THURSTON ABBOTT

This charming story is concerned with the fortunes of a little girl whom a whim of Fate has placed in charge of a woman and her lame husband living on the New England coast—the Winkiepaw pair—and the woman, whom Hat May always looks upon as a cruel ogress of her imaginary fairy world, treats her very badly indeed.

The story covering Hat May's doings is everything that a book for girls between the ages of eight and fourteen should be. The characters are skillfully drawn and true to nature; also, while there is considerable pathos connected with the ill-treatment of Hat May; so too there is discovered in the telling an abundance of childish and delightful humor.

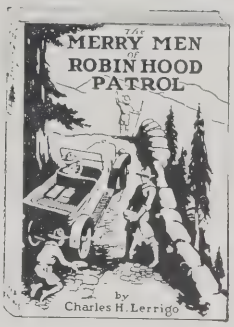
*THE MERRY MEN OF ROBIN HOOD PATROL

By CHARLES H. LERRIGO



When Robin Hood Patrol started "out west" in search of the missing "Lord Pop" it numbered only four scouts, a Patrol Leader, and Peppermint. Mint was the dog. He was only vest-pocket size, but Wow! what a noise he could raise as a watchdog! Bill Frisk, who came from "out where the west begins," practically gave the Patrol the Royal 8, which turned out to be the best touring car ever made. The scouts go thru fire and water, not to mention a volcano, before they finally locate the Gold Mine of Robin Hood Patrol. And if they had not been guided by Da Na Yazzi, the Navajo, and if Bill Frisk had not been an ex-sheriff of Nye County who knew when to take up a gun and when to leave it alone, perhaps the Duke gang would have——you had better read the story.

*THE TRAVELING BEARS

By SEYMOUR EATON

Teddy B and Teddy G are as nearly human as it is possible for bears to be. They love children and make playmates of them wherever they go. They never have an idle moment, and their adventures are amusing as well as instructive.

Snappy, exciting tales, with plenty of action in every chapter and a laugh on every page. A book that will be read as long as there are children to read it.

Bound in cloth with colored inlay. Pen and ink drawings on each page and four illustrations printed in four colors. Wrapper in four colors.

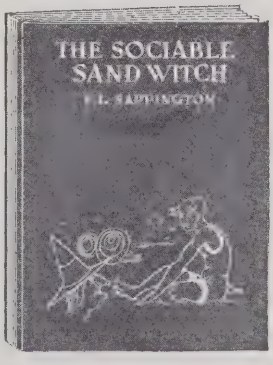
THE SOCIABLE SAND WITCH

By

T. L. SAPPINGTON



All those readers who were entertained by the author's former book, "The Grateful Fairy," will need no second invitation to enjoy this one. From the moment when the sociable witch takes the small boy down to her sand kingdom, to the very last of these droll, topsy-turvy adventurers, one's interest never flags. Grown folks will enjoy them quite as much as the children. Every tale contains a chuckle, and more than one, a moral which is not too obvious to get in the way of things. Illustrated by Howard L. Hastings.

Size 7 x 9 inches. Cloth. Profusely Illustrated in Color and Line Drawings. $1.25

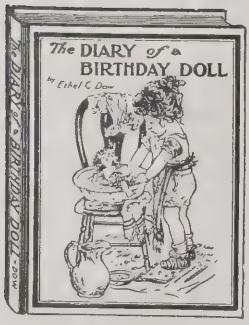
THE DIARY OF A BIRTHDAY DOLL

By ETHEL C. DOW



Every young girl loves to have a doll—and what girl does not like a good doll story? Intensely interesting is this tale of a wonderful blue-eyed doll who lives, acts, speaks and does ever so many queer things which little girls delight to have them do. The book tells daily happenings for a period of six days. There are twenty-seven pen drawings and six full-page colored illustrations. Bound in cloth with inlay in color.

Cloth. Size 7 x 9½ inches. Illustrated. $1.25

THE ADVENTURES OF A HAPPY DOLLY

By MARY DICKERSON DONAHEY

In this pleasant story for little girls, the Doll tells her own story. She went on many journeys, some of which were highly thrilling, but she came through with a smile. The book is printed from large type and illustrated in color and black-and-white by Grace Evans.

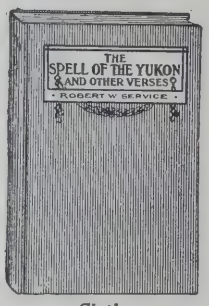
BOOKS BY ROBERT W. SERVICE

The amazing and increasing popularity of Robert W. Service's books can only be accounted for in the excellence of the poems themselves. They strike a universal chord in the heart of humanity. If you have not already met Service, do not lose another day. If you have, it's "up to you" to present him to some friend.

THE SPELL OF THE YUKON

And Other Verses. "Songs of a Sourdough."



Cloth

Service's first great book was originally called "Songs of a Sourdough," and is thus known to thousands of readers in Canada and England. In the United States it is even better known by the title "The Spell of the Yukon." It has already become a classic. Here are poems of irresistible truth and power which hold the reader enthralled.

The scene is the Yukon, and the characters are real men—men of flesh and blood who talk in direct and virile language, who have primal instincts and passions, who toil, sin, dream, accomplish and despair. Strong and outspoken are these poems—a man's message to men—yet fit for the reading of all, because they are true. This popular book is now published in two sizes and varied styles to suit every taste.

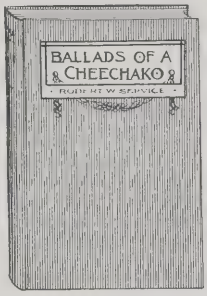
BALLADS OF A CHEECHAKO

By

ROBERT W. SERVICE



Cloth

Do you know what a Cheechako is? If not, read this book and find out! Mr. Service makes the men of whom he writes in this companion book to "The Spell of the Yukon" live in a manner so true, so realistic, that the reader lives with them the free, broad life of fellowship of the campfire, of strife, of toil, of hardship. The keen wind of the Northland sweeps across its pages, and one rises refreshed, as from a tramp through the snows.

The "Ballads" come in two different editions, same size and style of the preceding volume. Together they give an unforgettable chronicle of the Yukon country.

These are indeed stirring verses of the Great Outdoors—of the Wide Spaces, and the mysterious tundras of the frigid North Country. They breathe the same bold spirit of romance and stern reality that stamp all of Service's rhymes and ballads, as the handwork of one who draws his inspiration from a vast fund of actual experiences, when he pictures the ever recurring dramatic happenings of the "Never, Never Land."

The remarkable thing about this poet of the wilderness is his magical ability to carry his readers along thru sheer enthusiasm; so that it is as though one actually looks upon each shifting picture with his own eyes, as the thrilling panorama is gradually unrolled.

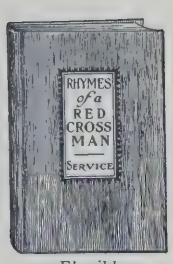
RHYMES OF A RED CROSS MAN

By

ROBERT W. SERVICE



Flexible

By all odds the most powerful and popular book of poems by a single author emanating from the Great War. Written amid the din and roar of battle, these vivid pen pictures show the sunny side of war. A writer in The Dial, voicing many other opinions, says:

"Detail after detail of life at the front takes its place in the various narratives, adding touches of excitement, pathos, terror, tenderness, or humor, and in the end imbuing this particular reader with a closer sense of life in the Great War than any correspondent, novelist, or poet has yet given him—making it so natural, straightforward, first-hand, vibrant, that if you are like me you will close the book with a painful silence in the ears that follows great sound and the flush in the head that comes from the sight of broken bodies and the squeeze in the throat that comes in the presense of honest human emotions. It is not a criticism from without, but a cry from within—dignifying even 'Tipperary.' We have been inquiring for the poetry of the War. In my judgment, here it is."

In the same sizes and styles as the other Service books, as follows:

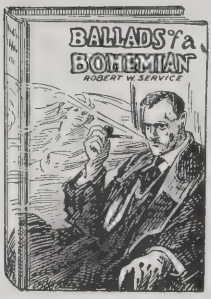
BALLADS OF A BOHEMIAN

By
ROBERT W. SERVICE



Cloth

This volume of verse is the largest that Service has thus far written. It is full of humor, of pathos, of tragedy, of passion, of sentiment, such as only Service can fully express. And because it is a human document by a master hand, its publication is an event of prime importance.

It is a panorama of life in four parts—Spring, Early Summer, Late Summer and Winter. Before our eyes pass a swift succession of vivid pictures—of a poor poet's garret, of the cafés, the absinthe drinkers, the boulevards, of the various queer neighbors—artists, little sewing girls, cocottes, grisettes—all the busy, jostling life of the Latin Quarter of Paris.

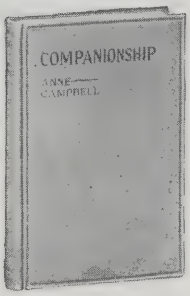
COMPANIONSHIP

By
ANNE CAMPBELL



In "Companionship" Anne Campbell goes the whole gamut of her emotions and holds the mirror up to almost every angle of the every-day experience of the working American man and woman. Always humorous, homelike and happy, Anne Campbell can touch on the deepest things in life with delicate, poignant touches which illumine for us the innermost secrets of our hearts.

The text itself is printed on special high grade paper and the book is bound in an extra quality cloth with the title stamped in gold.

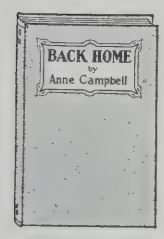
*BACK HOME

By
ANNE CAMPBELL



Anne Campbell has achieved a reputation as a poet, speaker, and as a reader of her own verse. This was accomplished largely through mediums such as The Detroit News, The Detroit News Radio Broadcasting Station WWJ and many other organizations located in Detroit. Like many poets who have written so touchingly of the homely things of life, Anne Campbell was born and bred in the country. Her birthplace is Lynn, Mich., a small farming community less than 100 miles from Detroit.

Due to the constant demand for Anne Campbell's works, we are publishing a new volume entitled "BACK HOME"— a book of poetry on farm life in which she has given us her best.

Miss Campbell has actually lived the life of which she writes. With her knowledge of farm life, coupled with her ability to instil feeling in her poetry, she creates characters and scenes that are realistic.

The book is bound in a semi-flexible cloth binding with headbands and title stamped in gold.

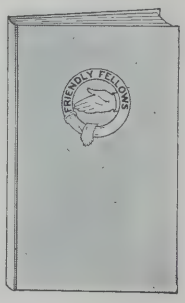
*FRIENDLY FELLOWS

By

SIDNEY J. BURGOYNE



This little volume, intended to be carried in the pocket, if so desired, contains some seventy-eight charming poems along the line that Walt Mason and other delightful "disciples of good cheer" have made famous. One and all these tuneful songs breathe the true spirit of optimism—of uplift, and the helping hand that so speedily chases away the worst case of "blues" that ever gripped a distressed man's sick soul. Only an intense love for his fellow men travelling along Life's Highway could urge a poet to pour out his heart in such notes of sheer joy, in his desire to serve as a Big Brother to all mankind.

This book has a semi-flexible cloth binding, head bands, and title stamped in gold.

THE MEASURE OF A MAN

By

JAMIE HERON

"Jamie" Heron is known from one end of the land to the other as an after-dinner speaker par excellence. For a long time he has been a feature with Rotary Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, etc., where he reads his own poems, dealing with optimism, success, and other topics of human and business interest. Read this book, which contains the best of his verses, and learn the secret of his well-earned popularity.

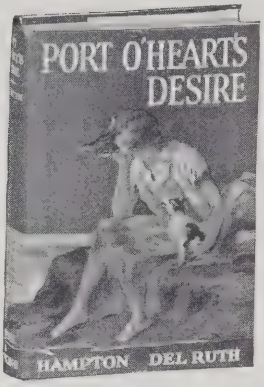
*PORT O' HEART'S DESIRE



By

HAMPTON DEL RUTH

Hampton Del Ruth has proven himself a most prolific author of screen stories, having written more material for motion picture films than would be necessary to encircle the world. Such stars as Gloria Swanson, Marie Prevost, Mae Bush and Phyllis Haver, pay tribute to his pen as the "magic wand" which provided a place and pointed the way to the hearts of their public where their personal charm and genius has enshrined them.

It was also Mr. Del Ruth's privilege to contribute toward the screen successes of the eminent comedian, Charles Spencer Chaplin, as well as his brother Sidney, together with Ford Sterling, Charles Murray, Chester Conklin, Buster Keaton and many others.

Although this author insists that the major credit goes to the producer Mack Sennett, whose foresight and courage of conviction, provided their opportunity, we cannot help but feel that Mr. Del Ruth has been in a large way responsible, thru the medium of the happy yarns he spun for his employer.

Mr. Del Ruth's departure from light farce and advent into the field of more serious screen offerings has met with equal success, and it is our belief that in his first novel, "Port O'Heart's Desire" he bids fair to win further laurels.

*VIVIAN

By

H. L. GATES

Among the writers who have endeavored to give a faithful portrayal of our modern flapper, with all her frailties, and such virtues as she may possess, H. L. Gates stands without a peer. His "JOANNA" took the public by storm, and is still reckoned one of the best sellers.

In "VIVIAN" Mr. Gates again shows himself to be a keen analyst, discovering things in the hearts of our apparently frivolous and pleasure worshipping American girls, such as to give affirmation to his assertion that under all this veneer still may be found the sound, worthwhile principles that must go to making a wife and mother.

Those who enjoyed "JOANNA" will certainly find a continuation of their pleasure in a perusal of this companion volume.

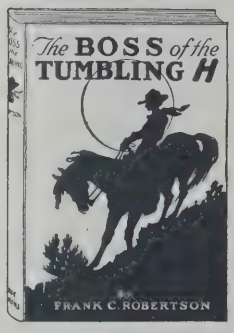
*THE BOSS OF THE TUMBLING H.

By
FRANK C. ROBERTSON



No man could ever write such a captivating story of ranch and range life unless he himself had spent many years in the great open spaces of the cattle country, and knew every phase of action connected with the daily lot of cow-puncher and sheep-herder.

In reading it one seems to breathe the exhilerating atmosphere of the plains—to be in actual touch with the multitude of thrilling happenings, as described by Mr. Robertson—as tho' done with a pen of fire scene after scene passes swiftly before the reader's eye, so graphically painted that it appears as a living, moving panorama. Certainly no better Western romance has been offered to the public than this fresh volume by a virile writer who has been rapidly forging to the front.

*THE DANCING DOLL

By FRANK CONDON
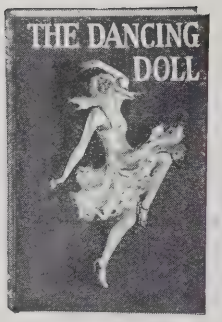
and
CHARLTON L. EDHOLM



The story carries you along like a powerful car on a clear road: it "picks up" with speed and travels "on high" along the colorful course of romance.

Adventures and conflicts aplenty, when vigorous, daring characters fight it out for the mastery. It is hard to put this book down until the end.

There is entertaining company in this novel; characters one can't forget; Guy Dalby, the seedy song-and-dance man, and his lovely, wistful team-mate, Margot the Dancing Doll; likeable "Happy George," otherwise known as "Kid Caruso, the Nightingale of Bleecker Street" and the hard-boiled gangsters who swore to "get" him. There is Joe West, a strong and generous fighting man, and Pedro Valdez, a thorough-going scoundrel who recognizes no law but his own.

And finally there is that madcap girl Tina, with her quick wit, her flashing smile, her recklessness in love and hate; always ready to take a chance and face the consequences.

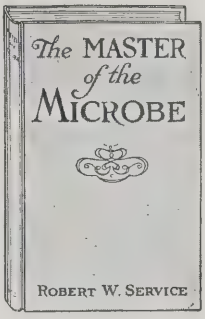
THE MASTER OF THE MICROBE

By

ROBERT W. SERVICE

Author of "The Roughneck," "The Spell of the Yukon," etc.

Robert W. Service in his latest novel scores another smashing hit.



Mr. Service's knowledge of Paris and its underworld, and his delineation of the apache reminds one very strongly of Victor Hugo and Eugene Sue.

Who "Sinistra" is, what the secret told to Harley was as to why he could not marry Rosemary, how apache met and baffled apache, the picture of Paris night life, descriptions of underground Paris, the course of true love, which as usual has its rough going, and the final retribution, all make a story so fascinating, so interesting, that one loathes to lay it down until the very end.

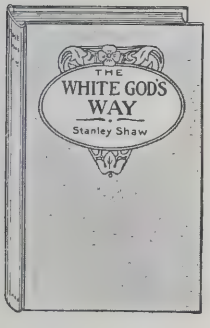
THE WHITE GOD'S WAY

By

STANLEY SHAW



Here is surely a he-man type of story of the vast Canadian Northwest—that primeval wilderness stretching all the way up to the Hudson Bay and the frozen Arctic Ocean.

Dick Glenconner, who liked the gay life of Broadway, becomes involved in a mysterious robbery and murder. He decides to escape and bury his identity in the vast wilderness of the Canadian Northwest. His adventures there are told in a realistic manner by the author and finally when the climax comes and "The White God" takes his toll, the reader discovers that Dick Glenconner is one of those chivalrous knights of yesterday. It is a story that will hold and thrill the reader throughout and is well worth reading.

THE ROUGHNECK

By ROBERT W. SERVICE
Author of "The Spell of the Yukon."

The countless thousands of readers who know Service chiefly as a poet have a further treat in store for them in this stirring novel from his pen. Crowded with adventure, teeming with action and vivid description, and touched with romance, it easily ranks with Jack London at his best.

A novel for every red-blooded man and woman.

Saint Teresa of the Child Jesus

"THE LITTLE FLOWER OF JESUS"

Collected from the Life and Writings of the Saint and Other Sources and Edited by

CARYL COLEMAN

Carmelite Tertiary

Author of "A Novena in Honor of Saint Teresa of the Child Jesus."

With an Introduction by Rev. WILLIAM R. CHARLES, St. Vincent de Paul's Church, Albany, N. Y.

32mo. 2¾ x 4¾ inches. 224 pages. Seven half-tone illustrations.

THIS is the best and most reasonably priced Little Flower Manual of equal merits ever published. It contains, aside of the usual devotions, the Odinary of the Mass with the special prayers of the Little Flower, also a Novena, a Litany and other special prayers besides many spiritual readings in the very words of the Little Flower. These were collected from original sources and the writings of St. Teresa.

Content: Holydays of Obligation; Abstinence and Fast Days; Movable Feasts; Introduction by Father Charles; A Brief Life of the Little Flower;

Part I: Prayers and Devotions: Morning and Evening Prayers; Ejaculations in the Words of the Little Flower; Ordinary of the Mass; Devotions for confession and Communion; Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament; the Stations of the Cross; Various Prayers to our Lord and Saints in the Words of the Little Flower;

Part II: Devotion to St. Teresa: Novena; Litany; the Office of the Little Flower with a translation of the Hymn by Msgr. Henry;

Part III: Spiritual Reflections and Wisdom of the Little Flower: A Selection of Readings from the Little Flower's Own Words on miscellaneous subjects such as Love, Prayer, Mumility, etc.

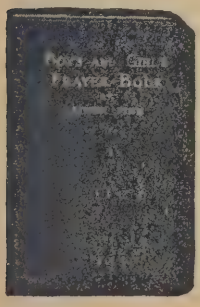
BOYS' AND GIRLS' PRAYER BOOK

By FRANCIS J. FINN, S.J.

WHEN Father Finn writes a book, especially for boys and girls, it is bound to be good. For he knows boys and girls, their wants and likes, His purpose in this book is not merely to make the children pray but to have them understand what they are praying. He wants them to come closer to the "Liturgical Prayer and Spirit of the Church" so that they will more readily appreciate this Spirit in matters Liturgical and follow intelligently and devoutly the Mass.



Content: Dedication Page (for name of boy or girl); Address to Boys and Girls by Father Finn; Holydays of Obligation and Days of Abstinence; Morning Prayers; Prayers during the Day; Evening Prayers; The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass; Devotion for Confession and Communion; Benediction; A Visit to Jesus on the Altar; the Holy Rosary; The Litanies (of the Holy Name; of the Sacred Heart; of Lorretto; of St. Joseph); The Stations of the Cross; Various Prayers; How to Make the Novenas; Short Prayers Blessed by the Church (Ejaculations); Prayers in Verse; Form of Ceremonies and Vows for First Communion Day; and the Gospels.

2⅜ x 4 inches. Thickness ⅜ inch. 320 pages. 28 illustrations in 3 colors, and 16 in black and white.

BREAKING THROUGH

By MAX EASTMAN

THIS is the story of a young American who gets fired from college because he is too full of life. Determined to live in reality and hating conventions and bunk, he runs the gamut of experience in business, politics and love. He emerges wiser from his adventures, but still floundering in the dangerous bog of life. Max Eastman needs no introduction to a public which has followed his varied activities as writer and lecturer, and he has inculcated in this brilliant novel a wide panorama of present day social and cultural conditions.

TRISTAN AND ISEULT

By JOSEPH BEDIER

Translated by Hilaire Belloc

WHEN Doctor Johnson defined love as "the passion between the sexes" he might have had in mind heroic Tristan and his peerless Iseult, who lived, from the moment they came under its spell, for love alone.

Theirs is incomparably the greatest love-story in the world.Beside their tempestuous passion and their suffering, even the love of Romeo and Juliet shrinks to the proportions of a summer idyl, and Trojan Helen becomes merely the symbol of unattainable perfection, a disembodied ideal.

M. Joseph Bedier's version of this mediaeval epic is by far the finest that exists in a living language. It is the actual story as written nearly a thousand years ago by the monk Beroul, unadorned by artificial modern sentiment and stage setting, the only version in which the flame and color of the original are preserved intact. For this reason, and because M. Bedier is a master of language as well as a distinguished Madiævalist, his Tristan and Iseult is infinitely more moving and poetic than the versified falsifications of modern poets.

Mr. Belloc's translation, needless to say, is impeccable.

CIRCUS PARADE

By JIM TULLY

Jim Tully's circus wanderings are faithfully depicted in this book with the courage and realism of his autobiography, BEGGARS OF LIFE. In it we meet with freaks and wastrels, gamblers and acrobats, trailers, thieves, and animal trainers. As the human side of circus life never before written, it turns a new and powerful light on life under the canvas tent. Full of irony, pity and laughter, CIRCUS PARADE is Jim Tully at his best.

KONGO

By RENÉ MARAN

Translated by Alain Locke

In 1922, René Maran, himself a Negro, an experienced colonial administrator, and an acknowledged stylist in French literary circles both for his prose and poetry, opened up the heart of Africa in BATOUALA. The Prix Goncourt award for that year and subsequent translation into ten languages have established it as the pioneer classic of the contemporary colonial novel.

In KONGO, speaking even more dramatically and intimately of his personal experiences in the French Congo, M. Maran has given us another realistic picture of the fast disintegrating life of a primitive people—their epic struggle against nature on the one hand, and an invading white civilization on the other. Colonial literature, lately enriched by masterful work like EBONY AND IVORY, BLACK LAUGHTER, etc., again becomes indebted after a long silence to the author of BATOUALA, for a masterly etching of native life.

12mo., cloth, 320 pages, illustrated. $2.50

(To be published in October)

Also by René Maran: BATOUALA. $1.75.

LOVE IN CHARTRES

By NATHAN ASCH

"This is the story of a contemplative young man and a contemplative young woman who fall in love under the influence of the shadows of the cathedral, who live together without being married, and who then part, the young man leaving the young woman in order to have more freedom to pursue his literary avocations. It is a very beautiful book. As St. Peter's of Rome overshadows more than half of Christendom, so Chartres with her amazing Gothicism has given color to the faith of all true France, and I know of few other books that so well render the spirit of the place —of any place. Indeed you might say and not exaggerate, that the spirit of Chartres itself broods over this entire work as deeply and as all-pervadingly as the spirit of the Cathedral broods over the surrounding land. Mr. Asch remains one of the most remarkable of the world's young writers."—Ford Madox Ford.

THE BRIDGE OF SAN LUIS REY

By THORNTON WILDER

With the publication of his novel, THE CABALA, Thornton Wilder received praise here and in England usually accorded seasoned writers. It was, indeed, compared to the best of Walter Pater and other writers of beautiful prose. In this story of Peru, woven around the fantastic figure of La Perichole, the greatest actress of her day, he explores the inner lives of five central figures as unique as the group which was brought to life in THE CABALA. Once more it may be prophesied that this book will stir the most sophisticated reader.

IDEALS

By EVELYN SCOTT

In IDEALS, Evelyn Scott finds the world full of people who are too amusing to cry about and too pathetic to be laughed at. She has written about them in these dramatic satires so compellingly and with such a quiet, affectionate discernment and penetration that the reading of her stories about them brings an involuntary smile to the lips, a sheepish sort of tightening to the throat, and a reverence for existence itself.

Here is to be found nothing of the obvious, impervious superiority that is usually associated with the word "satire," or of the tolerant Olympic condescension that comes to mind with the term "ironical." Evelyn Scott does not exempt herself from the common lot of mortality. The marvel, indeed, is that seeing these people who are to be encountered on almost any street of almost any American city, as unwaveringly as she has seen them, she has yet survived, and saved them with her.

Mrs. Scott is no kinder to the confirmed pessimist than she is to the chronic optimist. The adventure in intensified living which she offers calls for a robust appetite and 20-20 eyes. Equipped with these, "Ideals" is an unforgettable and invaluable experience.

OIL!

By UPTON SINCLAIR

THIS first full length novel of Mr. Sinclair's in eight years is a countrywide best seller. It is regarded by critics as the author's finest novel thus far and a book which is taking its place with the notable achievements in American fiction. Oswald Garrison Villard says, "This is one of the most remarkable books that I have ever perused, and one of the most readable. A vivid story of post-war America."

William McFee says, "The glorious story of the oil man and his son Bunny rushes on. It is told with great skill through the eyes of the boy, a typically American kid. Here is story telling with an edge on it."

12mo, cloth, 456 pages. $2.50.

MONEY WRITES

CITIES OF THE PLAIN

By MARCEL PROUST

Translated by Scott Moncrieff

THE work of Marcel Proust with its marvelous analysis of character, its penetrating study of the social world Proust knew so well, commands the admiration of every serious critic on both sides of the Atlantic.

Due to the tremendous difficulties in translating this great fourth part of the famous Remembrances of Things Past, these volumes have been delayed for some time. This part contains, perhaps, the most brilliant writing in the series.

The edition will be uniform with the other books in the series but will be presented in a de luxe format on specially made paper. There will be printed only the number of copies for which orders are received before publication date.

Two volumes, boxed, limited edition, $15.00.

THE JOURNAL OF WILLIAM MACLAY

With an introduction by Charles A. Beard

"One of the most precious human documents for the study of American manners, morals, and intelligence, political and general. It deals with the period which witnessed the inauguration of the federal government under the Constitution. Through the burning glare of its spot light stalk, amble or drift all the distinguished personalities of the age, from George Washington to Fisher Ames.

"Descending frequently from high matters of state, Maclay made note in his Journal on every kind of topic that interested his contemporaries, foreign affairs, rheumatism, cures of ills, menus at state dinners, family affairs, in a word, everything in the pageant of life received a shrewd, and sometimes cutting, memorandum in Maclay's pages. Anyone who wants to discover the spirit that lay behind Jeffersonian democracy simply must read, nay study, this Journal; and anyone who loves rich old lore, like wine in dusty bottles, must make it a familiar companion."

THE LIFE OF BUDDHA

By A. F. HEROLD

Translated by Paul C. Blum

GLEANED from the epics, the poems and the legends of India, this LIFE OF BUDDHA retains all the exquisite beauty of that ancient literature. The author has invented nothing; the life, as he traces it from the miraculous birth of the infant Siddhartha to the lengendary death of Buddha, is taken from the original texts; but he has used a poet's discretion in the choice of incidents, and while preserving color, the atmosphere and the imagery of the original, he has contributed a beauty of form and a poetry of language that is his own. He tells the life story of the Buddha—tells it beautifully and with artful simplicity, but he has also recaptured and imprisoned between these pages the peace, the exotic charm and the naive faith of a land and of an age that is passed.

NOTES FROM THE LIFE OF A VIENNESE COMPOSER: KARL GOLDMARK

Translated by Alice Goldmark Brandeis

KARL GOLDMARK died in 1915, little known except to a small group of music lovers. Since then his melodious Viennese strains have become well known everywhere, and recently at the unveiling of a monument over his grave in Vienna, distinguished artists and officials came from afar to do him honor. These recollections, told in the simplest manner, tell a charming story of a busy and interesting life.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN: HIS LIFE STORY

By JIM TULLY

FOR many months Jim Tully, fresh from his wide experiences as hobo, pugilist, circus tout, laborer, found himself in the new and exciting atmosphere of the moving picture studio, a confidant of Charlie Chaplin. During this time of intimacy, Tully was ever the keen observer who so faithfully and courageously depicts the realities of what he sees around him. The colors in which this full length portrait of Charlie Chaplin is painted are not smudged or heightened. It is a true story.

THE LETTERS OF CHARLES BAUDELAIRE

Translated by Arthur Symons

"To understand Baudelaire, we must read everything he has written. He confesses more of himself in these letters than in his verse; he speaks of his need of bizarre excitement which requires for its fruition that magic world of shadows and of realities which is Paris; its crowds, its music, even its street lamps. And all Paris is there, and himself, and his visions, laughter, cynicism, invention of incredible and fabulous sensations, adventures of the soul and of the senses."—Arthur Symons.

This volume will be uniform with the complete poems and prose of Baudelaire, also translated by Mr. Symons.

INDIAN JOURNEY

By WALDEMAR BONSELS

WALDEMAR BONSELS passed more than a year in India which he spent, not in roving from place to place, but settled for months at a time in country dwellings from which he penetrated occasionally into the jungle. He has written a book which gets close to the heart of India, at the same time pervaded with the mystery and terror which exotic jungles exert upon Western minds. His India is not the high-pitched Anglo-India of a Kipling; it is a strangely serene land seen through Bonsel's rare, crystal intelligence and invested with his thrilling sense of wonder, beauty, awe and reverence. He wafts you to a wondrous land of mystic glories and magic. INDIAN JOURNEY has long been one of the most popular books in Germany, and is regarded as a companion volume to Keyserling's TRAVEL DIARY OF A PHILOSOPHER

WANDERINGS IN ARABIA

By CHARLES M. DOUGHTY

(Being an authorized abridgement of Travels in Arabia Deserta)

"ONE of the greatest prose works of our time." Everywhere this work is regarded as one of the greatest classics. This is an abridgement of the larger work strengthening its appeal to the reader who has not got unlimited time, but without sacrificing its value to the student. In one volume and at popular price, with a very handsome format, this makes in every way an invaluable book for any library.

MADRIGAL AND MINSTRELSY

By JULIET RAPHAEL

Foreword by Felix Borowski

Illustrated by Mac Harshberger

In the days of ancient Greece poetry and music were so closely intertwined that one could scarcely be said to exist without the other. For some of the most famous poems of Shakespeare, Yeats, Rosetti, Stephens, and others, the author has supplied musical compositions which heighten the imagination and emotion of the poetry. Each poem is also beautifully illustrated so that the combination of the verse, music and picture make a book of great interest to any lover of the three arts.

CREATIVE ART

A Magazine of Fine and Applied Art

BECAUSE of the similarity in name to an American magazine, the publication in England known as THE STUDIO will appear in this country under the title of CREATIVE ART.

CREATIVE ART is the world's leading journal of modern arts and crafts. For over thirty years it has served as a record of achievement, and its reputation has never been higher than it is today. Its circulation is greater than that of any other art magazine, and is continually on the increase.

For this there are several reasons. CREATIVE ART is international in character. It possesses a unique organization supplying it with the best work that is being done in every important country in the world.

It takes Art as a whole within its province. Painting and the graphic arts are strongly represented, but no craft is overlooked which tends to bring some element of beauty into the surroundings of everyday life.

From this fact it follows that CREATIVE ART is useful. People may find within its covers a mine of suggestions which may be practically applied with great benefit in their own homes.

Finally, its reproductions are of the finest quality and its colour plates unsurpassed in technical excellence. The production of the magazine is considered as an art in itself.

Both individual artists and groups of artists are given a place in its articles. CREATIVE ART deals alike with the man of genius and the subject of interest.

CREATIVE ART has thus established a claim to be the historian of what is most beautiful and permanent in modern art. It is kept and bound because it is a perpetual source of pleasure and a reliable chronicle of fact.

Everyone has nowadays an interest in some form of art. All phases of art are to be found in CREATIVE ART, treated as no other journal treats them.

DECORATIVE ART
"THE STUDIO" YEAR BOOK

An annual review of all that pertains to the erection, furnishing and decoration of the modern home. Indispensable to all persons of taste and discrimination. Invaluable to those about to furnish or to build. The illustrations include architectural exteriors and interiors, furniture, pottery and glass, metal work, gardens, and garden ornaments, etc.

Cloth, $3.50. Wrappers, $2.50

"The Studio" Year Book of Decorative Art for 1927 provides, like its predecessors, an unequalled review of the year's work in every form of domestic architecture, furniture, pottery, metal-work, glassware, textiles, and those minor details of household equipment which form no section by themselves, but which are often lovingly wrought and add a final distinction to the house. Some delightful new British and American country houses are among the many other interesting features of the year. Sir Lawrence Weaver, famous as an authority on architecture and decorative work, has contributed an introduction. There are 340 illustrations, including 8 plates in color and 32 pages in photo-gravure, replete with ideas for the home.

Cloth, $3.50. Wrappers, $2.50.

THE WOODCUT OF TODAY AT HOME AND ABROAD

To tell you the truth, we did not realize how amazingly the art of the woodcut had advanced until we began compiling this work from amongst the best examples from many countries. So great was the field that it has grown into a big volume containing eight color reproductions and over 180 two- or one-color illustrations. You take it up saying to yourself, "Oh, yes, woodcuts—I know all about them." Then you come to the lovely misty scene "St. Paul's—Twilight." Have you ever thought of mist portrayed by wood cut? Or Leo Frank's "Before the Storm," with the wonderful clearness of the air before rain, mirrored from the life? No. We will wager you did not know the full fascination of woodcuts until you saw this book.

Size 11½x8¼

Cloth, $3.50. Wrappers, $2.50.

DISAPPEARING LONDON

We might have called this book "Looking your Last on Old London," for most of its beautiful etchings show the dear unambitious landmarks of yesterday in the course of dissolution at the workman's hands. If you love your memories of the homely old London of 20 years ago, you will spend many an hour among these plates by famous artists. Job Nixon's etching of Devonshire House; Hanslip Fletcher's "Cloth Fair," the magnificent etching of Waterloo Bridge by Percy Robertson—all these and many more are memorable works—the sort of pictures you want to live with.

Royal Quarto with 12 etchings by famous artists. $2.50.

THE BOOK OF KELLS

Commentary by Sir Edward Sullivan, Bart.

This is a Second Edition, made necessary by the fascination of the subject and its treatment. For artists, and particularly for designers, The Book of Kells has proved a fruitful source of inspiration; indeed, to all interested in art in any form this masterpiece of illuminated manuscript is a household word. There are forty-nine illustrations in colors of the most beautiful and important pages, and many of the wonderful initials, and a commentary by one of the chief authorities on Celtic history. The new edition will be invaluable to students. $10.00.

GREAT PERIODS IN ART

A SERIES of volumes, each devoted to a great artistic period of the past. Each written by an acknowledged expert, and treated from the viewpoint of its human relation to our own time. Each volume contains about 80 reproductions illustrating the author's thesis. Size, 8¼ in. by 6¼ in. Cloth gilt. $3.50 each.

VOL. I. THE ART OF GREECE

By PROF. E. A. GARDNER, Litt.D., etc. (of the University of London)

AN authoritative survey of a great artistic period of the past written by an acknowledged expert, and treated from the viewpoint of its human relation to our time. $3.50.

VOL. II. DUTCH PAINTING OF THE XVIITH CENTURY

By C. H. COLLINS BAKER, Keeper of the National Gallery

THE Dutch School forms one of the most extraordinary phases of artistic history, producing, within the space of one hundred years, some of the world's masters and an enormous amount of interesting work. The present volume provides an authoritative account of the period by Mr. Collins Baker, whose thesis is profusely illustrated by selective plates. $3.50.

VOL. III. MAYA AND MEXICAN ART

By T. ATHOL JOYCE

THE author, Mr. T. A. Joyce, of the British Museum, speaks with the greatest authority. The book forms a general review of the arts and crafts of ancient Central America in the light of the most recent excavations and research. A full account of age and people still little known to the general public.

Others in Preparation. $3.50

THOMAS GIRTIN'S WATER-COLOURS

Cloth, $3.50. Wrappers, $2.50.

EARLY ENGLISH WATER-COLOURS

By A. J. FEINBERG

IF there is one branch of painting on which Great Britain may justly pride herself it is the art of Water-color, and this Special Number forms a wonderful record. It is particularly notable for the splendid series of Turner's drawings, of which twelve are reproduced in colors and thirty-two in monochrome.
Cloth, $3.50.

THE WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS OF JOHN SELL COTMAN

By A. P. OPPE

A GREAT master and teacher. Cotman was, indeed, a teacher in actual practice for a large part of his life, and in spite of adverse circumstances his name now stands high. This number, with its twenty-four colored reproductions, shows the reason. Here is a "Cotman room" in the most convenient form, and Mr. Oppé is a cicerone who knows how to display its treasures. $3.50.

VENICE, PAST AND PRESENT

THE magic city of the Adriatic is here depicted by the brushes of such famous artists of the past as the Bellinis, Buardi, Longhai and Canaletto, and of such eminent modern as Turner, Corot, Bonington, Monet, Brangwyn, Whistler and Sargent. Mr. Selwyn Brinton describes the growth and progress of the city, her artistic life. Her periods of triumph and decay. About 130 illustrations, several in color. Cloth, $3.50. Wrappers, $2.50.

OLD NAVAL PRINTS: THEIR ARTISTS AND ENGRAVERS

By Commander CHARLES N. ROBINSON, R.N.

STILL a few copies remain of this fine volume, written by an expert, and illustrated with about a hundred plates, twenty-four of them in colors. Many rare prints are reproduced; the subject is one which appeals to sea-going nations, and the technical skill of the artists is of a very high order. Limited edition of 1,500 numbered copies. Royal Quarto. Buckram. $22.50.

ADVENTURES BY SEA, FROM ART OF OLD TIME

By BASIL LUBBOCK

SLAVERS, buccaneers, privateersmen, smugglers, whalers, merchant-adventurers—all depicted in the most spirited fashion by master hands. And a breezy Introduction by that well-known sea writer Basil Lubbock. Even this is not all! For there are three new sonnets by a famous poet, John Masefield. Only a few copies remain. Limited edition of 1,750 numbered copies. Royal Quarto. Buckram. $22.50.

YACHTS AND YACHTING

By B. HECKSTALL-SMITH

A BOOK with an irresistible appeal for all yachtsmen and lovers of pleasure sailing. The author traces the development of yachting from its beginning, and the theme is carried out by a magnificent series of illustrations of various periods, twenty-four of which are in color. Limited edition of 1,000 numbered copies. Medium, Quarto. Buckram. $22.50.

THE HIGHWAY AND ITS VEHICLES

By HILAIRE BELLOC

MR. HILAIRE BELLOC, in his own inimitable way, traces the development of the road from the beaten track to the motor road of to-day, and with reasoned argument presents its future development. The 130 illustrations (twenty-four in color) form a pictorial record of European road travel and road vehicles from mediæval times until Victorian days. There are only 1,250 numbered copies, and the work will not be reprinted. Medium quarto. Buckram. $22.50.

MODERN GARDENS BRITISH AND FOREIGN

No one with a feeling for the care of the garden can afford to be without this volume. It gives particular attention to questions of design and lay-out in conjunction with horticulture. The illustrations have been selected with a view to helping the garden lover in search of new ideas. They comprise a magnificent series of photographs, many of them specially taken for this volume, showing the most significant developments at home and abroad. Plans in many cases are included. Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy and Sweden, the United States and Japan are represented. An expert commentary is contributed by Mr. Percy Cane, the well-known garden architect.

180 Monotone illustrations. 8 color plates.
Cloth, $3.50. Wrappers, $2.50.

LONDONERS: THEN AND NOW

A PICTORIAL history of social life and customs in London during the past 200 years, with an authoritative review by Malcolm C. Salaman. Over 100 illustrations, including several plates in colors.
Cloth, $3.50.

ART OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE OVERSEAS

A REVIEW of the work of the leading artists in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Over 100 illustrations, mostly full-page plates. Cloth, $3.50.

MASTERS OF WATER-COLOUR PAINTING

Introduction by H. M. CUNDALL, I.S.O., F.S.A.

TWENTY-FOUR mounted plates in colors. This volume is devoted to the work of Early Masters of British Water-color Paintings.
$7.50.

OLD ENGLISH SPORTING BOOKS

By RALPH NEVILL

THE library of sporting books in English is probably ten times greater than that in any other language, but many of the early editions of sporting classics, with their sumptuous illustrations, are now unobtainable. This volume gives a complete survey of the finest works, and reproduces over a hundred of the plates (twenty-four in color). Invaluable to collectors. Limited edition of 1,500 numbered copies. Royal Quarto. Buckram. $22.50.

ROME, PAST AND PRESENT

A COMPANION volume, illustrating in the same way the development of the city's appearance, as seen through the eyes of the most famous and interesting artists, old and new. Mr. William Gaunt gives a description of Rome, summarizing the changes and developments that have contributed to make the city so fascinating to the traveler and so important to this historian, the student of art, and the archælogist. Cloth, $3.50. Wrappers, $2.50.

THE NEW BOOK-ILLUSTRATION IN FRANCE

By LEON PICHON

BOOK-ILLUSTRATION in France has of late taken on a new life so vigorous that it has called for a Special Number with a wealth of plates to do it justice. The new applications of lithography, etching, photographic and color processes—and, above all, of wood engraving—are fully dealt with by a master printer and publisher. Cloth, 3.50. Wrappers, $2.50.

THE ETCHINGS OF FRANK BRANGWYN, R.A.

Catalogue Raisonné by WILLIAM GAUNT

BY arrangement with Mr. Brangwyn and the Publishers of his etchings (The Fine Art Society), The Studio have here produced a most important work, which comprises a catalogue raisonné of Mr. Brangwyn's etchings to date, with an illustration identifying each of the plates described, of which there are over 300. Limited edition, handsomely bound. Medium quarto. $15.00.

THOMAS ROWLANDSON: HIS DRAWINGS AND WATER-COLOURS

By A. P. OPPE

DRAWING with the pen and the brush has had few finer exponents in England in the social and satirical vein than Rowlandson. His achievement is illustrated here with about 100 plates, sixteen of which are in color. The book is uniform in appearance with that quoted above, and is marked by the same completeness and authoritative character.

Limited to 200 numbered copies. $35.00.

An ANNOUNCEMENT

of Publications for the FALL of 1927

NEW YORK CITY

61 WEST FORTY-EIGHTH STREET

Worlds' Ends

(Der Wendekreis)

By JACOB WASSERMANN

Translated by Lewis Galantière

HESE stories show how Der Wendekreis erally the tropics of Capricorn and Cancer), mbolically moments of terrific emotional im- rt, affect the souls of men.

Here are five men, portrayed at the most icial moments of their lives. Let us look efly at two of them, Solovine, the adventurer: d Urbas, the peasant farmer. Solovine has med the world; he has hunted his Moby ck, stuffed sausages in Chicago, built power nts in Iceland. The war is on and he is v in the navy. Suddenly, in a town that he s captured, he meets a noblewoman. He sees rie von Kruedener and is seized by one those blinding passions which explain to Tristan and Isolde. And Marie is able save herself in a scene of gripping drama in ich neither protagonist raises a finger.

Adam Urbas is loved and respected wherever is known. He is the head of a family of mers who have lived on the same soil for a usand years. One day he turns up at the ice station in Gunzenhausen and offers him- up to the police as the murderer of his own . The examining magistrate finds this e too clear, too simple to be humanly true. e story of the dead degenerate son and tragedy of Old Adam's life unfold pathetic- y before the reader.

Vassermann bends with pity and under- nding in his heart over the picture of strug- g mankind. He portrays those moments of is in which men and women reveal them- es utterly. And of these human materials creates drama of the most stirring and the t passionate intensity.

The Mad Professor

(Der Tolle Professor)

By HERMANN SUDERMANN

Translated by Isabel Leighton

HERMANN SUDERMANN, with Jacob Wassermann and Thomas Mann, form the great triumvirate of contemporary German literature. It is with pleasure that we announce the publication of this important novel, in two volumes.

Describing his student years at the University of Königsberg in The Book of My Youth (1922) Sudermann says: "I shall not talk about my teachers, for there is a novel called The Mad Professor which has been in my head for forty years, and in which most of them play a part. I must not, therefore, pillory them. If destiny gives me another ten years to work in, that novel shall certainly be written."

Four years have sufficed to permit the author of The Song of Songs to complete his projected novel. It concerns itself with Professor Sieburth, who has been made Assistant Professor at the University of Königsberg against the wishes of the faculty, by direct appointment from Berlin. He is brilliantly gifted, a keen thinker and philosopher, and of an absolutely independent frame of mind. But his position is soon endangered, partly by his own dissolute life, partly by his mocking independence, but largely by intrigues of members of the faculty.

The Professor's relations with four women make up a large part of the story. Drinking bouts in the university, student life, political intrigue are all involved. Sudermann has his own experiences as a student in Königsberg to fall back upon. He is a keen observer and an excellent portrayer of character. Incidentally he shows up the shallowness and hypocrisy of the pillars of society and academic life.

This is Sudermann's first novel since The Songs of Songs. October. 2 vols. $5.00

But Gentlemen Marry Brunettes

By ANITA LOOS

Again Intimately Illustrated by RALPH BARTON

We have reason to believe that the world awaits with bated breath further word as to the fortunes of Lorelei and her friend Dorothy. The ukase has gone forth. The oracle has spoken. And sad news it is indeed for ladies of the blonde persuasion. Miss Loos tells us Gentlemen Marry Brunettes. She tells us all about it in a book much longer than Blondes and, if you can believe us, as funny.

It is seldom that a book of humor so sweeps the world as did Gentlemen Prefer Blondes. Published by us in the Fall of 1925, edition after edition was hurried from the press, until it became almost impossible to keep up with the demand. Everywhere people were talking of Lorelei and her friend Dorothy. Her naive wisdom was quoted at dinner tables and on the subway, in clubs and dives, by rich and poor, by tabloids and cultural magazines. Her speech became part of our language, her technique part of the snare with which her sisters in real life sought to ensnare us. A play fashioned after the book became the hit of New York and the Far West at the same time. The book swept England (to whom much of the vernacular and a great deal of the psychology were foreign) as no other book of American humor has ever done in its own time. The book, in this country, has sold four hundred thousand copies. It received the praise not only of popular success but was seriously considered by our more erudite critics and recognized as fine art by such men as H. L. Mencken who wrote in The American Mercury, "Filled me with uproarious and salubrious mirth. Full of shrewd observation and devastating irony," and by Carl Van Vechten who wrote in The Book Review, "It is a profound book. It ranks as a work of art." N. A. Sm wrote in The San Francisco Chronicle, "Ho for a cheerless world. An authentic contrib tion to contemporary American humor Gentlemen Prefer Blondes has now been tran lated into almost every language under the su and the imports of peroxide into the countri of the Orient have reached unheard-of figur

The story of But Gentlemen Marry Brunett is mostly Dorothy's. Again Ralph Barton h done his part with illustrations that bri the characters to a salubrious life.

October $2.

Count Ten

By MILDRED EVANS GILMAN

Puritanism and religion, acceptance an revolt, New England as it was and is, gaunt o houses, elm trees and conventions giving wa before the inroads of modern apartment gasoline filling-stations, paved streets, and ne ideas. This is the background against whi the story of Count Ten is written.

It is a novel of contrasts, the fresh you girl from the Middle West, who for all h crudeness and bare honesty, has at least h feet upon the ground, and the people of El Avenue, particularly Miss Stella Godwin, br into the very spirit of the trees and ancie houses. This brief summer on a New Engla street is the interlude, the last stand of t old New England with its back to the wa fighting the horror of change, emotion reari its unruly head above the surface of thin for a moment, only to give way finally to t old standby, dignity. There is remarkab truth and humor in the character portraya and a sense of the inevitable melodrama of li in the writing. It is an important contrib tion to the interpretation of American life an behavior. A young novelist with a fresh poi of view sees New England in its stark nakedne and presents it with truth and vigor.

Unforbidden Fruit

By WARNER FABIAN

LAST fall a poll was taken of a woman's college class, one year graduated. Not a member of this class had married. Warner Fabian determined to find out the significance in this strange fact. Was there not evidence here of a changed, a revolutionary perhaps, certainly a challenging attitude on the part of the American college girl?

The author of Flaming Youth and Summer Bachelors has been investigating social conditions in several of the leading colleges and has embodied his findings in a brilliant and sharply defined novel, Unforbidden Fruit.

It is a study of feminine collegiate psychology, presenting a new angle as different from the flapper, younger generation novels as they were from what had preceded them; a portrayal of the type of youth to which life is both a laboratory experiment and an engrossing adventure and to which the formulas of law, custom and society count as nothing in comparison to her unappeased desire for the fulfillment of experience.

That the presentation will arouse criticism and even resentment in the college world is a foregone conclusion. No one college however is pictured. The portrayal is composite and as for its truthfulness, a jury made up of representatives of six leading institutions has passed upon it and vouches for its essential faithfulness to the newest femininity.

Mr. Fabian has chosen to present a special phase through the medium of a special college set; girls of the modern type, restless, pleasure-hunting and knowledge-hunting as well; living in the peculiar atmosphere of suppressed femininity which produces dangerous reactions.

Children of the Ritz

By CORNELL WOOLRICH

IN THE Spring of 1926 we published Cornell Woolrich's novel Cover Charge. It was presented to us in the previous autumn, by a young man, just nineteen, still attending courses at Columbia University and it was one of the very few unsolicited manuscripts submitted to us during the course of the year that we were able to accept.

With this new novel, Children of the Ritz, Mr. Woolrich has won, from a great many older and more experienced writers, the ten thousand dollar prize offered by College Humor in association with First National Pictures for the best manuscript submitted to them. Again it is a picture of the contemporary gay whirl that Mr. Woolrich gives us, played out against the urge of the saxophone and the hip-pocket flask, yet much fuller of implication and much more bodied with understanding. The characters take on a three dimensioned corporeality, lacking a little in the earlier book, and the story moves with a swiftness and verve that synchronizes it with the jazz age.

It tells the story of a beautiful young flapper, a sub-deb, born with a silver cocktail shaker in her hand (in place of the out-moded silver spoon in her mouth) who, from three-tenths ennui, four-tenths sex-appeal and three-tenths love, marries her handsome and deserving chauffeur. The resulting problem of readjustment, the tragedy of such a marriage and the futility of a solution is told against a giddy background of night clubs, race tracks and peccadillos.

This is bound to be one of the most interesting lighter novels of the year.

A Yankee Passional

A Sentimental Satire

By SAMUEL ORNITZ
Author of Haunch, Paunch and Jowl

Haunch, Paunch and Jowl, which appeared anonymously, and was the most talked of book of its season, has already reached fourteen large editions. This new book by the author of Haunch, Paunch and Jowl is even more beautifully written and more sensational in character.

They meet in a Maine town, these American Messiahs, who move to the big city for expansion and exaltation. This is Yankeeland of 1896, with every New Englander pickled in Bible brine. Samuel Ornitz's new novel pictures the uplift Yankees swarming into New York, with its degrading poverty that inspired Henry George's single tax gospel. A Yankee Passional projects this period's strange sophistication, which was shown in scholastic sympathies, high idealization, naive trust in imminent millenniums and a fantastic faith in the masses. New York was the happy hunting ground of reformers, healers, salvationists and creedists. It was like a frontier mining town, gay, irresponsible, ruled by swaggering Irishmen who held that the higher morality was blind loyalty to the Party and the Church. Into this hurly-burly world enters a young mystic who discovers Catholicism with his first sin.

There are many extraordinary characters in A Yankee Passional and the novel is carried vicariously through a generation. He bursts the barriers of sectionalism and admits his characters to play in the vast drama of the spirit.

In this new book Ornitz reveals himself as a sensitive artist who seeks in words for the fine emotional sensations of music. But let there be no mistaken impression that this novel, so rich in life-feeling, is merely exotic. The author's performance is all the more remarkable since his materials are mined from life—loam, ore—all are transmuted and realized in beautiful images.

Many of those who have read the manuscript of this book have called it the American Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man.

Bed and Breakfast

By CORALIE HOBSON

Illustrated by PEARL BINDER

THE scene of this funny diary of an English lady pseudo-intellectual is laid in London's Greenwich Village in a Communal House presided over by Mrs. Cheeks, the cook. In this house live the most amazing people. There is Emily Bland "a confirmed virgin—the military type . . . one day she will write a book on how to rear Radiant Babies." Then there is the critic next door "whose real problem is how to go on living on borrowed money." Isabel "is in love with James Gwynne, one of the pioneers of the Ethical Society. He has forty-two lady friends. He knows because he has counted them."

Anyone who is familiar with our Village will find the corresponding types, the corresponding parties, familiar hang-outs and recognizable "lines" in this exhilarating book. It is all a splendid take-off on Bohemianism with a sardonic irony under its wit.

Certain parts convey the fun of the book: "Everybody seems to tell the truth about their little liaisons from the housetops. I don't mind shouting about other people's, but I must admit I feel rather reticent about my own." "Clean Fun! The magic phrase swept through the room. Every one had tender visions of cocktail orgies."

The book is illustrated with fifty-five pictures in black and white by Pearl Binder.

The Great Bear

The Story of Thane Pardway

By LESTER COHEN
Author of Sweepings

THOSE who watched the amazing career of Sweepings as it rose to masterpiece dimensions among the critics and best-seller size with readers, will find in Mr. Cohen's new book fulfillment of all their expectations.

It is different from Sweepings. Where Sweepings surveyed broadly the career of an American family that comprehended within itself a whole era of American achievement, his new book digs deeply into an American character. We feel that it will take a place with the great studies of character that English literature affords.

The Great Bear is the portrait of an egotist, a conqueror in love and a conqueror in battle—the never ending battle of business. Huge of body, massive of will, gluttonous and bull-like in sensuality, he looms out of the book so actually, so powerfully realized, that the reader almost shrinks before the weight and impact of the man.

The story turns around the conflict that comes into his life when a love affair, entered into casually, becomes a major passion and challenges his other major passion—the manipulation of wheat in the Chicago Pit.

To him, who served himself women as he served himself wine, comes a virginal woman, a woman whose very innocence is a challenge to his egotist's need of conquest.

What follows can hardly be told within the limits of this brief description. It is sufficient to say that the story drives to a powerful conclusion and the completing strokes to the portrait of Thane Pardway are masterly.

Fantasy of Quest

By MANUEL KOMROFF
Author of The Grace of Lambs

MANUEL KOMROFF has won extraordinary recognition as one of our master short-story writers. He has long been included in Edward J. O'Brien's anthology of best short stories, and has been published in our best magazines, such as The Atlantic Monthly and The Dial.

This is his first full-length novel to appear in this country, and is an unusual and striking piece of work. It is a story of youth that Komroff tells; unlike Conrad's Youth in that in this book success is weighed in the balance and found wanting. There is a line in Shakespeare's Julius Cæsar which reads: "Go bid the priests present sacrifice and bring me their opinions of success." In this book Komroff gives his opinion of material and worldly success. There is a contrast throughout between Oriental and Occidental modes and philosophies and he has endeavored to show how the rush of American civilization has made changing standards in which the weak must inevitably lose and only the crafty succeed.

The book is divided into three parts: the first entitled "Sand and Fire"; the second, "Sea and Famine"; and the third, "Sky and Shadows." His entire thought is presented in an episodic panorama portraying the ambitions of youth, its apparent successes and failures. This book runs the entire gamut of human existence. It is a profound and moving study of youth, and should place Mr. Komroff in the forefront of our more serious novelists.

Purse Strings

By EDITH STERN

Purse Strings bears out Balzac's famous assertion that the question of money is more fundamental in man's existence than any other thing. It is the story of a man of superior intelligence and sensitive tastes who, after being brought up as a rich man's son, in a life of rather profligate tastes and rakish tendencies, marries into a bourgeois New York family of the utmost conservatism and stodginess, wealthy themselves and utterly unable to understand their new son-in-law's inability to accrue wealth. Though assisted somewhat by his wife's people, and at first by his own family, he is forced to make a living for himself and his wife, an idea and an ability utterly foreign to his nature. The struggle to reconcile his temperament to his various jobs, the impossibility of finding something both remunerative and congenial to him, ends by breaking his health and almost by breaking his heart. Stanley Jackson becomes first a hypochondriac and then a geniune invalid. And for many years he is forced to pass his invalid's existence in his mother-in-law's home eating the bread of his cultural and intellectual inferiors.

Mrs. Stern has written a first novel of unflagging interest and unusual power. It combines the novel of character with the novel of manners—always a fascinating combination. Simultaneous with her keen and penetrating development of Stanley Jackson's character, Mrs. Stern has recaptured, in a series of rich and vivid surfaces, the life of a bourgeois New York family retaining all its Victorian ideas and ideals in the first quarter of the twentieth century.

Her style is rapid and she wastes no words; yet the book is packed with incident and her portraits are full-length, achieved with ironic understanding.

Angel's Flight

By DON RYAN

Angel's Flight is a novel that attempts to reflect the modern American scene as revealed in two of the most different and geographically removed centers of population—Los Angeles and New York. The treatment is poetic realism. The result is an impressionistic picture—a picture that is grotesquely distorted, yet emphatically true.

The phantasmagoria of American life in its different states is seen through the tired, sophisticated eyes of a newspaper man who comes back from the war gassed, goes West for his lungs, and is starving in Los Angeles when the story opens. His life in that city, after he gets a column on an independent journal, touches many groups—he is implicated in a hi-jacking murder—he watches the last chapters of a futile failure unfold (perhaps as tragic and fine a piece of writing as any new writer has offered us this year)—he jousts with that stupid glittering world known as the Movies. Through these pages stalk prominent figures of our contemporary life, easily recognizable, pungently and wisely drawn—our leading screen comedian—a great director—a famous ball room dancer and her husband—our leading popular lady novelist—our tramp writer—our Gypsy fictionist.

Then he is suddenly hurled back into New York where he accidentally meets his daughter whom he has never known. There follows a story unusual in its theme and full of scornful pity for all humanity.

Angel's Flight is a mental book—that is, there is deep thought underlying the action and it contains a hundred stories within itself, stories that touch on a million lives and reveal a separate facet to each. It outrages the traditions of novel writing. Yet it is life as seen through the astigmatic eyes of one man.

The Fifth Child

(Kindernovelle)

By KLAUS MANN

THE German title of this book by the son of Thomas Mann means, of course, not a story for children but of children, of childhood.

The story is extremely simple. The widow of a great, radical philosopher (one time a priest), lives in the seclusion of a villa near a village in the Bavarian Alps. She has four children, aged five to nine. Almost one-third of the story deals with this idyll of childhood, with the games they play and the fairy tales they invent.

Into this solitude comes a young man, a great admirer of the philosopher. He is a young European intellectual, who has seen many parts of the world, and who has rather contradictory characteristics. He is intelligent, irresponsible, youthful, but he seems to be intended by the author as a guide and leader of the new generation. The widow, aged thirty-one, gradually falls madly in love with him, although he devotes almost his entire time to the children, who adore him. Then comes the fateful night, described as only a poet could, when the summation of their emotion is achieved. The next morning the young man leaves, never to appear on the scene again.

The story is beautifully told and has vague and lovely implications, whose obscurity adds definitely to the charm of the story. The import of the book, its message to the younger generation to whom it is addressed is the advocation of a full-blooded acceptance of, and surrender to life.

The Dream of a Woman

(Le Songe d'une Femme)

By REMY DE GOURMONT

Translated by Lewis Galantière

REMY DE GOURMONT's nature was characterized by two conspicuously dissimilar traits: he possessed the widest intellectual curiosity and the most voluptuous imagination of any writer of his time. Some twenty volumes of essays stand as an imposing monument to the first of these characteristics; bearing witness to the second, we have his novels, plays and poems.

Of his various novels, Le Songe d'une Femme—The Dream of a Woman—is said to have been his favorite. Perhaps it was because here, in this story of the torment of desire experienced by Anna Desloges, de Gourmont came nearest to freeing himself from his intellectual preoccupations. He seems, in this series of letters concerned exclusively with passion, to have renounced his habit of speculation and allowed his senses in all their purity to guide his pen.

As for that pen, it is justly celebrated as the only one in the past quarter-century of French literature worthy to be compared with the pen of Anatole France. Yet, as he proves in the sultry magnificence of this novel, de Gourmont's pen could do what France's pen could not. It could take us through perfumed glades, along rush-lined streams, and on seaside dunes, for all nature, and not merely man, was de Gourmont's province.

This flowing, sensuous narration of four entangled love affairs, whose scenes are variously laid in two country houses, in a Paris studio, and on the coast of Normandy, has been translated with faithful appreciation of the texture of de Gourmont's own language by Lewis Galantière.

This is one of the least known of de Gourmont's novels, never having been translated before; yet it is one of his finest.

The Silent Queen

By W. Seymour-Leslie

The Silent Queen herself is not a lady; yet she is silent when so many of her kind make the most noise. She is veritably "silent, white and beautiful." It is not within the province of this description to tell you who or what The Silent Queen is. In fact we can not do so. Let it suffice to say that the owner of all patent rights, and the man who has made his fortune out of The Silent Queen, is Elihu Hercules, known to the world of International Big Business as The Sanitary King.

This is the first novel written by someone on the inside about International Big Business. Intertwined with this, of course, is a great deal about International Good and Bad Manners, International Love and International Travel.

Far above the orbit of ordinary Babbitts, moves President Elihu Hercules of the Silent Queen Corporation, Niskayuna. He is not the out-dated boss of the caricaturist but a representative of the intellectualized business of the future—he has removed the Big Black Cigar from his more patrician mouth. And his conflict with Old Man Poot in London resembles the struggle of a rapier against a battle-axe.

The story begins with childhood pictures of one Geoffrey, in the nineties; and then against the background of two changing continents, the hero's love affairs, ambitions and somewhat fantastic travels commence and develop.

What is particularly refreshing in this book is its unconcerned treatment of business which is seen only as part of the economic scenery of our age and not as a thing virtuous and wicked in itself. The author preserves the same attitude to other facets of our life, to modern marriage, new attitudes, new beliefs; the blue mark of preaching never settles on the sunny insouciance of this story.

He Knew Women

By P. Whitehouse

This charming English novel deals with an unusual group of English people. Roselle, the daughter of the head of the group (a shiftless, careless, irresponsible artist), is the Cinderella of the household, shifting largely for herself, finding happiness where best she may in the Bohemian atmosphere of her home.

Into her life comes Oscar Strom, wealthy, a hedonist, a man who has taken his women where he has found them—and with him comes a mystery about a stolen picture, a sudden honeymoon aboard Strom's yacht, Roselle's escape from the yacht, her attempts to regain the stolen picture which is believed to have been unfairly taken from a half-wit girl, a trip to Lisbon with the husband she thinks she hates—all of which make this book a charming, and at times a very thrilling romance.

It is amusingly and sophisticatedly done; for instance, this description of Oscar Strom: "He stood looking at Roselle with hard eyes of light blue from the corners of which rayed out a little fan of wrinkles which had come there from smiling at the follies of the world. Nobody talked about Oscarto Oscar. They were a little afraid of him. It was plain, too, that he need not think about money. So that besides the respect which his caustic personality commanded, he drew to himself the respect for riches."

It is more than likely that this first novel by Miss Whitehouse will be the vogue over here this Fall that it is now in England.

This is the only novel which Mr. Liveright brought back from his two months' stay in London, though while there he and his readers carefully considered the manuscripts of over one hundred novels.

Lazy Isle

By GEORGE F. HUMMEL

THIS collection of stories, spun together upon the adventures of an American salesman come to the lethargic and lovely island of Capri to find a home for the fiancée he has left behind in America, are unique in that—unlike other stories of Capri, South Wind included—they deal, not so much with the floating population of painters, writers and plain lazy folk come for a moment to enjoy the loveliest smiles of the Mediterranean, as they do with the people of Capri themselves.

This island, so alluring in its location, so soporific in its atmosphere, so uninspiring to action and so inspiring to idleness, shelters a people that could only spring from these influences—naive, simple, imaginative, free of any thought of yesterday or tomorrow, and full only of a desire to bathe themselves in the sunshine of the Mediterranean sky and the blue of the Mediterranean Sea.

Once in Capri, the young American forgets his salesman's crusade to put a bathtub in every Italian home. Layer by layer, all that made a typical up-and-coming young American business man sloughs off. He leaves the tourists, and plunges into the real Capri—the world of the natives.

His life among them, as sharer of their trials, their gaieties, their festas and funerals, their labors which go on beneath the blare of tourist festivity and shame it with their greater happiness, links these episodes together.

He enters upon unbargained-for involvements, which are told, episode by episode, and which are named, according to the dominating feminine element in each.

End papers, decorated. September $2.50

A Collection of Short Stories

Edited by LILLIE RYTTENBERG and BEATRICE LANG

FOR three years now the Community Workers of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind have issued this anthology of short stories to aid them in carrying on the work of their center which they have established to make the blind self-supporting. The authors who have contributed have done so, donating their share of the royalties to the work of the center; and this volume, through the generosity of those authors who have contributed what they have thought the most representative of their short stories, has become recognized among the most noteworthy collections of short stories published in this country.

This is their fourth year (Trumps, Aces, and More Aces were the predecessor volumes), and we are happy to assume the publication of this splendid collection. It is only upon the rarest of occasions that such a galaxy of authors can be brought together in a single volume. Humor, pathos, and simple love stories can all be found here, where constant variety and uniform excellence realize the ambition of the compilers. Among the authors included are:

Fannie Hurst	G. B. Stern
Edna Ferber	Willa Cather
Louis Bromfield	George Ade
Sam Hellman	Sherwood Anderson
Mary Roberts Rinehart	Elinor Wylie
Zona Gale	John Galsworthy
Thyra Samter Winslow	Dorothy Canfield

On the King's Couch

(Le Lit du Roi)

By OCTAVE AUBRY

Translated by Evelyn Johnson

HERE is a gay, witty tale which smiles knowingly at the Muse of History and treats rather disrespectfully of a Royal Reputation. Grenoble is aroused from its bourgeois torpor by the advent of the most charming rascal that ever lived: Monsieur Jacques de Casanova, who had become Chevalier de Seingalt by the direct and simple means of conferring that euphonious title upon himself. Although Anne Roman is not insensible to the charms of this handsome, saturnine stranger, she clings stubbornly to a then out-moded sense of virtue. Casanova is annoyed to find his advances rejected; the ingenious Chevalier is taxed to find a means of whisking his inamorata off to Paris, but finally evolves an elaborate horoscope which predicts a dazzling future for Anne—in Paris. Her awed and gullible guardians learn that she will actually become the mistress of Louis XV. Even this fails and Casanova resumes his amorous travels alone.

We next come upon the seductive Chevalier at the Palais Royal in Paris, where a new opera is being presented. We make the acquaintance of all the celebrities, and fascinating details about their private lives are obligingly appended.

The balance of the tale unravels the story of Casanova, Anne, Madame de Pompadour and the King. It is a clever and charming book; a light-hearted and veracious study of the great folk of a wittier, naughtier and more magnificent day.

Europe at Love

(L'Europe Galante)

By PAUL MORAND

Translated by F. M. Atkinson

IT is a pleasure to present to the American public this latest addition from the pen of Paul Morand to the gaiety of nations. With its brilliant observations, its wit, its extraordinary discernment of national characteristics and eccentricities, it carries to the highest point the narrative of our exotic world begun in Open All Night and carried on in Closed All Night.

In these seventeen stories we discover Paul Morand at his very best, and one finds his stories of characters and places short and penetrating. These stories are of the exotic and the different, and provide an escape from self. He has wide sensibility and a keen observation. There is a brilliant play of observation and fancy. An English critic describes Morand:

"It is therefore a sound instinct on his part which makes him decorate the surface of his page with cleverness. As an amuser he can, while thus socially employed, suggest that he is giving us, and indeed often in fact gives us, something more to think and feel about; but were he to approach his subjects directly, that emotional lassitude would betray him. He has no faith in the permanence of profundity of his emotional response to life; but he is artist enough to manipulate that indigence into an irony which flutters very prettily to and fro between the scenes and persons he describes and himself."

The first edition of this inimitable work is limited to 1,050 numbered sets, specially printed and bound.

America

By HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON

Author of The Story of Mankind

IN September 1922, the publication of The Story of Mankind, with Van Loon's inimitable illustrations, revolutionized the teaching and telling of history. The singular charm, the spontaneous simplicity, the broad outlook of this really great book, created a whole new manner of historical writing, and a host of imitators not only in the field of history, but in the chronicling of other domains of knowledge.

Since then Van Loon's The Story of the Bible and Tolerance have spread his name and fame in every country in the world and in every language in which books are written.

In this new book, America, we have the greatest book that he has yet written, greater than The Story of Mankind because its subject did not require the compression that the first book did, no less incisive yet more mellow, in that the years have tempered Van Loon's tendency to iconoclasm, more thrilling in that there was a more unified story to tell. This is Van Loon's greatest book; the numerous illustrations in color and black and white are far finer, more imaginative and distinctive than anything Van Loon has heretofore drawn and the reception accorded this book should equal that accorded The Story of Mankind, which headed the best sellers for months on end.

As a thrilling, magnificent story of the backgrounds of our country, of those rough pioneers who built that we might live, of the struggle to preserve our unity and our happiness, and of those modern circumstances that shape our present lives this chronicle is unequaled.

Tolerance

By HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON

New Edition, with an added Chapter. Now Illustrated with Seventy-five Pictures by the Author

THIS is a new edition of Tolerance, with an added chapter and one hundred illustrations in black and white and a frontispiece in color. The other editions were unillustrated. This is the ninth large edition of this great work.

This book is the story of a man's fight for the right to think. Through its pages there flow the surge and flux of a battle greater than any battle of bullet and sword. It is a battle for Tolerance, the struggle of the unsubdued and unsubduable spirit of man for his own thoughts, his own beliefs and his own expression of those beliefs.

There is murder in its pages that drags men from quiet beds and hangs them to a rafter because they have chosen to think apart from the mob; there is lust and rapine here that make of sane men a great many-fanged beast-mob that blindly burns and slays; there is love that prompts them to die clutching a nebulous dream; there is arson and sabotage, intrigue and cruelty, ugliness and beauty.

Strange figures move through these pages; brave men and cravens; martyrs and madmen; all of them once lived and had their being; all were intrigued in that glorious warfare to speak as their consciences dictated or to suppress the speech of conscience by intimidation and the sword; all are recreated here in an unforgettable manner.

Erasmus and Kant, Spinoza and Montaigne, Martin Luther and Socrates, Copernicus and Pascal, Abélard and Galileo are some of the men who come to a thrilling rebirth in these pages.

Boss Tweed

The Story of a Grim Era

By Denis Tilden Lynch

William Marcy Tweed has a position in American history unparalleled by any other man. Throughout the civilized world his name is the symbol of corruption in government. Yet his extraordinary life has been a closed book to the millions who have played with his name. Even the contemporary chroniclers of the Boss—he was the first one on whom the title was bestowed and he gloried in it—knew little of the real Tweed. This Colossus of Corruption had a human side that makes him one of the most pathetic, pitiable and tragic figures in history.

Errors penned in Tweed's time have survived in a false tradition that this book shatters. It is more than a biography of a man and his contemporaries—many of them identified for all time with the history of the Republic—it is a picture of the most colorful, eventful and critical period in the life of the nation.

Interwoven with Tweed's career were such men as the Reverend Henry Ward Beecher, James Fisk, Jr., surnamed the Prince of Erie, President Grant, Daniel Drew, Fernando Wood, "Citizen" Train, Samuel J. Tilden and women of varying types, the female suffragists and free lovers—they were linked together in popular fancy, and in some notorious instances by fact. The most influential woman in the town—her wealth was measured in seven figures—an abortionist, was the notorious Madame Restell; the Claflin Sisters who made Beecher the center of a scandal of world-wide interest; all are here. The student of present-day politics will find it a key to many problems that perplex him. The lover of other days will revel in this moving story of romance and tragedy. It is a pioneer book that will be read, studied and discussed.

Henry The Eighth

By Francis Hackett

Four years ago this book was promised, and lovers of intimate biography were glad. Successively, since then, the book has been announced and postponed because the subject led its conscientious author into ever deeper and more engrossing avenues of research.

For it is fair to say that no figure in English history, not even the Virgin Queen herself, is so fascinating as Henry the Eighth. Henry VIII is so well-known as England's Royal Bluebeard that the other extraordinary points of interest in his history are overlooked.

It is forgotten that he was the builder of the English navy and without his work the rout of the Spanish Armada, the independence of the Netherlands, and the English colonization of America would have been impossible; that the pacification of Ireland was one of his great achievements; that he was virtually the first English ruler to make England a power in international politics; that he was a brilliant theologist and was able to erect a flourishing national church; that he was a writer of talent and that some of his anthems are still sung in English cathedrals. It is a curiosity of history that the most selfish and self-indulgent of her kings should have done most to build England's greatness. Henry VIII is Machiavelli's Prince in the flesh.

His many marriages were strokes of state and he executed a wife who failed to bring him the diplomatic benefits he required just as he executed his ministers, Wolsey and Cromwell.

To the story of this astonishing figure, Mr. Hackett has brought the resources of a sound scholarship and the fire of a brilliant pen. He clears up obscurity, brings in absorbing and little known material, and reveals much that is new regarding a fascinating episode in Henry VIII's career.

Life and Letters of Gertrude Bell of Arabia

GERTRUDE BELL is not surpassed by any European, not even by her friend, T. E. Lawrence, in knowledge of the desert and the desert tribes between the Jordan and the Euphrates and the region extending south to Central Arabia.

The whole of Gertrude Bell's story is told in these two volumes to the preparation of which her stepmother, Lady Bell, has devoted many years of her life.

In these extraordinary volumes we see Miss Bell, first visiting Persia at the age of twenty-four; then returning to Europe and becoming a mountaineer (two peaks are called after her—the Gertrude and the Bell Ridge); excavating with Sir William Ramsay in Asia Minor; crossing the Syrian Desert, a woman, alone, in absolute command of a large retinue of Arabs; and finally being summoned to Bagdad when the British occupied it during the War, and becoming Oriental Secretary there. At this momentous crisis of the organization of the British mandate, and the support of King Feisal's claim to the throne, Gertrude Bell's knowledge of the local surroundings and of the tribes of the desert was of the utmost value.

It is difficult to exaggerate the extent of Gertrude Bell's influence over the affairs of Mesopotamia during the six years that elapsed between King Feisal's accession and the day of her death.

Her position in Bagdad as referee of the Arabs as well as of the English; as Oriental Secretary; as honorary director of antiquities—all these, added to her personal charm and her attainments as a linguist, gave her such a position as no woman has ever held, and which it is unlikely that any woman will ever hold again.

The long letters home in which this romantic life is described have a descriptive power to parallel which we must turn to Doughty's great classic, Arabia Deserta.

The publication of these letters, with Lady Bell's connecting narrative, will be most eagerly awaited.

The Big Ditch

By ERIC WALROND

THERE are numerous accounts of the Panama Canal in terms of the commercial and political significance of the waterway. The human interest story of the canal, however, has had but a minimum of attraction for the historians of this gigantic engineering triumph over immeasurable physical difficulties.

In this book Mr. Walrond, some of whose stories in Tropic Death were laid on the Panama Isthmus, endeavors to recapture some of the romantic and tragic aspects surrounding the construction of the Canal. Mr. Walrond draws richly upon the experiences of his boyhood on the Isthmus; and to give his account an accurate basis of historic fact, he spent over six months in research, going over the newspapers of Panama from the arrival of the French in the early part of 1880 down to the opening of the Canal in 1914. In addition, he made a trip early in 1927 to the Canal Zone for the purpose of completing his researches and of replenishing his ready store of impressions covering the later stages of the building of the Canal.

Into its story are drawn revolutions, international intrigues and almost whole racial movements. Titanic achievements of science, engineering and human labor underscore its history. This is the first great book to tell the whole story and the greater part of the material has never been published before.

Mr. Walrond's book is a careful, colorful, dramatic and imaginative rendering of an immortal chapter in our history.

The Companionate Marriage

By Judge Ben B. Lindsey and Wainwright Evans

This new book by the authors of The Revolt of Modern Youth, which has already gone into twelve editions, and which has evoked perhaps a wider interest than any book of its kind in many years, treats of a subject long studied by Judge Lindsey during his occupation of the Bench in Denver.

Companioniate Marriage, according to Judge Lindsey, consists in the understanding that, so long as there are no children and the couple mutually desire a divorce, they may have it without the present system of deception and hypocrisy involved in the legal mutual consent through which the great majority of divorces are granted. A knowledge of the practice of birth control is implicit in his program.

In this book Judge Lindsey discusses his advocacy of this sane and sensible idea of marriage in the light of modern civilization. His conclusions have been reached only by considerations of thousands of failures in modern marriage as observed by him through his long years of judicial service. He sees—unless his premises are accepted—a breakdown and a disregard of the entire marriage system, and his book should be of extreme importance to every thinking man and woman of today. Judge Lindsey's claim is that companionate marriage would establish the beauty, glory and joy of wanted motherhood in real marriage, as distinguished from mere sex, over the accidents of lust in mere sensual satisfactions, such as are being so generously encouraged under the present marriage code.

The Devil and Cotton Mather

By Katherine Anne Porter

In an old edition of The Encyclopedia Britannica there is this rather naive summation of the character of Cotton Mather:

"With all this it must be confessed that he (Cotton Mather) had some grave defects. His common sense was not uniformly equal to his need. Always ambitious and self-opinionated, he was occasionally irritable and conceited. His enormous knowledge did not digest well, and his use of learning tended to be crude. He was superstitious, and it was his misfortune that, as to witchcraft, he was not, as with vaccination, in the advance of his generation."

Cotton Mather led a fantastically busy life, and in this story Miss Porter has attempted to interweave contemporary accounts of his political and ecclesiastical exploits with his own diaries which reveal a life-long death-obsession and the secret practice of diabolism.

Miss Porter's chief concern is with this prolonged emotional debauch that was his hidden life. He belongs to rather an ordinary type of shoddy saint and second-rate mystic, but he would have been a remarkable witch-doctor if he had had the wit to discover his true beliefs, and the courage to follow them.

In this biography of the sternest and strangest of our New England figures, Miss Porter has given us an astounding picture of religious ecstasy and righteousness, contrasted to an unbelievable strain of bigotry and superstition, of cruelty and implacable retribution in the name of the Lord. As a story of the New England conscience, as a narrative of the Salem Witchcraft, and as a study of a pious and bigoted figure, this book—which treats the subject in the modern biographical manner—is an important work.

The Changing South

By WILLIAM J. ROBERTSON

THIS provocative consideration of the historical, cultural and political backgrounds of the "Solid South" is most important in view of the approaching National election and the many National problems before us in which the South plays the leading part.

The first part of the book is devoted to a study of the origin of the Solid South; how the territory which now composes nearly one-third of the states in the Union, grew out of the former slave-holding states, and how it has remained solidly Democratic since the Civil War. There follows a political and religious history, a study of the prohibition movement, with a consideration of changing customs and manners and a discussion of the race problem and a history of the two Klan movements.

The second part devotes itself to the political and religious histories of the individual states, including the church influences, the prohibition situation, political machines, the election and criminal laws, and the most important public men and women of the past and present, discussed without fear or favor.

The third part is a summing up of present conditions as a basis for speculating on the South's political, religious and moral future. Included is a hazard as to the South's attitude toward the leading candidates in the coming Presidential election. The book closes with a chapter devoted to what the South should do to lift itself out of the mire of bigotry, intolerance, and political, religious and moral backwardness.

The Jesuit Enigma

By DR. E. BOYD BARRETT

THIS story of the Jesuits contains so many adventures that are remote from the ordinary and passes so swiftly and surely into a moving and thrilling enterprise of high and chivalrous purpose, that it deserves the title of Romance. It is a strange and fascinating story far removed from the commonplace. It tells of a distinguished body of men, bound together by oath in the pursuit of no less an adventure than the conquest of the world. The account of their early achievements is unique and thrilling. High and lofty motives gave them superhuman courage, and for a few decades their progress was marked by striking victories.

Their failure in the end is no less startling than the story of their early success. They set out to show that human nature is malleable and that saints could be produced by the systematic asceticism of the "Spiritual Exercises." Instead of establishing their thesis, they proved, according to the author's opinion, for all, the fallacy of its contradictions, and in their own persons, they produced, not saints, but as Clement XIV declared, mischief makers. As a result, failure in every direction, failure after initial stupendous triumphs, has dogged the path of this ill-fated order.

Dr. Barrett, now retired, was for twenty years a Jesuit. In his interesting book, the reader will find abundant material to fascinate him. Therein are described the System of Espionage, History, Loyola, Jesuits and Mind-healing, Educational Theories, the Power of the Jesuit, the Dream and the Disillusionment, and an interesting autobiographical chapter. This book is an endeavor to trace the origins and the history as well as failures and successes of the Jesuit order, together with its customs and beliefs by one who has been a Jesuit.

The Songs of Paul Dresser

With an Introduction by His Brother, Theodore Dreiser

Illustrated with Stereopticon Song Slides of the Period

PAUL DRESSER, the brother of Theodore Dreiser, was the best known composer of popular songs of his time. He was the author of such national successes as The Banks of the Wabash, My Gal Sal, Only a Volunteer, The Letter That Never Came, The Pardon That Came Too Late, and several hundred others to which the entire nation sang and wept or were lulled to sleep or urged to battle.

Theodore Dreiser writes in his introduction: "On the banks of the Wabash in Terre Haute, Indiana, on April 2, 1857, my brother Paul was born. . . (his was) the tang and flavor of a gay and tender temperament at once kindly and lovable, inbred in a most unsophisticated and illusioned, and yet energetic and constructive period of our national life. The popularity of his—and other songs like his! The accuracy with which they set forth the moods, the reactions and the aspirations of the exceedingly humble, intellectually and emotionally!"

There are fifty of Paul Dresser's best known songs, words and music in this collection photographed and reproduced from the original songs. Each song is illustrated with one of the old stereopticon song slides of the period, by which we were wont to be beguiled in the movie parlors between one-reelers years ago. These photographs, the like of which can only be found in our aunt's photo-album, add an irresistible and quaint charm to the book. There is an important eleven-page introduction by Theodore Dreiser. There are love songs and lullabies, mother songs and war songs, pickaninny songs and songs of beautiful girls and boys gone wrong in the big city.

Much Loved Books

Best Sellers of the Ages

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT

FROM December 1921 until February 1924 there ran weekly in the columns of The Chicago Tribune, a series of articles about two thousand words long, called Best Sellers of the Ages, by James O'Donnell Bennett.

These were brisk, vivid presentations of the most important and interesting books of all times and languages, a few words of their history, their import on the life of their time, something of their authors, a short synopsis of the plot where the work was fiction and an attempt to explain their meaning and their popularity. The subjects beginning with The Bible, ranged all the way from Robinson Crusoe to Paradise Lost, from Hamlet to Daisy Miller, from Huckleberry Finn to Marco Polo, from Leaves of Grass to The Book of Job. All in all they numbered one hundred and seven articles and constituted a fine survey of all literature, an important stimulant to better reading, and an invaluable reference book.

Since their discontinuance many thousands of requests have come to The Chicago Tribune for certain numbers, for further articles and more particularly for some presentation of them in book form.

In compliance with this request, Mr. Bennett has assembled these articles for us and we are now privileged to offer them in book form.

To those who have never seen any of these essays, it is necessary to say that Mr Bennett is a practicing newspaper man on news assignments that carry him all over the world, so that these articles, although literary essays, are always fresh, interesting, popularly written. They cannot help but lure the reader to a perusal of the books discussed, fortified by an easily understood idea of the books' meaning and significance in our life and our literature.

The Case Against Prohibition

A Reply to Professor Fisher and Others

By CLARENCE DARROW and VICTOR YARROS

VERY few books, or even solid and informing rticles, have been written on prohibition since ne taking effect of the 18th amendment and ne Volstead enforcement act. There has een, of course, considerable discussion of the rohibition question in Congress, in state gislatures, on the platform and in the public ress, but most of the utterances thereon have een superficial and platitudinous, if not in-ncere and hypocritical. The problem calls r sober-minded and thoroughly rational eatment, and the more intelligent or moderate pporters of prohibition claim to have found the recent book by Professor Irving Fisher Yale, entitled Prohibition At Its Worst, frank, unprejudiced and reasonable discus-n of the several aspects of the subject with nich he deals. Indeed, the book has been ghly recommended as the best possible de-nse of the 18th amendment and the Volstead t, if not as an absolutely irrefutable demon-tation of the soundness of that legislation and e utter futility of any effort to repeal or terially modify it. An examination of and ly to Professor Fisher's book in a judicial candid spirit would seem to be desirable d useful, and this is one of the features of s volume.

The authors have not consciously made any itrary assumption nor deliberately shirked difficulty that faces either the opponent or supporter of prohibition. The book is not paganda, and is not prompted by any ticular friendship for the liquor interests or financial stake in the liquor trade. It is igned to serve as an intellectual, clean and est argument for the side which it repre-ets.

The Voice of the Press

By SILAS BENT

THIS is a searching and frank discussion of modern metropolitan newspapers by a veteran newspaper man. The relation of the propagandist and the press-agent to the press; of commercialism and a revenue derived chiefly from advertising to the news; of news having the quality of cheap fiction to the invasion of personal privacy; the work of the reporter, the woman in journalism, the Washington correspondent; the tabloid picture paper as a legitimate heir to the Fourth Estate; the Sunday paper as "an organization for the prevention of reading"; the parallel between press and church, and the authority of the State over the press—all these and other phases are illuminated. The author names men and newspapers, cites facts and figures and dates. The book is a conspectus, not a tirade.

Silas Bent has been actively connected for more than twenty years with newspapers in Louisville, St. Louis, Chicago and New York. He has served on the staffs of The New York Times, the World and the Herald. He has taken an important part in two national publicity campaigns. During the last five years he has been a free-lance contributor to magazines and newspapers. He has lectured on the modern press at the University of Missouri, Columbia University, the New School for Social Research and elsewhere.

Mr. Bent aims to reach the general newspaper reading public with this book. He believes that the creation of an active public opinion about the newspapers will go far toward bringing about improved newspapers.

Travellers' Tales

A Book of Marvels

By H. C. ADAMS

Decorations by William Siegel

IN THIS book are all the great travellers who have thrilled us in our childhood and comforted us for our carpet-slippered existence in our old age; all those sainted liars and braggarts, who, returning on camel or foot, by galley or pony back, by magic carpet or by horse, have regaled us with impossible things done, almost unbelievable hazards surmounted, untold treasure found, fabulous creatures seen. Here, for our delight, are our fortunate friends; those who have seen the glory and the wonder of the other side of the world and returned to tell it to us, who have been compelled to stand right side up with our feet planted firmly on too solid ground.

This is not an anthology of their doings as reported and set down by them; it is a retelling by one man of the most interesting, the most miraculous parts of their journeys, a culling from these treasure troves of adventure, of those parts most calculated to make the flesh creep, the hair stand on end, the heart to beat and the imagination to start roving. They are elaborated by the wit of a rather naive man, with pertinent doubts of the truth, such as sometime (but not often) assailed us, of the credibility of the narrator. Yet the book is put down with the feeling that these things are somehow strangely true; that around the corner, within a short automobile ride, and but for the duress of business and the importunities of a family, there dwells the Great Auk.

Sindbad and Gulliver, Ulysses and Marco Polo, Herodotus and Captain Kidd, Pliny and Captain Cook and a thousand others travel through these pages. There is a chapter devoted to Sea Monsters, to Dwarfs and Giants, to Atlantis, the World Under the Sea, to The Roc, the Phoenix, The Mermaid, The Salamander.

Written so that children can understand an old men can dream again, delightfully decorate by end-pieces, initials, and decorations this one of the most fascinating books we hav ever published.

The Evolution of Scientifi Thought

From Newton to Einstein

By A. D'ABRO

ALTHOUGH in the course of the last thr centuries, scientific theories have been subje to all manners of vicissitudes and change the governing principles of the scientists then selves have been ever the same; a search f unity in diversity, a desire to bring order a harmony into what might at first sight appe a hopeless chaos.

The author has attempted to put in prominence this leit-motif of scientific pr cedure and has spared no effort in giving co crete illustrations to abstract problems. T essentials of Newton's great discoveries, t apparent inevitableness of absolute time a space in classical science are passed in revie Then we come to Riemann, that great math matician who wrested the problem of spa from the dogmatic slumber where it had rest for so long. Finally we see how Einste succeeded in transporting to the realm physics the ideas propounded by Rieman giving us thereby that supreme achieveme of modern thought, the theory of relativity.

Although written in non-technical languag great care has been given to an accurate p sentation of facts, and the book should ser as a valuable introduction to those who desi to pursue the subject further.

Peace or War?

By J. M. KENWORTHY, M.P.

Introduction by Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George

COMMANDER KENWORTHY, one of the best known members of the English House of Commons, a distinguished naval officer and former member of the Admiralty War Staff, deals in this book with the greatest problem of the day, from the angle of a man who has seen war at close quarters and has since become a recognized expert on world politics and the causes that lead to war between peoples. This is the most far-seeing examination of this question since Norman Angell's The Great Illusion.

There are certain danger spots in the world where hostilities may blaze out as soon as the peoples have recovered from their present war-weariness and financial exhaustion. Russia is becoming a force to be reckoned with and there are half-a-dozen sore places round her borders where fighting may commence. The Balkans are again becoming a powder magazine which may blow up all Europe. Italy is shown as determined to expand and can only do so at the cost of France and Britain or their interests. Nor must the possibility of war between England and America be ruled out.

Modern weapons of warfare are discussed and it is shown how the damage, loss and suffering of the next war would be far more terrible than that during the World War of 1914-1918.

Finally, constructive suggestions of a practical nature are put forward for the avoidance of another world disaster, the effects and the ruin of which no nation could hope to avoid.

Celibate Lives

By GEORGE MOORE

THIS is a new and popular edition of a work by George Moore, originally published under the title In Single Strictness. It contains all the stories which originally appeared in that book with the exception of Hugh Monfert, and in addition it includes the chapter from A Storyteller's Holiday and Albert Nobbs.

A work by Mr. George Moore can always be considered in the nature of an event, for he has widened the scope of English narrative on almost every side. For instance, before he began to write, the subject of adultery was usually avoided and all married persons were supposed to be faithful. In Celibate Lives, Mr. Moore has torn down another veil of hypocrisy in introducing to English fiction subjects which have never in so far as we are aware been treated so frankly and beautifully before.

The present idea in each of these long short stories makes them unique in English fiction. We find in these stories qualities in which English readers set great store—balance, proportion and human interest.

The London Post said of In Single Strictness, "We were never more enchanted by Mr. Moore's style than in reading these five stories. He can make a picture in seven words that cannot be forgotten; as surely as Corot went on painting Corots."

The London Times said, "There is no modern prose with so low and yet so clear a melody. There is no artist in words who preserves such an accord between colour and line, and it is to this fact, as much as the temperamental likeness of its peoples, that Mr. George Moore's present book owes the unity which he claims for it."

The Story of the American Indian

By PAUL RADIN

HERE is the whole story of the American Indian, the strange life he lived and is living, the civilizations that he created and of which only a doomed remnant survives. It covers the Indian life over the entire Western Hemisphere.

Although it is written by one of the leading authorities on Indian culture it is, fortunately, not written in technical style. Dr. Radin has already won the attention of the savants by his researches; now he wants to reach the average American so that he may know as much about the only native American culture as he knows about entirely alien ones.

It is a beautifully told story. Dr. Radin never strays from the narrative, and the rise and fall of Indian civilizations, strange native customs, and peculiar psychology move us deeply. The spirit which the moving picture, The Vanishing American tried to give, is here given in a truly profound and important book.

There is a vast amount of information that has never been coordinated in one volume.

Mr. Lewis Mumford, author of The Golden Day, so widely praised as the best treatment of the white man's civilization in America, writes of the book:

"He (Dr. Radin) is an anthropologist, and a genuine scientist, but he has broken with a great many of his professional traditions. He writes simply, and he writes for that growing body of readers that is neither lowbrow nor professionally crippled into being something less than a human being.

"Here is a subject that interests everyone and the material for it is buried for the most part in dry ethnological reports. Dr. Radin brings it to life."

Solitaria

By V. V. ROSANOV

With a short account of the author's life by E. Gollerbach

ROSANOV, who died in 1919, was describe by Prince D. S. Mirsky, the distinguishe historian of modern Russian literature, as "on of the greatest Russian writers of moder times. . . . Rosanov is the greatest revo lation of the Russian mind yet to be show to the West."

Of Solitaria and Fallen Leaves, The Time Literary Supplement (London) said: "Thes unashamedly intimate volumes of rando jottings are of intensely individual expression.

Solitaria is permeated by that "spirit o trifles, charming and light" which better tha any solemn chronicle reflects the soul of th author and of the epoch. In trying to unde stand Rosanov, we soon realize that it neede the true penetration of genius, the clairvoyanc of genius to see in the thousand trifling, every day occurrences, which nearly everyone passe by with utter indifference, to see in these th imprint of the "other world," to find their pro found significance, to divine their fleetin value. We soon realize that the author o these, as it were, incoherent and absurd note written while "examining his coins," now "o the back of the lined sheet," now "in th street," now "on the heel of my slipper (whil bathing)"—that the author is a uniqu observer in the full and perfect sense of th word.

The biographical and other material whic has been added, besides being of interest i itself, gives the reader a clear insight into th mind of this perplexing genius. The publica tion of parts of Solitaria in The London Mercur aroused the deepest curiosity concerning thi little known and important Russian.

Growing Into Life

The Magna Charta of Youth

By DAVID SEABURY

THIS book, by one of our leading Consulting Psychologists and one of our most popular lecturers of Psychology, is the most important on its subject ever presented to an American audience. In over two hundred thousand words, Dr. Seabury, the author of Unmasking Our Minds, presents a complete compendium and study of the tried and proven methods in the management of the young. Not only that: in this book he expounds his own theories, gained after years of actual practice, until an authentic and undoubtedly vastly important Magna Charta of moral and mental education is arrived at.

From the right of the child to be well born and to have his own individuality allowed to develop constructively, it progresses to new attitudes in parental relations: guidance and guardianship in contrast with possessive control which has so often failed. Its scope is best understood by considering its various parts:

The Introduction dramatizes the present crisis, showing that we have come to the end of the old ethics and that our failure to make an ethical advance in the past equal to our mechanical advance accounts for the fact that insanity has increased over thirty per cent. and neurosis over sixty per cent. in this country in the last ten years.

In Part One, The Problem, there are about eight chapters in case record form, real psychological stories which dramatize the disturbance and confusion of the average parent when confronted with the activities of youth.

In Part Two, The Reason, there are presented the essentials of modern psychology which give the background of our changed viewpoint in ethics. The reflexes, the instinctions, the emotions, the desires in the form of active instances, the motives, the will, the mental processes, the normal and abnormal mechanisms are made graphic and are presented against the background of everyday life.

Part Three, The Cause of Mental Difficulties, explains why the mind gets out of order. This presents a picture of average home life, school life, street and play life of children, young people and adults, actual pictures of how the wrong ethical training, the wrong customs, conventions, patterns and creeds distort and pervert the human mind and block its normal growth. Thus in this part we see not only the mental states and neurotic manifestations in process of distorting the mind, but just why the old ethics and the old parental attitudes are so destructive.

Part Four, The Cure, presents in as clear a picture as possible the problem of mental hygiene; that is, just what the parent can do to correct the difficulties that have already been developed in the child, as well as in the adult himself. They consist in a simple presentation of about fifty different therapeutic processes which dovetail and relate.

Part Five, The Prevention, gives a full and complete picture of the new ethics which Dr. Seabury believes if applied would avoid at least three-quarters of the neurotic disturbances which trouble men and women. This part also includes a restatement of the cardinal and social virtues in a form suitable for modern life, and a rather startling declaration that we have been endeavoring to apply these virtues as they were defined in the Dark Ages.

This last part ends with a chapter on Youth's Coming of Age, a summing up of the whole new attitude of the constructive liberation of personality, to the end of human maturity in contrast to the inhibited behavior so common in the past.

The book is a veritable Magna Charta of the rights and need of the child as well as the adult.

The A B C of Æsthetics

By Leo Stein

The A B C of Æsthetics is a profound book on a most difficult subject, written in a simple and popular manner. Leo Stein has long been known to readers of The New Republic, The Dial and foreign journals as a brilliant and original critic of international reputation.

This volume is the growth and result of twenty years of analysis and notes regarding Art and its relation to man. Leo Stein has his home in Paris and has seen at close range the birth, growth and decline of many art innovations and fads. He has seen impressionism give way to post-impressionism; post-impressionism to cubism. He has seen the birth and decline of the schools of abstraction, mobile color, expressionism, vorticism and dadaism, synchronism and all the rest. It was difficult in the light of these many conflicting names of artistic hysteria to keep a cool judgment and arrive at a sober judgment but Leo Stein has succeeded admirably in gathering the loose threads of artistic emotion and weaving a sane and solid critical work.

Regarding a delay in forwarding the final chapters Leo Stein writes: "I'm a very serious person, and I have set out to make this book both accurate and popular. I believe I have succeeded. I want the reader to understand as well as to know. Therefore I have delayed sending the concluding chapters for I can't allow a statement to pass as long as I can see the slightest chance of an inaccuracy in it, even if I am certain that no one else will."

This long awaited volume fulfills its expectation. It contains many original chapters that constitute a real contribution to the field of æsthetics. There are sections and ideas that are destined to be quoted in books that in the future will be written on kindred subjects.

The style is direct, the manner constructive and the conclusions illuminating and sanely balanced. This volume interprets what is vague and explains the underlying motives of modern art in its relation to the classical. It does more than this for it gives the reader a clear understanding of the important essentials of art.

Feminine Beauty

The Æsthetics, Cosmetics and Dietetics of its Preservation

By Helena Rubinstein

The subject matter of this interesting work is not limited to a study of physical beauty but embraces the subject of feminine beauty in its various essential phases of environment, objective and subjective. It treats of the influence of beauty as a social force, represented not only in literature and the other arts, but in concrete examples of living personifications of beauty.

The idea of beauty as applied to persons; the origin and development of the conception of physical beauty; training, medical aspects and cultivation of correct habits in early childhood are also treated in detail.

The development of various forms of treatment, the use of light and heat, exercise, diet, baths, and the upbuilding of the science of cosmetic dermatology, clothes, plastic surgery and other affiliated topics are discussed and explained.

Mme. Rubinstein, widely known in Europe and America as an authority of standing in the world of beauty, in this work gives us for the first time a complete and intimate survey and explanation of the effort to achieve superlative beauty in woman. It is a most practical book and one that should be of priceless value to every girl and woman.

From Magic to Science

By CHARLES SINGER, M.D.

D. Litt. Oxford, F. R. C. P. London, F. S. A.

THIS book endeavors to trace the progress in the human mind from the befogged haziness of the magical and theurgic to the scientific attitude toward nature. Beginning with a chapter on the historical relations of religion and science, tracing the interaction of these two great branches of human activity throughout the ages, it studies ancient medicine, giving an account of the birth of the scientific attitude toward the human body. At this point the Dark Ages intervene, and the author studies the deterioration of scientific thought with the fall of Greek science, and its gradual recovery due to the influence of Arabian culture, leading to the renaissances of the 13th and 15th centuries.

As an illustration of the attitude of men to nature during the Dark Ages, the Lorica of Gildas the Briton is studied, with the translation of some of the most extraordinary magical formulas of the sixth century. A fascinating chapter on Anglo-Saxon magic, followed by an account of the life and remarkable writings of St. Hildegard of Bingen, in turn leads up to an essay on the use of the herb from the time of Theophrastus to the German fathers of scientific botany.

The last two chapters are devoted to those landmarks of scientific thought, Francis Bacon and Isaac Newton.

This is a most fascinating book, written in a manner understandable to the layman, and dealing with a subject long of interest and material not hitherto easily available.

Life of Sir Charles Sedley

By V. DE SOLA PINTO

SIR CHARLES SEDLEY (1639-1701), English wit, courtier, rake and dramatist, was a contemporary of the Earl of Rochester, Dryden and other distinguished men of that time.

This work by Dr. Pinto is the first important work on one of the most conspicuous figures of the Restoration period in England. It is also a comprehensive history of those times. All the great figures from 1639 to 1701 appear in these pages, where a most graphic picture of the times has been related with charm and interest. Boni & Liveright are planning to follow this work next spring with a collected and unabridged edition of all Sedley's plays, poems and satires.

Gestalt Psychology

By Dr. Wolfgang Köhler

Author of The Mentality of Apes

This is the first volume published in any language on the new Gestalt Psychology. For the past few years the entire Institute of Psychology, connected with the University of Berlin, has been conducting experiments and researches in this new and revealing branch of Psychology. Dr. Wolfgang Köhler, Professor of Psychology of the University of Berlin and head of the Institute, has founded this new psychology after his world-famous experiments in the mentality of apes that he conducted in Africa.

The new psychology deals with the relation of sensations and their distortion due to the presence of sensations from other fields. It establishes a theory of psychological relativity on the sensuary fields and attacks former notions of habit. This characteristic of relationship between sensations is also true for other fields of psychology and the new Gestalt Psychology embraces them all.

Not unlike William James, Dr. Köhler is a philosopher as well as a psychologist and has a simplicity and grace in his writing. Very profound and important conclusions are reached by simple means and explained in a simple style without the use of an extensive scientific vocabulary.

Gestalt Psychology, like Relativity and the Atom, is a revolutionary contribution to science of today. It is humanistic in its scope and practical in its application. It revises many old notions and clears up a good deal that has, up till now, remained obscure. It applies its discoveries to all branches of human thought and action and this volume forms the foundation for a new and already well-recognized and established Psychology.

Contributions to the Theory and Technique of Psycho-Analysis

By Sandor Ferenczi

Translated by Jane Isabel Suttie and Others

The present collection of papers by Dr. Ferenczi attempts in no way to give a systematic survey of the development of psycho-analysis, but the papers do represent the author's personal contribution to this development. In their diversity of form these papers give a true picture of the manifold interests which continually occupy the physician practicing psycho-analysis, and which bring him into touch with the most varied fields of the natural and mental sciences. Personal inclinations of the author find expression; the outlook is predominantly that of the medical rather than that of the abstract sciences, and from this emerges one of the most important manifestations of instinct, namely "Genitality."

Many experiences collected in the course of Dr. Ferenczi's practice can be grouped under two headings. One of these tends to shed some analytical light upon certain normal and pathological psychic phenomena, and attempts to explain the symptoms of hysteria, tic, etc. The other and most important phase of the work lies in the field of technique; the author's attempt to speed up the analytical technique by the so-called "active" measures belongs to this category.

In this field Dr. Ferenczi is too well-known to require any biographical detail, and his scientific accuracy, broadmindedness and sympathetic consideration makes the work of the greatest possible interest.

The Procession to Tyburn

Crime and Punishment in the Eighteenth Century

Edited by WILLIAM G. McADOO

Chief City Magistrate of the City of New York

THE material in this volume was taken from a very rare work in three volumes, The Criminal Recorder, issued in 1804.

The subtitle reads—Biographical sketches of notorious public characters, murderers, traitors, pirates, mutineers, incendiaries, defrauders, rioters, forgers, highwaymen, footpads, pickpockets, swindlers, housebreakers, coiners, receivers and extortioners, with notes and an account of the various punishments inflicted upon those who transgress the laws of different countries, by "A Student of the Inner Temple."

Research has not been able to uncover the identity of the unknown student of The Inner Temple. Whoever he was, he was not only a penetrating student of law, and a man of moral scruple, but a good writer alert to the human elements of the cases he describes, an instinctive master of drama.

The book has remained largely unexploited. Unlike the Newgate Calendar which has become familiar by much excerpting and quotation, it is virtually unknown. The Honorable William G. McAdoo will receive the thanks of students of criminology and all interested in the drama of human life for making available this rich material.

The cases are fascinating. They combine the eternal fascination of crime with a vivid picture of a vivid age and an insight into criminology. And Justice McAdoo's long and absorbing introductory essay is one of the most penetrating contributions to the literature of criminology that has appeared in years.

The Psychopathic Criminal

(Die Psychopathischen Verbrecher)

Types and Traits of Character of Criminal Significance

By KARL BIRNBAUM

Translated from the German by Dr. Oswald H. Boltz, Manhattan State Hospital

ALTHOUGH this book is a handbook for Social Workers, Educators, the Medical and Legal Professions, Police and Prison Officials, it is of value to all interested in crime and criminology describing as it does the borderline conditions between mental health and disease in relation to the crime and the disposition of punishment.

A general survey of this book describes the definition and limitations of Psychopathic borderline conditions, the question of terms relating to crime and degeneration, as well as general Pathological instability and affectivity. The disposition of punishment is very carefully considered as well as detailed pages of suggestions regarding criminal treatment and provision for the Psychopathic criminal.

For many years this book has been the leading authority in its field. American and English experts concerned with criminal behavior have called for a translation of this work; but the translation has been delayed for the issuance of the new revised edition. We are happy to present to the American public this fine translation of the new edition.

The work is of inestimable value, containing matter which is certainly most important to anyone interested in the criminal of today and the reduction of crime.

Contemporaries of Marco Polo

Edited by MANUEL KOMROFF

SIR HENRY YULE, the distinguished scholar and authority on Ancient Asia writes: "The generation immediately preceding Marco Polo's, has bequeathed to us in the report of the Franciscan Friar William of Rubruck on the mission with which St. Lewis charged him to the Tartar Courts, the narrative of one great journey which, in its rich detail, its vivid pictures, its acuteness of observation and strong good sense, seems to me to form a Book of Travels of much higher claim than any one series of Polo's chapters."

With the exception of an edition printed privately for members of the Hakluyt Society in London, the account of the travels of William of Rubruck contained in this edition is the only complete text to be found in English. The text is preceded by the short account of the earlier Journey of John de Plano Carpini, who was the first noteworthy European explorer of the Mongol empire. He headed the first mission sent by Pope Innocent IV to protest against the Tartar invasion.

Manuel Komroff received special permission to work in the Library and Archives of the Vatican, where he consulted original manuscripts and documents. To make this volume a complete Oriental travel record of the time, and a companion volume to Marco Polo, he has included also the travels of Friar Odoric, which were the true source of the fables told by Mandeville and also the important record of Rabbi Benjamin of Tudela, who crossed Persia and penetrated to the frontiers of China.

An extensive bibliography is now being prepared for this volume, as well as an index and an introduction by the editor.

The Golden Ass of Apuleius

LUCIUS APULEIUS, celebrated as a philosopher and writer of romance, was born at Madaura in Numidia, about 125 A.D. His fame rests principally on The Metamorphoses or Golden Ass (which latter title seems not to be the author's own, but to have been bestowed in compliment). Apuleius seems to have followed a rifacimento of his contemporary, Lucian, who in turn borrowed most of his work from an earlier manuscript The Metamorphosis of Lucius of Patræ. Apuleius made these two earlier works the groundwork of an elaborate romance, interspersed with numerous episodes, of which the beautiful story of Cupid and Psyche is the most celebrated. The book is a remarkable illustration of the contemporary reaction against a period of scepticism, of the general appetite for miracle and magic, and of the influence of Oriental and Egyptian ideas upon the old theology.

The dignified, the ludicrous, the voluptuous, the horrible succeed each other with bewildering rapidity; fancy and feeling are everywhere apparent, but not less so affectation, meretricious ornament and ostentation.

The Golden Ass is an invaluable book as an illustration of ancient manners and full of entertainment from beginning to end.

Don Quixote's adventure with the wineskins, and Gil Blas' captivity among the robbers, are palpably borrowed from Apuleius; and several of his humorous episodes, probably current as popular stories long before his time, reappear in Boccaccio.

The translation used in this work is that of W. Adlington, which has remained down to this day as one of the great translations. There are added also many of the emendations of Thomas Taylor.

The Confessions of Saint Augustine

AUGUSTINE (Aurelius Augustine) was one of the four great fathers of the Latin Church, more profound than Ambrose, his spiritual father, more original and systematic than Jerome, his contemporary and correspondent, and intellectually far more distinguished than Gregory the Great, the last of the series. The theological position and influence of Augustine may be said to be unrivaled.

He was born at Tagaste, a town of Numidia, on the 13th of November 345 A.D. His father was Patrivius, a burgess of the town and still a pagan, and his mother was Monica, a Christian and a woman of the most elevated and tender piety. As a youth he gave way to the unbridled impulses of passion. He was converted in the summer of 386 and retired to a friend's house in the country to prepare himself for baptism.

Henceforth his life was filled up with his ecclesiastical labors and is more marked by the series of his numerous writings and the great controversies in which they engaged him than anything else. He died in August 430.

The Confessions were written shortly after he became a bishop about 397 and give a vivid sketch of his early career. To the devout utterances and aspirations of a great soul they add the charm of personal disclosure.

A particularly important feature of this edition of The Confessions of St. Augustine is that the translation used is that of J. G. Pilkington, M. A., originally issued in 1876. The text of the Benedictine edition has been followed and the translation was carefully compared by Dr. Pilkington with that of Watts, 1631, and that of Dr. Pusey, so the work is in every detail complete, beautifully translated and annotated wherever necessary.

Poetica Erotica

A Collection of Rare and Curious Amatory Verse

Edited by T. R. SMITH

THIS work is privately printed for subscribers only, and the edition is positively limited to twelve hundred and fifty sets, printed from type on rag paper with uncut edges. The binding consists of buckram back and Japanese paper sides. A newly edited edition.

It is the purpose of the editor in this newly edited edition of the now out of print and scarce Poetica Erotica which originally appeared in three volumes, to gather together a selection of amatory verse in English which ranges from the earliest times to the present day. The names of the most distinguished poets will be found in this collection, and many of the verses might be considered among the finest songs and lyrics in the English language. The text of the verses printed before 1800 manifests quite clearly the change in literary expression from the time when writers used plain language to express their thoughts. Since 1800 there has been much fine erotic verse, but the poets use a more discriminating vocabulary and a subtlety of thought that differentiates them from the apparent frankness of the earlier times. The best available English translations of the original Greek, Latin and Oriental translations have been used, and in each case the standard unabridged edition of each poet has been followed as well as Chapbooks, Drolleries, privately printed books and unpublished manuscripts.

In the earlier edition examples were taken from every period possible, and the editor must admit that there was much that was dull as a result, so that the first edition in three volumes will have to stand as a source book. The present collection contains a very large selection, but an effort has been made to select that which should be really prized. The text of each poem is complete, for an abridged version would be quite valueless to students.

With this new edition the editor completes his collection of the most interesting and gay amatory verse in English. It is a set of books to be kept and prized for ever, for it is very doubtful if it will ever be necessary to do it again. Limited to 1,250 numbered copies.

Pagan Pictures

Freely Translated and Fully Expanded from the Greek Anthology and the Greek Lyrical Poets Variously Augmented by Modern Instances

By WALLACE RICE

THE pattern of life set before the world of Greece and the interpretation of life given by the Greek geniuses are of a unique value—to Greek poetry we owe our most vital knowledge of both, and in it each is most essentially and intimately embodied. It therefore requires, as it repays, the largest and most delicate appreciation.

This poetry reaches its greatest height in a magnificent civilization—it is a society of high culture, fine taste, easy intercourse, and freedom of manners. Art was unrestrainedly personal.

Many have tried translations or interpretations of that great series of poems and epigrams known to us as the Greek Anthology. The history of this scholarship need not be related here, but the fact remains that it is one of the most delightful, interesting and most startling collections of poems, lyrics, epigrams and fragments handed down to us from ancient times.

In this collection Mr. Rice has not attempted a translation, but rather an interpretation. In a sense he has attempted something quite new.

This first edition, unabridged, will consist of 1,500 numbered copies, printed from type on special rag paper, and bound in buckram and batik. The price before publication will be $7.50 net. October Octavo

The Evergreen Tree

By KATHLEEN MILLAY

IT IS very seldom that a lyric gift bursts forth so full-grown and so little-known as the gift herein displayed by Kathleen Millay. True indeed, it is a family gift, but here in her own right, without genuflection or bow to her elder sister, Miss Millay appears as a lyric poet of first importance.

This poetry, so facile in expression, so compelling in loveliness, so essentially right in phrasing and diction, so freighted with more than mere evanescent beauty of thought, introduces to all poetry lovers a lyric singer of genius.

Strangely, none of these poems has ever been offered to magazines or for any publication whatsoever. They have been written through a space of years during which the poetry-loving public, listening for verse from the pen of a poet of the same name, were unaware of the younger sister's exquisite singing.

The Kilmarnock Edition of the Poems of Robert Burns

THE first edition of Burns was the Kilmarnock edition, printed in Kilmarnock by John Wilson, and published on the 31st of July 1786. It was a handsome octavo volume of 240 pages and was without doubt the best printed book that came from Wilson's famous press. The text consisted of 44 poems, songs, epistles, epitaphs and epigrams. The printer's account shows that 612 copies of this edition were printed and that they were stitched in a blue paper cover.

This volume has been reproduced faithfully in every detail and is an exact facsimile of this first edition. Much care has been taken in the making of a rag paper conforming exactly with the original edition, and the text is photographically correct. The many lovers of Burns in this country will be glad to possess an exact facsimile of this first edition at so moderate a price. A copy of the original edition was sold recently in a London auction room for £1,750.

The Eternal Companion

By JIDDU KRISHNAMURTI

IT WAS more than mere curiosity that led millions of Americans to press to see Jiddu Krishnamurti on his recent visit to America, and when they could not see him, to read avidly about him.

For the world is waiting for a spiritual redeemer. Humanity is suffering the most spirit-killing materialism the world has known in ages and millions of the sore in spirit are searching for a true inward road to happiness.

In this book of poetry there is an inspiring message for them. That marvelous mysticism of the East which, in spite of poverty and physical privation, has made people happier and more contented than in the wealth-swollen West, interpenetrates these poems.

In Adyar, in Southern India, the center of Theosophy, Krishnamurti has followed the path of the Hindu Garus, although he has arrived at new interpretations. India, where a thousand cults merge into one universal religion, has welcomed him, and his followers are multiplying all over the earth.

Reading these verses, one is convinced that here is a man who has had a tremendous reapproachment with a divine spirit. They are the beautiful and inspired writings of a man who has been somehow strangely close to his God.

The Poems of Oscar Wilde

Illustrated by JEAN DE BOSSCHERE

WE are happy to announce that we have arranged with Jean de Bosschere, the world-famous Belgian artist and illustrator, to illustrate a number of books for us during the course of the next three years, one or two volumes to be brought out each year.

De Bosschere is too well known for his illustrations of The Golden Ass of Apuleius, Droll Stories, The Songs of Ovid, and The Temptations of St. Anthony for the John Lane Company of London and for his other canvases and pictures, to need much exploitation here.

These books, printed in England, have become very rare and difficult to secure for many reasons and are most highly prized by collectors. In all cases they sell in this country at a premium.

De Bosschere has introduced an entirely new style into book illustration, the first new note—we might venture to say—since Aubrey Beardsley. His magnificent use of color and line have made the John Lane books in their de luxe bindings some of the most prized of all modern illustrated volumes among collectors.

As the first volume to be published by us we have selected the Complete Poems of Oscar Wilde, and the idea of this original and courageous artist illustrating such magnificently colorful poems as The Sphinx, The Harlot's House, and The Ballad of Reading Gaol, should fill all book collectors with delight.

The edition of this book will be limited to 2,000 copies, octavo, in a binding of colored cloth stamped in gold. There will be 8 full-color plates and 8 full-page black and white illustrations and numerous tail-pieces. The illustrations will be reproduced by the offset process on antique laid paper.

The Lives, Heroic Deeds and Sayings of Gargantua and His Son, Pantagruel

By FRANÇOIS RABELAIS

With many beautiful full-page illustrations and decorations by FRANK PAPE

Translated from the French into English by Sir Thomas Urquhart and Peter Le Motteux

LITTLE need be said at this time by way of interpretation of this masterpiece among the world's literature; the work of Rabelais is too well known to require this.

George Saintsbury says:

"Altogether, independently of the intrinsic interest of Rabelais' work, we go to him as we can go to only some score or half score of the greatest writers of the world, for a complete reflection of the sentiment and character of his time. As with all great writers, what he shows is in great part characteristic of humanity at all times and in all places, but, as also with all great writers except Shakespeare, more of it is local and temporary merely. This local and temporary element gives him his great historical importance."

The translation by Urquhart and Le Motteux seems not like a translation at all, Rabelais may have been a Tudor-Briton the way the text reads. The very spirit of Rabelais breathes again in this perfect version, which, without the dimmest appearance of effort, echoes with the very rhythm of the French. A master of language, Urquhart found in Rabelais the task for which his genius was mentally adapted.

Frank Pape's illustrations to this text have been manufactured in England,and the already large number of collectors of books illustrated by Pape will find in this new work probably the most excellent and sympathetic work that he has ever done.

Him

A Play, by E. E. CUMMINGS

Author: Well?

Public: What is Him about?

Author: Why ask me? Did I or didn't I make the play?

Public: But you surely know what you're making——

Author: Beg pardon, Mr. Public; I surely make what I'm knowing.

Public: So far as I'm concerned, my very dear sir, nonsense isn't everything in life.

Author: And so far as you're concerned "life" is a verb of two voices—active, to do, and passive, to dream. Others believe doing to be only a kind of dreaming. Still others have discovered (in a mirror surrounded with mirrors), something harder than silence but softer than falling: the third voice of "life," which believes itself and which cannot mean because it is.

Public: Bravo, but are such persons good for anything in particular?

Author: They are good for nothing except walking upright in the cordial revelation of the fatal reflexive.

Public: And your play is all about one of these persons, Mr. Author?

Author: Perhaps. But (let me tell you a secret) I rather hope my play is one of these persons.

Lazarus Laughed

A Play by EUGENE O'NEILL

THIS is the third of Eugene O'Neill's myth-plays, following The Fountain and Marco Millions. In a few words it tells the story of Lazarus, aroused by Christ from the dead.

The play opens after the departure of Christ where Lazarus' family and the multitude await the first word from the risen as to what he has seen and heard Beyond. Lazarus speaks. "There is no death," he says, "there is only God's eternal laughter." From his lips there falls God-given laughter that molds the multitude to his own will. Here is the only man who has been vouchsafed a look into the Beyond and has been permitted to return to tell of it. He alone knows there is no death; life itself is a part of a much larger and happier scheme. The motivation of the play rests upon the fact that he can only convince his listeners of this fact while he is preaching and laughing, but when he is gone from the scene, the old fear of death returns.

In a series of tremendous scenes Lazarus is thrown into contact with Caligula, who only can survive with his cruelty and madness as long as there is belief in and fear of death; with the Emperor Tiberius; and with Tiberius' wife, Pompeia.

This is in the completest sense a noble and ecstatic tragedy, the most powerful, truest and most beautiful that any dramatist has given us since Goethe. In the sweep of its emotions and the vitality of its ideas Lazarus Laughed is the crown of O'Neill's efforts.

October Uniform edition $2.50

Is That So! You Don't Know The Half Of It!

Edited by
OLIVER D. KEEP AND ASSOCIATES

A THOUSAND cleverly picked questions and answers and, appended to these answers, a thousand entertaining, startling, curious bits of miscellaneous information. These anecdotes cover the entire range of human interests—warfare, literature, the arts, science, politics, sport, nature, and what you will.

Is That So! You Don't Know the Half of It! is an extraordinarily interesting compilation thoroughly in accord with the present-day interest in "inside" biography. It is a book for the sophisticated who can take their heroes and heroines with an occasional grain of salt. The pictures it presents are not always the conventional ones, but they are guaranteed to be entertaining, and now and then quite breath-taking.

The questions themselves are designed for sophisticates, in the sense that they are not a mere test of copybook memories, but of significant facts and relationships.

And above all, if you are interested in what Queen Elizabeth said to the Earl of Leicester when he rebuked her for swearing at the servants; if the early life of Texas Guinan strikes a receptive chord; if you care to know what General Jubal Early said under his breath in church one hot summer day—Is That So! is the book for you.

Who and What

A Book of Clues for the Clever

Edited by SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS
In collaboration with many prominent people

THIS is an entirely new idea in the question-naire craze that has swept this country. This book is totally different from any other now on the market, a brand new angle on a fas-cinating game. In this game, questions are asked in such a manner as to conceal the answer in a series of apparent paradoxes and evasions, yet at the same time to give sufficient clues to enable an intelligent and clear-thinking listener to arrive at the solution. In this way the game becomes more than a mere matter of knowledge for it requires ingenuity and a certain amount of deductive skill on the part of the interrogated.

A sample follows:

"My realm is the focus of the gayety of two worlds, and is nourished upon the suffering and deprivations of those who come to it. What elsewhere is banned as crime, is here the essence of existence. Before me stretches the bluest of oceans, behind me rises the white of eternal snows, but my colors, which rouse millions to frenzy, joy and despair, have never led armies to war nor been blazoned upon the nation's banner.

"While the world plays within my walls, I go a-fishing." Ans.: The Prince of Monaco.

The answers to all questions will be found in the back of the book. There are two hun-dred and fifty questions in the book propounded in the main by Samuel Hopkins Adams, author of Revelry, aided by many famous people who will be credited with the author-ship of their questions.

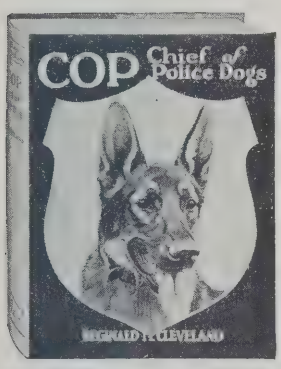
COP: CHIEF OF POLICE DOGS



By REGINALD M. CLEVELAND
Illustrated by Paul Bransom

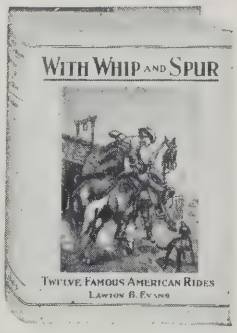
Perfect type of the breed, Cop, embodies every noble quality of the finest example of his strain. He courses through the pages of this, his life's story, with an interest, a dash and a thrill that holds you enthralled and enchanted.

Thoroughbred is his ancestry and his heritage is courage, sagacity, resourcefulness and loyalty, all of which are exemplified throughout his learning Puppy days, on through his care of the flocks and the cattle, and culminating in the manifestation of a humanlike intelligence and the unparalleled courage that enables him to rescue his mistress from a very dangerous situation.

The illustrations by Paul Bransom are masterpieces of fine animal painting. Price, $2.50

WITH WHIP AND SPUR

By LAWTON B. EVANS
Illustrated in color by Sidney Riesenberg



Through the great undertones of history resounds the music of galloping hoofs! Sometimes the thunderous chorus of hurrying cavalry to turn the tide of battle—again a stacato solo from the flying feet of a single horse and a lone rider on whom depends the fate of a nation.

Whip and Spur portrays in vivid description and pictures the part that those who rode alone have played in American History.

The contents include Col. Travis' Courier, Curley, the Crow Scout, Paul Revere's Ride, Gen. Grant's Escape, Gen. Sheridan's Ride, Emily Geiger's Warning, The Ride of Tench Tilghman, The Messenger from Saratoga, Gen. Putnam's Leap, Emily Sanson, Guide, The Ride of Lieut. Archibald Gillespie, The Pony Express. Price, $1.75

POEMS FOR THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

Compiled by JOSEPHINE BOUTON
Introduction by Carolyn S. Bailey

A book for the appreciation of children, not one whose pages the adult will have to interpret and adapt in order to form a taste for poetry in the early years. Each poem included is short and its subject matter is that of childhood. The child will learn the verses naturally and make them a part of his life because he loves them.

They are classified and grouped under fourteen subject headings covering a wide range of child interests, and representing the work of best known poets, from Shakespeare to Walter De La Mare. Price, $1.75

MRS. CUCUMBER GREEN

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Illustrated in color by Janet Laura Scott

The story has to do with a little girl—a very real little girl—and her family of dolls and toys who reside back of her bed in what is known as four Green Lane. There is Mr. Gerken, the wooden butcher, and Mr. Ottaway, the wooden grocer and they provide the best of nourishing food for her doll children whom she loves so devotedly. Above all there is Alice Gustava Ariel Star Jewel Bright Carol Carmen Cucumber Green, called Allie Bea for short—her beloved rag doll, the most understanding, sympathetic, loving rag doll in the world.

PUSSY PURR-MEW

By GUY WINFREY

Illustrated in color by Louise Tessin

Guy Winfrey, whose "Bunny Bearskin" was a prominent success among the illustrated books of last year, adds a second real achievement to the annals of children's literature with "Pussy Purr-mew." This is a story which might have for its "hero" the kitten of any child so faithfully portrayed is the career of Pussy Purr-mew, who in relating his many adventures, philosophies on life from a cat's outlook on the universe and association with children and grown-ups. This is a charming story and one to bring real joy to childish readers.

The illustrations by Louise Tessin, in her characteristic soft-blend colors, are a delight to the eye.

In attractive box. Price, Boxed, $1.50

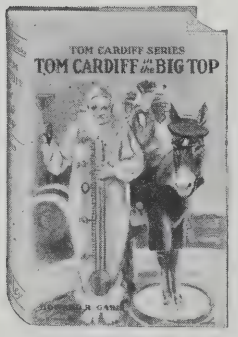
TOM CARDIFF IN THE BIG TOP



By HOWARD R. GARIS

Illustrated by W. B. King

Tom's prowess with the bow and arrow obtained for him a place in the sideshow, as related in "Tom Cardiff's Circus," but his ambition to get into the "big top" developed steadily into a determination which could not be restrained. Through the winter months he creates a clown act, employing a trick dog and donkey, and with the coming of spring and circus time, is rewarded by a place in the main tent show. Exciting experiences with a jealous associate who seeks to "queer" Tom's act, adventures with an unruly python, an elephant stampede, and the finding and exploiting of the famous Cardiff Giant, enliven Tom's progressive career, and add thrills to the story. Price, $1.50

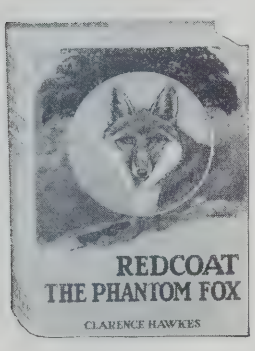
REDCOAT, THE PHANTOM FOX



By CLARENCE HAWKES
Illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull

Farmers, made desperate by his ravages on their chicken coops, set traps and lie in wait for him; the Fox Club holds special hunts to effect his capture or death, but Redcat, with uncanny cleverness eludes them all and continues his depredations. He is finally trapped by a clever ruse on the part of Bud Holcombe, a farmer boy, and sold to the keeper of a famous Silver Fox farm. But the wire enclosure which held other foxes securely, was no barrier to the clever Redcoat. One morning he was missing, and with him went Blue Lady the prize of the silver fox brood. As told by Clarence Hawkes, Redcoat's story is a masterpiece of animal fiction.

LONG LEGS, BIG MOUTH, BURNING EYES

By OLGA KOVALSKY and BRENDA PUTNAM
Illustrated by Rhoda Chase and Albert Cugat

Long Legs, Big Mouth and Burning Eyes, "three musketeers" of Russian fairyland come forth to meet the boys and girls of America, in a book of beautiful making and many colors. In old Russia days, the children of the Czar listened with delight to the adventures of this unique trio, and one little girl, by the name of Olga Kovalsky, was so impressed by them and other dream-world characters that when she grew up she brought these charming fairy people with her to America and had Brenda Putnam, the famous sculptress, translate their stories into English, to bring pleasure to the boys and girls of her adopted land.

In this book Mme. Kovalsky tells many of these delightful tales each of which Rhoda Chase has pictured in the true style and brilliancy of Russian art. Albert Cugat furnishes the beautiful cover onlays and attractive end-papers.

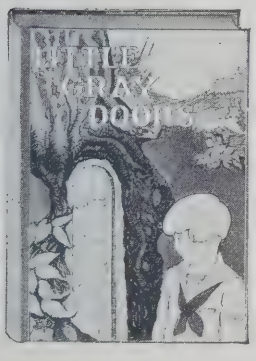
LITTLE GRAY DOORS

By ALEXANDRINA WOODS
Illustrated by The Phillips



Doors that open to the land of enchantment and happiness invite the reader to enter and enjoy these five cheerful and effervescing stories for younger boys and girls. "Little Gray Doors" tells the story of the boy who would not wash his hands; "The Mirror" of the lad who learned to be good by seeing his faults reflected in a looking glass; "The Magic Needle" of the little girl who wandered into Fairyland; "Paternoster" the story of a little boy who learned the lesson of nature from the insects; "The Fairy Glen" of Betty, the little girl who dreamed of the shepherd boy and his China shepherdess.

There is a broad range of creative subject matter and background to each of these stories which Alexandrina Woods has accumulated through years of teaching under Canadian methods. The Phillips have caught the cheerful spirit of the text in their seventy colorful illustrations.

BUNNY BEARSKIN

By GUY WINFREY

Illustrated by Louise Tessin

The whimsical tale of the bunny who would go swimming in the ice cold water. Shivering, shaking, he scurries into Mr. Bear's back-yard and there, on the line hangs Mr. Bear's extra skin. What would you have done? Well, Bunny did appropriate the bear's skin and scampered away with it, and then and there began a series of adventures such as never before happened to a rabbit.

Guy Winfrey brings many a laugh to his youthful audience in this rollicking tale, and Louise Tessin's soft delicate illustrations—fifty of them—depict all the prominent incidents of Bunny's brief but exciting experience.

OMJEE, THE WIZARD

KOREAN FOLK TALES

Illustrated by Hildegard Lupprian

Korea—land of mystery and superstition where facts of life are stranger than fiction of the white man, and imagination finds truth in occult phantasies—presents a background for fanciful tales, unrivaled by any other section of the world.

It is from the folk stories of such a country retold by its people for many generations, that Mr. Hulbert has gathered the material for his book of "Omjee the Wizard," and this he has done by personal contract with Korean peasants, having lived among them for several years.

In "Omjee" are incorporated the best and most inspirational of all Korean folk tales and legends, told for boys and girls in a language which they can understand and appreciate. The illustrations and marginal decorations in color on every page convey an artistic and pleasing visualization of the fantastic characters of the stories.

"Omjee the Wizard" is a beautiful story book for young readers, and a valuable addition to racial literature. Size 7¼ x 9⅝. Price $1.50

THE FACE IN THE MIST

Illustrated by Henry Hintermeister

A story of romance and adventure for boys and girls and older folks who still react to the thrill of youth. The scene is laid in the Far East and the islands of the Pacific. The leading characters are a young American Naval Officer, an Irish seaman, and the ever present American boy. The action covers the quest of this trio in search of a mysterious cryptogram which reveals the secret of a treasure horde hidden from the Mongolian tribes that swept over the isles of the China Sea in the sixteenth century. Mystery, thrills and action combine to make this a book of intensely gripping, readable quality.

TOM CARDIFF'S CIRCUS

Illustrated by W. B. King

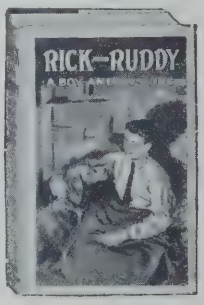
The crunch of wagons, the din and shout of the mid-way, and the brilliant coloring of the big top call the abused orphan lad to the life in the open. Raised in the environment of a New York State Indian Reservation Tom finds that the achievements taught him by the friendly redskins in his boyhood stand him in good stead for a life of action under the big canvas. Realistic illustrations add to the interest of the story. Price, $1.50

THE RICK AND RUDDY BOOKS

Rick, the boy, and Ruddy, the dog, will find a warm spot in the heart of every boy and girl. Their adventures as told by Mr. Garis are such as any real boy and his faithful dog might experience, adding the interest of realism to the entertainment of well told tales. There are five titles in the series, all illustrated by well known artists.

RICK AND RUDDY
A BOY AND HIS DOG

Illustrated by John Goss



Cast up by the sea from a wrecked ship off the Jersey coast an Irish setter pup is found by a coast guard, who carries him to the home of Rick Dalton, a twelve-year-old boy who longs to own a dog. Rick finds his heart's desire realized in the shipwrecked puppy whom he names "Ruddy", and boy and dog become constant companions. Many are the good times that these two have together, hiking, hunting, swimming, doing those things that are a part of every normal boy's life; and where danger threatens, Ruddy proves his worth in no uncertain manner. A clean-cut story, of absorbing interest for boys and girls. Price, $1.50

RICK AND RUDDY IN CAMP

Illustrated by Milo Winter

Rick and Ruddy go camping with a Boy Scout troop and experience new adventures in field and forest, where Ruddy's canine instinct often proves superior to the woodcraft knowledge of his masters. Price, $1.50

RICK AND RUDDY AFLOAT

Illustrated by W. B. King

A cruise with Uncle Tod upon the motorboat Sally brings to Rick and Ruddy many mysterious and interesting experiences. The brass bound box with its glistening contents, the strange fat Indian, sly Nick Slithers, the false attack, Rick and Ruddy's journey in the night over the foaming waters during an electrical storm, are only a few of the thrills that come from the exciting narrative. Price, $1.50

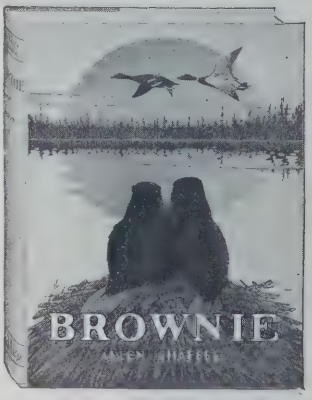
THE ALLEN CHAFFEE NATURE STORIES

BROWNIE



THE ENGINEER OF BEAVER BROOK

Illustrated by Paul Bransom

Brownie is the Utah beaver, whose habits his present biographer has studied first hand. He is the engineer of forest and waterway, changing, through his marvelous industry and genius, the topography of the country he inhabits as our own roads and cities are undergoing transformation for the needs of a changing civilization. This thought gives Brownie's story an important place in child literature, but the book has an even closer touch, through its theme of constructive energy, with the instincts of the child.

The book is full of nature facts told in the story form all children love. It will be read by boys and girls from eight to twelve years. It will be enjoyed by younger children as soon as they want true stories.

The illustrations by Mr. Bransom, who has no equal in the interpretation of our animal life, are superb. Size 7¼ x 9⅝. Price $1.50

THE ADVENTURES OF TWINKLY EYES
THE LITTLE BLACK BEAR

Twinkly Eyes is one of the most delightful little characters ever created in animal literature. LIGHTS OFF SHORE!

Illustrated by Harold Anderson

In these days of discussion of constitutional amending and law enforcement, Mr. Durell feels that our growing boy and girlhood should be instilled with the patriotic motives and principals on which our forefathers founded this great nation. Here is a powerful tale of action and adventure with our old friends Sam Hotchkiss and Captain Seth Nickerson unintentionally cast among the law breakers operating about Cape Cod. There is no glamor to the modern smuggler and pirate as Sam discovers after many harrowing experiences. The law will run its course. The author shows an intimate knowledge of the ways and methods of present day outlaws of the coast and the lives of these people are pictured as they really are, with the mystery dispelled and the sordidness revealed. In this third title of the Blue Water Series, boys and girls will find the most thrilling narrative of the season. Price, $1.50

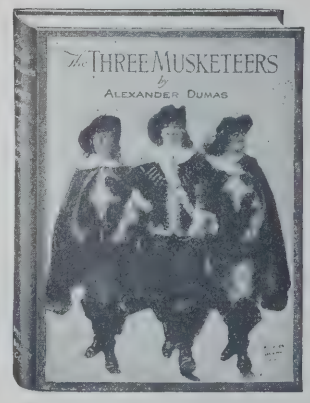
THE THREE MUSKETEERS

THE GREATEST OF ROMANTIC CLASSICS RETOLD FOR CHILDREN

By ALEXANDER DUMAS Edited by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey
Illustrated by Harold Brett



This edition of the Dumas masterpiece is a real achievement in the editing of a famous classic, presenting it in practically the exact words of the author, yet by elimination of questionable passages, making of it a book which the most conscientious parents will not hesitate to place in the hands of their children.

All historical features of the story are embodied in the abridged text, and all the incidents of stirring adventure, the shining examples of loyalty and courage, the fellowship and sympathy of the companions in arms, are retained. These are, in fact, emphasized for the child reader, by the deletion of the amours of Milady and details of court intrigue of which the normal child understands little and cares less.

The superb illustrations are reproduced in full color from original and remarkable drawings by Harold Brett, one of the foremost illustrators in this country.

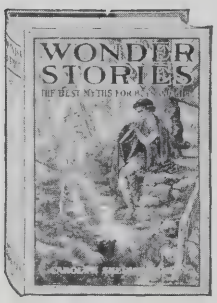
WONDER STORIES

THE BEST MYTHS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Illustrated in color by Clara M. Burd



The choicest stories of ancient mythology charmingly retold in simple language. These stories, older than history itself, possess a never-failing fascination for the young, and lay the foundation for a later appreciation of classic literature.

As a healthy stimulant for the youthful imagination, the myth is preferable to the ordinary fairy story. Every home and school library should contain this storehouse of entertainment and instruction.

Like all the Bradley Quality Books, Wonder Stories is written in accordance with a well-defined educational plan. The great lessons of life are instilled into the youthful mind in such a manner as to leave a vivid and lasting impression.

Price, $2.00

FOLK STORIES AND FABLES

These are stories that appeal to the child's imagination; the best of the folk and fairy tales and cumulative stories, all written in such simple vocabulary that they will form easy reading for the beginner. Full page pictures illustrate important features of the stories and help the reader to visualize them. Price, $0.85

STORIES AND RHYMES FOR A CHILD

A collection of original stories and verses that deal with the predominant interests of the little child—holidays, gardens, farm and home life, animals, and toys.

Illustrations in color and charcoal add to the book's attractiveness. Cloth.

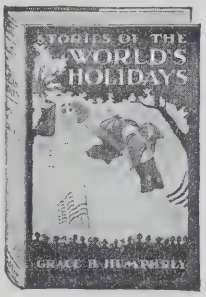
TWO BOOKS BY GRACE HUMPHREY

STORIES OF THE WORLD'S HOLIDAYS



A book that tells "why the flags fly" on certain days in many lands. The origin of the holidays, their meaning and the methods of observance are fully explained in graceful, simple language. There are nineteen chapters, each devoted to a different holiday, and the subjects include China's Feast of Lanterns, Japan's Children's Paradise, Ireland's St. Patrick Day, Saint Valentine's Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Lexington Day, France's Bastile Day, Poland's National Holiday and many others. The book is handsomely printed and bound.

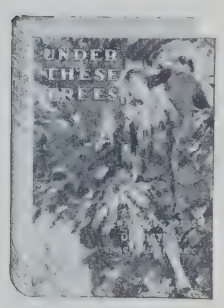
UNDER THESE TREES

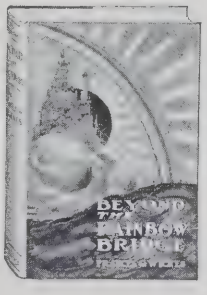


From time immemorial trees have played an important part in leading episodes of the world's history. In collecting authentic data concerning ten of the most important historical events in which famous trees have been recognized factors, and weaving the results of her research into interesting and informative stories, Miss Humphrey has contributed a work of real value to historical literature. The trees about which she writes are "The Fig Tree" of the Roman Forum, "The Trysting Oak" of Robin Hood's Band, Jeanne D'Arc's "Fairy Tree of Domremy," "The Royal Oak" of Charles II, "The Talking Oak of Dodona," "The Eliot Oak," "The Liberty Tree," in Boston, "The Penn Treaty Elm," "The Washington Elm," and "The Charter Oak" at Hartford.

Through each story runs a strain of true patriotism which appeals and thrills the reader. It is a book which young and old can read with interest, and profit by a new light upon some high spots of history. Price, $1.75

BEYOND THE RAINBOW BRIDGE

By FRANCES G. WICKES
Illustrated by Hildegarde Lupprian



The myths of that fairy city above the rainbow where the gold and marble palaces of the Norse Gods glisten in the sun. The tales of the valiant Icelandic heroes venturing forth across the Rainbow Bridge to do battle with the Ice Gods below.

The beautiful Northern folk-lore is compiled and revised by Miss Wickes in such a fashion as to impress the reader with its charm and the wonder of the early imagination.

BOOKS BY LAWTON B. EVANS

THE PIRATE OF BARATARIA

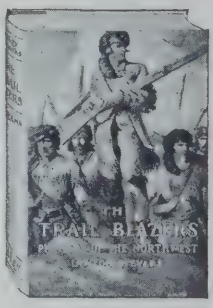
Illustrated by Oliver Kemp

Lafitte an outcast officer of Napoleon's army, after an unfortunate duel finds himself sailing the high seas for France. From the abuses of an English prison he escapes to become a renegade sea captain in a South American Republic. A wild adventurous spirit leads this beloved vagabond to the Gulf of Mexico where he preys upon overseas shipping. He later becomes an important factor in assisting the young American Navy in the waters around New Orleans in the war of 1812. A powerful and masterly historical novel for older boys and girls. Price, $1.75

THE TRAIL BLAZERS

PIONEERS OF THE NORTHWEST

Illustrated by Oliver Kemp



In all American History there is no more romantic record of achievement, patriotism and heroism, than the story of George Rogers Clark and his sturdy band of pioneers, and their conquest of the Northwest Territory by which five great states and part of another were added to our common union.

In "The Trail Blazers," Mr. Evans has brought to this historical episode the idealism and thrilling interest which only the master story teller can convey. His presentation is true to history in every detail, his people are the rugged, rough conquerors of the wilderness who built the foundation of our present day Americanism—brave and tenacious, high principled and patriotic.

The Trail Blazers, while written for younger readers, is a book which those of all ages will find entertaining and educational. Price, $1.75

OLD TIME TALES

Illustrated in color by E. P. Ottendorff

An unusual book containing in story form a general resume of World History from the earliest records to modern times. The first part of the book contains stories based on ancient mythology before the time of actual historical record, and the remainder of the volume includes authentic historical stories. The collection is so extreme and varied that from this one volume a teacher may select a story to supplement the history lesson of any period of the world's progress. Price, $2.00

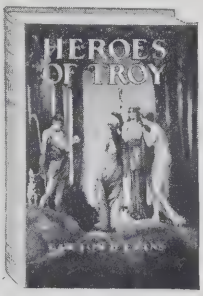
WORTH WHILE STORIES FOR EVERY DAY

This book contains 185 complete stories of miscellaneous character, choice selections from mythology, nursery rhymes retold in prose, Mother Goose tales, natural history stories, stories of birds and animals, biographical sketches of the great in history and stories of realism, each chosen for its ethical value. A unique feature is the moral of each story printed beneath its title so that the story teller may conveniently select a story adapted to illustrate any point or trait of character.

Price, $1.75

HEROES OF TROY

Illustrated by Carl Lotave



Facts and legends of the Trojan war and the wanderings of Ulysses, immortalized by Homer in the greatest of heroic epics, are here gathered into a book of absorbing interest, retold in simple prose which a child can understand. As a story for general use, or as supplementary reading to the study of Homeric literature, this book will prove of important value to both teacher and pupil. Fine illustrations visualize for the reader many of the stirring events which the text describes. Price, $2.00

HEROES OF ISRAEL

TALES FROM THE OLD TESTAMENT

Illustrated in color by Clara M. Burd

The story of the trial and hardships of the people of Israel is presented in a simple style without moral teachings, except as they come from the narrative itself. This volume will fill a long felt need in the nursery, where a Bible story is a fitting end for the day, and in the schoolroom, where the Bible is too much neglected and whose stories should be included among those that belong to the inheritance of every child. Price, $2.00

AMERICA FIRST

ONE HUNDRED STORIES FROM OUR OWN HISTORY

Illustrated by Milo K. Winter

To gratify the love of children for the dramatic and picturesque, to satisfy them with stories that are true, and to make them familiar with the great characters in the history of their own country, is the purpose of this volume. Beginning with the adventures of Lief the Lucky and ending with the exploits of Sergeant York, every story deals with persons and events vitally associated with the building of our nation. Price, $2.50

BOOKS BY MAUD LINDSAY

MOTHER STORIES

Illustrated

These stories are models of simplicity and purity in purpose and expression.

They are written with a knowledge of the likes and ways of children in the frequent repetition of verse and phrase; and the moral lesson does not stand out too pointedly.

Price, $1.50

MORE MOTHER STORIES

Illustrated

This second volume by Miss Lindsay is fully up to the standard of her earlier work, and had met with equal favor.

These stories are such as teachers and mothers may well study, and assuredly they will be given ample opportunity for every child who hears one of these tales will rapturously demand, "Tell it again!"

The Jack Lorimer Series

By WINN STANDISH

ALL COPYRIGHT TITLES

FOR BOYS 12 to 16 YEARS

Handsomely Bound in Cloth. Full Library Size.

PRICE, 60 CENTS PER VOLUME. NET.....

CAPTAIN JACK LORIMER; or, The Young Athlete of Millvale High.

Jack Lorimer is a fine example of the all-around American high-school boy. His fondness for clean, honest sport of all kinds will strike a chord of sympathy among athletic youths.

JACK LORIMER'S CHAMPIONS; or, Sports on Land and Lake.

There is a lively story woven in with the athletic achievements, which are all right, since the book has been O.K'd by Chadwick, the Nestor of American sporting journalism.

JACK LORIMER'S HOLIDAYS; or, Millvale High in Camp.

It would be well not to put this book into a boy's hands until the chores are finished, otherwise they might be neglected.

JACK LORIMER'S SUBSTITUTE; or, The Acting Captain of the Team.

On the sporting side, the book takes up football, wrestling, and tobogganing. There is a good deal of fun in this book and plenty of action.

JACK LORIMER, FRESHMAN; or, From Millvale High to Exmouth.

Jack and some friends he makes crowd innumerable happenings into an exciting freshman year at one of the leading Eastern colleges. The book is typical of the American college boy's life, and there is a lively story, interwoven with feats on the gridiron, hockey, basketball and other clean, honest sports for which Jack Lorimer stands.

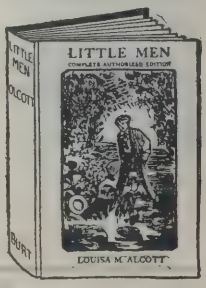
LITTLE MEN

Complete Authorized Edition

By LOUISE M. ALCOTT

A Sequel to "LITTLE WOMEN," Cloth, 12 Mo. JACKET IN FOUR COLORS

PRICE 60 CENTS. NET



The story of life at Plumfield with Jo's boys.

Few books for or about children have been so thoroughly taken into the hearts of the American people as Louisa M. Alcott's stories; among them "Little Men" ranks second only to "Little Women."

Jo grows up, is the presiding genius of her school at Plumfield, where she and Professor Bhaer are the wise and loving autocrats of a houseful of young people.

Sensitive, music-loving Nat, harum-scarum Tommy, studious Demi, undisciplined Dan, domestic little Daisy and hoydenish Nan are a few of the active-minded, true-to-life children who romp into and out of trouble all through this endearing story.

An Old-Fashioned Girl

(Authorized Edition)

By LOUISA M. ALCOTT

Author of "Little Women," Etc.

Cloth Bound, Wrapper in Colors, Drawn by Jessie Wilcox Smith

Being one of the illustrations from the Little, Brown & Company high-priced edition

PRICE 60 CENTS. NET

No books of their class have ever been read with greater delight than the Alcott Stories. "An Old-Fashioned Girl" is one of the best of them, if a comparison can be made in the list.

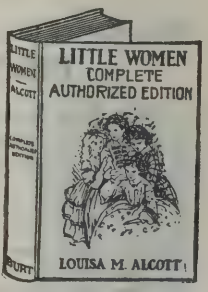
Miss Alcott in this story describes "The good old Fashion, which makes women truly beautiful and honored, and renders home what it should be, a happy place where parents and children, brothers and sisters learn to love and know and help one another." The book is to be welcomed among the books for girls, because of its wholesome spirit and happy atmosphere.

Little Women

By LOUISA M. ALCOTT

Cloth, 12mo.

PRICE 60 CENTS. NET



Jacket in Four Colors. Drawn by Jessie Wilcox Smith.

This being one of the illustrations from the original Little, Brown & Co. high-priced edition.

Of the many books for girls and boys that have come and gone in the fifty years since "Little Women" was first published, not one has had such a lasting popularity.

"Little Women" has always been considered the most popular girls' story that has ever been written. Children of the present day are just as eager to read of Meg, Jo, Amy and Beth as the children of the earlier generations.

Already "Little Women" has been read by millions of children, and is certain to be read by many generations to come. This story will never grow old.

The American Library Association lists "Little Women" as the most popular juvenile title ever published, and goes further by saying that it is a book that should be permanently in every home.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S WELCOME

Dear Children.

Opening the covers of a book is like opening the front door of a house, so that you may go inside and have jolly times. And how good it is when some one who loves you stands at the front door and says:

"Oh, how glad I am to see you!"

That is what I say to you now, as you open this book.

"Come in and have some jolly fun with me!"

You know that I love you, children, and I want you to enjoy these stories about me. They tell how I escaped from the bad chaps who wanted to catch me. The pictures show what tricks I played on the Fuzzy Fox, the Woozie Wolf, and the Puffing Pipsisewah so they might not nibble my ears. Then, also, there are tales of some of the animal children whom you well know.

So, then, having opened the covers of this book, come in and read! Stay as long as you wish, and, when you go out, invite some one else to enter. Your loving friend,

UNCLE WIGGILY.

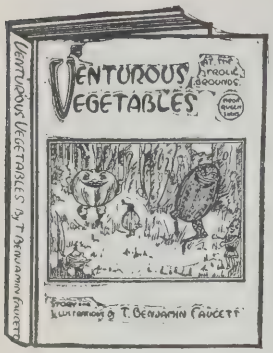
Nearly every event in the life of a child, from the first tooth that needs pulling, to the first tumble and fall, is told of in connection with some delightfully imagined happening involving Uncle Wiggily. There are little lessons for the children in contentment, happiness, kindness to animals, bravery and self-sacrifive. To a child, gettting lost or cuttting a finger is an event of great moment, and it is just such events as these around which the stories are constructed.



The Moon Queen Series

By T. BENJAMIN FAUCETT

Cloth Bound. Profusely Illustrated. Frontispiece in Color.

PRICE 60 CENTS EACH. NET.....

For Boys and Girls from 5 to 10 Years of Age.

FOUR BOOKS of entertaining and instructive adventures in nature's wonderland. New ideas featuring subjects most familiar to boys and girls. Stories of funny little people who come from the ground, the bushes and the trees, at Moon Queen's command. Each character an exact representation of an animated Vegetable, Flower, Fruit or Berry. Frontispiece shows them in comparative sizes and natural colors, while their individual characteristics are cleverly woven into the stories.

Every Chapter Attractively Illustrated, Full of Action, Humorous Situations and Valuable Information.

....VENTUROUS VEGETABLES.

These, funny, little people meet Matthew Mole, Christy Crow, Reuben Rabbit and other interesting characters while on their way to the Frolic Grounds.

....FROLICSOME FLOWERS.

A giant Bumblebee takes them to the wonderful Rajah Rug, where they have many adventures with the Prince and Princess, Edgar Eagle, Henrietta Hummingbird, and others.

....FOLKSY FRUITS.

They take a marvelous trip from Tony's store to Opal Orchard and meet Matthew Mole, Teddy and Tommy Toad, Gip Gopher and many other oddities.

....BRAINY BERRIES.

Their interesting and exciting adventures in the weird depths of Crystal Cave acquaint them with Jolly Jim, Billy Bear, the Waltzing Waiters, and other equally odd and amusing individuals.

PRESENT DAY ETIQUETTE

INCLUDING SOCIAL FORMS

By VIRGINIA VAN DE WATER

Approved by Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson

12 MO. CLOTH BOUND. $1.00. NET.....

Mrs. Van de Water belongs to an old New York family and her fine manners and social observance are inborn. She is a daughter of Marion Harland and sister of Albert Payson Terhune, the well-known novelist. Her experience enables her to write an etiquette book of unequaled excellence. She writes of rules and regulations in a concise way quickly readable and understood, In writing this book, Mrs. Van de Water has had in mind not the immensely rich, but people of average means and aspirations.

This volume is especially rich in the form letters which it supplies to meet every social occasion—invitations, acceptances, letters of introduction, of condolence, etc., etc.

A complete index makes possible immediate reference to the discussion of every doubtful point.

As Mrs. Gibson says in her introduction, "An intelligent adherence to the suggestions given in this book will lead any man to greater business and social success, and any woman to added graciousness and charm."

LIST OF PUBLICATIONS BY DESIGNATING NUMBER *

Index Medicus. Classified Record of the Current Medical Literature of the World. Publication of the Index Medicus began in 1879 and was discontinued in 1899. The first series, comprising 21 volumes, is now out of print, though copies may sometimes be obtained from dealers in second-hand books. The second series, issued monthly, was begun in 1903 under the auspices of the Carnegie Institution of Washington and continued in that form until 1920. The third series, issued quarterly, dates from 1921 through 1926.

In January 1927, the Cumulative Quarterly Index, issued by the American Medical Association, was joined with the Index Medicus in a new publication known as the Quarterly Cumulative Index Medicus. This journal will be published by the American Medical Association, 535 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois, to which all communications and subscriptions should be sent. The first number will appear in April, 1927.

All orders for copies of the second and third series of the Index Medicus should be sent to the Carnegie Institution of Washington, Washington, D. C.

MAYER, ALFRED G.—Ecology of the Murray Island Coral Reef. 48 pp., 19 pls., 9 figs.
VAUGHAN, THOMAS WAYLAND.—Some Shoal-Water Corals from Murray Island (Australia), Cocos-Keeling Islands, and Fanning Island. 199 pp., 73 pls., 2 figs.
VAUGHAN, THOMAS WAYLAND.—Some Shoal-Water Corals from Murray Island, Australia, and Comparisons of them with Samples from Florida and the Bahamas. 54 pp., 2 pls., 2 figs.
GOLDMAN, MARCUS ISAAC.—Composition of Two Murray Island Bottom Samples according to Source of Material. 14 pp.
CUSHMAN, JOSEPH A.—Foraminifera from Murray Island, Australia. 2 pp., 1 pl.
HOWE, MARSHALL A.—Calcareous Algæ from Murray Island, Australia, and Cocos-Keeling Islands. 6 pp., 3 pls.
MANN, ALBERT.—Diatoms from Murray Island, Australia. 2 pp.
DOLE, RICHARD B., and ALFRED A. CHAMBERS.—Salinity of Ocean Water at Fowey Rocks, Florida. 16 pp., 1 pl., 2 figs.
WELLS, ROGER C.—The Solubility of Calcite in Sea-water in Contact with the Atmosphere, and its Variation with Temperature. 3 pp.
VAUGHAN, THOMAS WAYLAND.—The Temperature of the Florida Coral-reef Tract. 20 pp., 3 figs.
CARY, L. R.—Gorgonaceæ as a Factor in the Formation of Coral Reefs. 20 pp., 6 pls.

214. Clark, H. L. The Echinoderm Fauna of Torres Strait: Its Composition and its Origin (Paper from the Department of Marine Biology of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Vol. X.) Quarto, viii + 233 pages, 40 plates. (1921) $15.50

CONTRIBUTIONS TO AMERICAN ECONOMIC HISTORY:

215A. Johnson, E. R., T. W. Van Metre, G. G. Huebner, and D. S. Hanchett, with an introductory note by H. W. Farnam. History of Domestic and Foreign Commerce of the United States. Octavo (2 vols.) . . . Out of print

Vol. I. xv + 363 pages, maps 1 to 5. Vol. II. ix + 398 pages, maps 6 to 10.

221. Mall, Franklin P. On the Fate of the Human Embryo in Tubal Pregnancy. (Contribution to Embryology No. 1. Vol. I.) Quarto, 104 pp., 11 pls., 24 text-figures. (1915) $5.00

222. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6. Vol. II. Quarto, 108 pp., 10 plates, 23 text-figures. (1915) . . . . . In cloth, $3.50

This book contains the following papers, not sold separately:

WATT, JAMES C.—Description of Two Young Twin Human Embryos with 17–19 paired Somites. (Contribution No. 2.) 39 pages, 4 plates, 7 text-figures.

CLARK, ELIOT R.—An Anomaly of the Thoracic Duct with a bearing on the Embryology of the Lymphatic System. (Contribution No. 3.) 10 pages, 3 text-figures.

MEYER, A. W.—Fields, Graphs, and other Data on Fetal Growth. (Contribution No. 4.) 14 pages, 13 text-figures.

CORNER, GEORGE W.—The Corpus Luteum of Pregnancy, as it is in Swine. (Contribution No. 5.) 26 pages, 3 plates.

ESSICK, CHARLES R.—Transitory Cavities in the Corpus Striatum of the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 6.) 14 pages, 3 plates.

223. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 7, 8, and 9. Vol. III. Quarto, 90 pages, 12 plates, 12 text-figures. (1915) $5.00

This book contains the following papers, not sold separately:

SABIN, FLORENCE R.—On the Fate of the Posterior Cardinal Veins and their Relation to the Development of the Vena Cava and Azygos in the Embryo Pig. (Contribution No. 7.) 32 pages, 7 plates.

DUESBERG, J.—Recherches Cytologiques sur la Fécondation des Ascidiens et sur leur Développement. (Contribution No. 8.) 38 pages, 3 plates, 12 text-figures.

SHIPLEY, PAUL G., and GEORGE B. WISLOCKI.—The Histology of the Poison Glands of Bufo agua and its Bearing upon the formation of Epinephrin within the Glands. (Contribution No. 9.) 20 pages, 2 plates.

224. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 10 to 13. Vol. IV. Quarto, 106 pages, 13 plates. (1916) $3.50

This book contains the following papers, not sold separately:

MALL, F. P.—The Human Magma Réticulé in Normal and in Pathological Development. (Contribution No. 10.) 22 pages, 3 plates.

COWDRY, E. V.—The Structure of Chromophile Cells of the Nervous System. (Contribution No. 11.) 18 pages, 1 plate.

CUNNINGHAM, R. S.—On the Development of the Lymphatics of the Lungs in the Embryo Pig. (Contribution No. 12.) 24 pages, 5 plates.

MACKLIN, CHARLES C.—Binucleate Cells in Tissue Cultures. (Contribution No. 13.) 38 pages, 4 plates.

225. Weed, Lewis H. The Development of the Cerebro-Spinal Spaces in Pig and in Man. (Contribution to Embryology, No. 14. Vol. V.) Quarto, 116 pages, 17 plates. (1917) $6.00

226. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 15 to 19. Vol. VI. Quarto, 168 pages, 21 plates, 25 text-figures. (1917) $7.00

MALL, FRANKLIN P.—Cyclopia in the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 15.) 29 pages, 3 plates, 7 text-figures.

226. Continued.

THURLOW, MADGE DEG.—Quantitative Studies on Mitochondria in Nerve-Cells. (Contribution No. 16.) 10 pages, 1 plate.

LEWIS, MARGARET REED.—Development of Connective Tissue Fibers in Tissue Cultures of Chick Embryos. (Contribution No. 17.) 16 pages, 2 plates.

SABIN, FLORENCE R.—Origin and Development of the Primitive Vessels of the Chick and of the Pig. (Contribution No. 18.) 64 pages, 7 plates, 8 text-figures.

JOHNSON, FRANKLIN PARADISE.—A Human Embryo of Twenty-four Pairs of Somites. (Contribution No. 19.) 44 pages, 8 plates, 9 text-figures.

227. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 20 to 23. Vol. VII. Quarto, 136 pages, 16 plates, 9 text-figures. (1918) $4.00

This book contains the following papers, not sold separately:

STREETER, GEORGE L.—The Histogenesis and Growth of the Otic Capsule and its Contained Periotic Tissue-spaces in the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 20.) 50 pages, 4 plates, 4 text-figures.

VAN DER STRICHT, O.—The Genesis and Structure of the Membrana Tectoria and the Crista Spiralis of the Cochlea. (Contribution No. 21.) 32 pages, 4 plates.

WHEELER, THEODORA.—Study of a Human Spina Bifida Monster with Encephaloceles and other Abnormalities. (Contribution No. 22.) 23 pages, 4 plates.

INGALLS, N. W.—A Human Embryo before the Appearance of the Myotomes. (Contribution No. 23.) 24 pages, 4 plates, 5 text-figures.

228. Crampton, Henry E. Studies on the Variation, Distribution, and Evolution of the Genus Partula: The Species Inhabiting Tahiti. Quarto, 313 pages, 34 plates, 7 figures. (1916) $15.00

228A. Crampton, Henry E. Studies on the Variation, Distribution, and Evolution of the Genus Partula: The Species of the Mariana Islands (Guam and Saipan). Quarto, vii + 116, 14 pls., 3 figs., 62 tables. (1925) . . $3.75

229. Barus, Carl. Experiments with the Displacement Interferometer. Octavo, vi + 113 pages, 66 figs. (1915) $1.00

230. (See Nos. 60, 80, 110, 130, 160, 170, 180, 190, 210.) Jones, Harry C., and COLLABORATORS. Conductivities and Viscosities in Pure and in Mixed Solvents: The Radiometric Measurements of the Ionization Constants of Indicators. Octavo, vii + 175 pages, 3 plates, 21 figs. (1915) $2.00

231. Benedict, F. G., and H. Murschhauser. Energy Transformations during Horizontal Walking. Octavo, 100 pages, 7 figs. (1915) $1.00

232. Dodge, Raymond, and F. G. Benedict. The Psychological Effects of Alcohol. An Experimental Investigation of the Effects of Moderate Doses of Ethyl Alcohol on a Related Group of Neuro-muscular Processes in Man. Octavo, 281 pages, 1 plate, 32 figures. (1915) $2.50

233. Benedict, F. G., and F. B. Talbot. The Physiology of the Newborn Infant: Character and Amount of the Katabolism. Octavo, 126 pages, 10 figures. (1915) $1.00

234. Hill, Roscoe R. Descriptive Catalogue of the Documents relating to the History of the United States in the Papeles Procedentes de Cuba, deposited in the Archivo General de Indias at Seville. 8vo, 537 pp. (1916) . $4.00

235. Hale, George E. Ten Years' Work of a Mountain Observatory: A Brief Account of the Mount Wilson Solar Observatory. 12mo, 99 pages, 65 figures. (1915) . . . . In paper cover, 50 cents; in cloth, 75 cents

236. Davenport, C. B. The Feebly Inhibited: Nomadism or the Wandering Impulse with Special Reference to Heredity. Inheritance of Temperament. (Paper No. 24, Station for Experimental Evolution.) Octavo, 160 pages, 89 figs. (1915) $1.50

237. Morgan, T. H., and C. B. Bridges. Sex-linked Inheritance in Drosophila. Octavo, 87 pages, 2 plates, 8 figs. (1916) $1.50

(Part II): Octavo, 146 pages, 97 figs. (1917) $1.50
(Part III): Displacement Interferometry by the Aid of Achromatic Fringes. Octavo, 100 pages, 71 figs. (1919) $1.50
(Part IV): Displacement Interferometry by the Aid of Achromatic Fringes. Octavo, 122 pages, 119 figs. (1919) $2.00

250. Knobel, Edward B. Ulugh Beg's Catalogue of Stars, revised from all Persian Manuscripts existing in Great Britain, with a Vocabulary of Persian and Arabic Words. Quarto, 109 pages, 1 plate. (1917) $2.00

251. Papers from the Department of Marine Biology of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Vol. XI. Octavo, 365 pp., 20 pls., 59 figs. (1917) $5.00
This book contains the following papers, not sold separately:

MAYER, ALFRED G.—Nerve-conduction in Cassiopea xamachana. 20 pages, 15 figs.
MCCLENDON, J. F., C. E. GAULT, and S. MULHOLLAND.—The Hydrogen Ion Concentration, CO_2 Tension, and CO_2 Content of Sea-water. 49 pages, 24 figs.
GOLDFARB, A. J.—Variability of Eggs and Sperm of Sea-urchins. 16 pages.
PHILLIPS, ALEXANDER H.—Analytical Search for Metals in Tortugas Marine Organisms. 4 pages.
HATAI, S.—On the Composition of Cassiopea xamachana and the Changes in it after Starvation. 14 pp., 1 fig.
CLARK, H. L.—Habits and Reactions of a Comatulid Tropiometra carinata. 8 pp.
CARY, L. R.—Studies on the Physiology of the Nervous System of Cassiopea xamachana. 49 pages, 18 figs.

HARVEY, E. N.—The Chemistry of Light-production in Luminous Organisms. 63 pages, 1 fig.
HARVEY, ETHEL BROWNE.—A Physiological Study of Specific Gravity and of Luminescence in Noctiluca, with Special Reference to Anesthesia. 18 pages.
TREADWELL, A. L.—Polychætous Annelids from Florida, Porto Rico, Bermuda, and the Bahamas. 13 pages, 3 plates.
JORDAN, H. E.—Microscopic Structure of Striped Muscle of Limulus. 17 pages, 3 pls.
JORDAN, H. E.—Hemopoiesis in the Mongoose Embryo, with special reference to the Activity of the Endothelium, including that of the Yolk-sac. 22 pp., 4 pls.
JORDAN, H. E.—Embryonic History of the Germ-cells of the Loggerhead Turtle, Caretta caretta. 32 pages, 6 plates.
JORDAN, H. E.—Atresia of the Esophagus in the Loggerhead Turtle Embryo, Caretta caretta, a Normal Development Condition. 15 pages, 4 plates.

252. Paper from the Department of Marine Biology of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Vol. XII. Octavo, 263 pp., 29 pls., 28 figs. (1918) . $5.00

This book contains the following papers, not sold separately:

FOWLER, H. W.—Some Amphibians and Reptiles from Porto Rico and Virgin Islands. 15 pp., 1 pl., 6 figs.
SILVESTER, CHARLES F.—Fishes New to the Fauna of Porto Rico, with Descriptions of Eight New Species. 8 pp., 4 pls.
GUDGER, E. W.—Oral Gestation in the Gaff-topsail Catfish, Felichthys felis. 28 pp., 4 pls.
GUDGER, E. W.—Sphyræna barracuda: Its Morphology, Habits, and History. 56 pp., 7 pls., 5 figs.
BOWMAN, H. H. M.—Botanical Ecology of the Dry Tortugas. 30 pp., 6 pls., 7 figs.
WHITE, E. GRACE.—The Origin of the Electric Organs in Astroscopus guttatus. 34 pp., 7 pls., 1 fig.
MAYER, A. G.—Toxic Effects due to High Temperature. 6 pp.
MAYER, A. G.—Nerve-conduction in Diluted and in Concentrated Sea-water. 5 pp., 1 fig.
CARY, LEWIS R.—A Study of Respiration in Alcyonaria. 7 pp.
BALL, S. C.—The Migration of Insects to Rebecca Shoal Light-Station and the Tortugas Islands, with special reference to Mosquitoes and Flies. 20 pp.
MCCLENDON, J. F.—On Changes in the Sea and their Relation to Organisms. 46 pp., 8 figs.

253. Ivens, Walter G. Dictionary and Grammar of the Language of Sa'a and Ulawa, Solomon Islands. With appendices. Octavo, vii + 249 pp., 12 plates, 1 fig. (1918) $3.00

256. Dickson, L. E. History of the Theory of Numbers. Octavo.

Vol. I. Divisibility and Primality. xii + 486 pp. (1919) . . Out of print
Vol. II. Diophantine Analysis. xxv + 803 pages, 12 figs. (1920) Out of print
Vol. III. Quadratic and Higher Forms. v + 313 pages. (1923) . . . $3.25

257. Whitman, Charles Otis. Posthumous Works of, Edited by Oscar Riddle. (Paper No. 28, Station Exper. Evolution.) Quarto. (1919) . Set, $30.00

Some copies of volume III are for sale separately at $3.00.

Vol. I. Orthogenetic Evolution in Pigeons. x + 194 pp., 88 pls., 36 figs.
Vol. II. Inheritance, Fertility, and the Dominance of Sex and Color in Hybrids of Wild Species of Pigeons. 224 pages, 39 plates, 11 figures.
Vol. III. The Behavior of Pigeons. Edited by Harvey A. Carr. xi + 161 pages. (Paper only.)

258. Rowe, L. S. Federal System of Argentine Republic. Octavo, 168 pp. (1921) $2.00

259. Davenport, Charles B., and Mary F. Scudder. Naval Officers: Their Heredity and Development. (Paper No. 29, Station for Experimental Evolution.) Octavo, iv + 236 pages, 60 charts. (1919) $3.00

260. Davis, Paul B., and COLLABORATORS. Studies on Solution in its relation to Light-Absorption, Conductivity, Viscosity, and Hydrolysis: A Report upon a number of Experimental Investigations carried out in the Laboratory of the late Professor Harry C. Jones. Octavo, 144 pages, 26 figs. (1918) $2.00

261. Benedict, Francis G., and Thorne M. Carpenter. Food Ingestion and Energy Transformations with special reference to the Stimulating Effect of Nutrients. Octavo, 355 pages, 3 figs. (1918) $3.50

262. Bergen, Henry. The Fall of Princes, by John Lydgate. Edited from the best Manuscripts, with Bibliographical Introduction, Notes, and Glossary. Octavo. In four parts.

Part I. Books I and II. Pages lxv + 328, 1 fig. (1921)
Part II. Books III–V. Pages 329–673. (1923)
Part III. Books VI–IX. Pages 675–1044, 2 figures. (1923) . . . $6.50
Part IV. Bibliographical Introduction, Notes on Text, Glossary, Index.

263. Tower, W. L. The Mechanism of Evolution in Leptinotarsa. Octavo, viii + 1–340 pages, 19 plates, 156 figs. (1918) . (Appendix.) Breitenbecher, J. K. The Relation of Water to the Behavior of the Potato Beetle in a Desert. Octavo, pp. 341–384, 5 figs. (Not sold separately.) $8.00

264. Sturtevant, A. H. An Analysis of the Effects of Selection. Octavo, 68 pages, 1 plate, 14 figures. (1918) $1.00

265. Laughlin, Harry H. The Duration of the Several Mitotic Stages in the Dividing Root-tip Cells of the Common Onion. (Paper No. 30, Station for Experimental Evolution.) Octavo, 48 pages, 19 charts. (1919) . $1.50

266. Miles, Walter R. Effect of Alcohol on Psycho-Physiological Functions. Octavo, 144 pages, 15 figures. (1918) $1.50

270. Reichert, E. T. A Biochemic Basis for the Study of Problems of Taxonomy, Heredity, Evolution, etc., with especial reference to the Starches and the Tissues of Parent and Hybrid Stocks, and to the Starches and the Hemoglobins of Varieties, Species, and Genera. 4vo. (1919) $18.00

Part I. Summaries and Comparisons of the Properties of the Starches and of the Tissues of Parent-stocks and Hybrid-stocks. Applications of the Results of the Researches to the Germ-plasm, Variations, Fluctuations, Sports, Mutants, Species, Taxonomy, Heredity, etc. Notes and Conclusions. Pages xi + 1 to 376, 34 plates, 820 charts.

Part II. Special, General, and Comparative Laboratory Data of the Properties of the Starches and of the Tissues of Parent-stocks and Hybrid-stocks. Pages vii + 377 to 834.

271. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 24 to 26. Vol. VIII. Quarto, 198 pages, 10 plates, 23 text-figures. (1918) . . . . . Cloth, $6.00

This book contains the following papers:

Streeter, George L.—The Development Alterations in the Vascular System of the Brain of the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 24.) 38 pp., 5 pls., 12 text-figures.

Cowdry, E. V.—The Mitochondrial Constituents of Protoplasm. (Contribution No. 25.) 120 pages, 1 plate, 9 text-figures.

Kunitomo, Kanae.—The Development and Reduction of the Tail and the Caudal End of the Spinal Cord. (Contribution No. 26.) 38 pages, 4 plates, 2 text-figures.

272. Contributions to Embryology. Nos. 27 to 46. Vol. IX. Quarto, 561 pages, 54 plates, 77 text-figures. (1920) . . . . . Cloth, $19.00

This volume (a memorial to Franklin Paine Mall) contains the following papers:

Macklin, Charles C.—The Development and Function of Macrophages in the Repair of Experimental Bone-Wounds in Rats vitally stained with Trypan-Blue. (Contribution No. 27.) 46 pages, 4 plates.

Duesberg, J.—Cytoplasmic Structures in the Seminal Epithelium of the Opossum. (Contribution No. 28.) 38 pages, 2 plates, 5 text-figures.

Corner, George W.—On the Widespread Occurrence of Reticular Fibrils produced by Capillary Endothelium. (Contribution No. 29.) 9 pages, 2 plates.

272. Continued.

WHEELER, THEODORA.—Variability in the Spinal Column as regards Defective Neural Arches (Rudimentary Spina Bifida). (Contribution No. 30.) 13 pages, 11 text-figures.

VAN DER STRICHT, O.—The Arrangement and Structure of Sustentacular Cells and Hair Cells in the Developing Organ of Corti. (Contribution No. 31.) 34 pages, 4 plates.

RETZER, ROBERT.—The Sino-ventricular Bundle: A Functional Interpretation of Morphological Findings. (Contribution No. 32.) 14 pages, 1 plate.

JENKINS, GEORGE B.—A Study of the Superior Olive. (Contribution No. 33.) 16 pages, 2 plates, 1 text-figure.

SCHULTZ, ADOLPH H.—The Development of the External Nose in Whites and Negroes. (Contribution No. 34.) 18 pages, 1 plate, 7 text-figures.

LEWIS, MARGARET REED.—Muscular Contraction in Tissue Cultures. (Contribution No. 35.) 22 pages, 2 plates, 6 text-figures.

SABIN, FLORENCE R.—Studies on the Origin of Blood-vessels and of Red Blood-corpuscles as seen in the Living Blastoderm of Chicks during the Second Day of Incubation. (Contribution No. 36.) 50 pages, 6 plates, 1 text-figure.

BEAN, ROBERT B.—Notes on the Post-natal Growth of the Heart, Kidneys, Liver, and Spleen in Man. (Contribution No. 37.) 22 pages, 8 text-figures.

MILLER, WILLIAM S.—A Morphological Study of the Tracheal and Bronchial Cartilages. (Contribution No. 38.) 14 pages, 2 plates, 11 text-figures.

LEWIS, WARREN H.—The Cartilaginous Skull of a Human Embryo 21 millimeters in length. (Contribution No. 39.) 26 pages, 5 plates.

MEYER, ARTHUR W.—Hydatiform Degeneration in Tubal and Uterine Pregnancy. (Contribution No. 40.) 40 pages, 6 plates.

MYERS, BURTON D.—A Study of the Development of Certain Features of the Cerebellum. (Contribution No. 41.) 11 pages, 6 text-figures.

ESSICK, CHARLES R.—Formation of Macrophages by the Cells lining the Subarachnoid Cavity in response to the Stimulus of Particulate Matter. (Contribution No. 42.) 12 pages, 1 plate.

STREETER, GEORGE L.—A Human Embryo (Mateer) of the Presomite Period. (Contribution No. 43.) 36 pages, 7 plates, 4 text-figures, 3 charts.

BARDEEN, C. R.—The Height-weight Index of Build in relation to Linear and Volumetric Proportions and Surface Area of the Body during Post-natal Development. (Contribution No. 46.) 72 pages, 11 charts, 2 text-figures.

273. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 47 and 48. Vol. X. Quarto, iii + 103 pages, 16 plates. (1921) $6.00

This book contains the following papers:

EVANS, HERBERT MCLEAN, and KATHARINE J. SCOTT.—On the Differential Reaction to Vital Dyes of the Two Great Groups of Connective-Tissue Cells. (Contribution No. 47.) 55 pages, 11 plates.

MACKLIN, CHARLES C.—The Skull of a Human Fetus of 43 Millimeters Greatest Length. (Contribution No. 48.) 48 pages, 5 plates.

274. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 49 to 55. Vol. XI. Quarto, 173 pages, 15 plates, 6 charts, 12 text-figures. (1920) . . . . . In cloth, $15.00

This book contains the following papers:

DANCHAKOFF, VERA.—Myeloid Metaplasia of the Embryonic Mesenchyme in relation to Cell Potentialities and Differential Factors. (Contribution No. 49.) 32 pp., 5 pls.

LINEBACK, PAUL E.—Studies on the Longitudinal Muscle of the Human Colon, with special reference to the Development of the Tæniæ. (Contribution No. 50.) 12 pp., 8 text-figures.

WISLOCKI, GEORGE B.—Experimental Studies on Fetal Absorption. (Contribution No. 51.) 16 pp., 4 pls., 1 text-figure.

I. The Vitally Stained Fetus.

II. The Behavior of the Fetal Membranes and Placenta of the Cat Toward Colloidal Dyes Injected into the Maternal Blood-stream.

INGALLS, N. WILLIAM.—A Human Embryo at the Beginning of Segmentation, with special reference to the Vascular System. (Contribution No. 52.) 30 pp., 5 plates, 1 text-figure.

BARRY, LEE WILLIS.—The Effects of Inanition in the Pregnant Albino Rat with Special Reference to the Changes in the Relative Weights of the Various Parts, Systems, and Organs of the Offspring. (Contribution No. 53.) 46 pp.

CORNER, GEORGE W.—A Case of True Lateral Hermaphroditism in a Pig with Functional Ovary. (Contribution No. 54.) 6 pp., 1 pl.

STREETER, GEORGE L.—Weight, Sitting Height, Head Size, Foot Length, and Menstrual Age of the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 55.) 28 pp., 2 text-figures, 6 charts.

275. Contributions to Embryology, No. 56. Vol. XII. Quarto. (1921) . $6.00

MALL, F. P., and A. W. MEYER.—Studies on Abortuses: A Survey of the Pathologic Ova in the Carnegie Embryological Collection. 364 pp., 24 plates, 6 text-figures.

276. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 57 to 64. Vol. XIII. Quarto, 146 pages, 15 plates, 25 text-figures, 1 chart. (1921) $4.00

This book contains the following papers:

CASH, JAMES R.—On the Development of the Lymphatics in the Stomach of the Embryo Pig. (Contribution No. 57.) 15 pages, 3 plates, 3 text-figures.

REICHERT, F. L.—On the Fate of the Primary Lymph-Sacs in the Abdominal Region of the Pig, and the Development of Lymph-Channels in the Abdominal and Pelvic Regions. (Contribution No. 58.) 23 pages, 5 text-figures.

JENKINS, GEORGE B.—Relative Weight and Volume of the Component Parts of the Brain of the Human Embryo at Different Stages of Development. (Contribution No. 59.) 20 pages, 12 text-figures, 1 chart.

CORNER, GEORGE W.—Abnormalities of the Mammalian Embryo occurring before Implantation. (Contribution No. 60.) 6 pages, 2 plates, 1 text-figure.

SPAULDING, M. H.—Development of the External Genitalia in the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 61.) 22 pages, 4 plates, 2 text-figures.

WISLOCKI, GEORGE B.—Further Experimental Studies on Fetal Absorption: (Contribution No. 62.)

III. Behavior of the Fetal Membranes and Placenta of the Guinea-Pig toward Trypan-Blue injected into the Maternal Blood-stream. 8 pages.

IV. Behavior of the Placenta and Fetal Membranes of the Rabbit toward Trypan-Blue injected into the Maternal Blood-Stream. 5 pages, 1 plate.

WISLOCKI, GEORGE B., and J. A. KEY.—Distribution of Mitochondria in the Placenta. (Contribution No. 63.) 13 pages, 1 plate.

CORNER, G. W.—Cyclic Changes in the Ovaries and Uterus of the Sow, and Their Relation to Mechanism of Implantation. (Contribution No. 64.) 30 pp., 4 pls., 2 text-figures.

277. Contributions to Embryology, Nos. 65 to 71. Vol. XIV. Quarto, iii + 162 pages, 17 plates, 41 text-figures. (1922) $3.50

This book contains the following papers:

SABIN, F. R.—Direct Growth of Veins by Sprouting. (Contribution No. 65.) 10 pages, 1 plate.

BUELL, C. E.—Origin of the Pulmonic Vessels in the Chick. (Contribution No. 66.) 16 pages, 2 plates.

DOAN, CHARLES A.—The Circulation of the Bone Marrow. (Contribution No. 67.) 19 pages, 1 plate, 3 text-figures.

CONGDON, E. G.—Transformation of the Aortic-Arch System During the Development of the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 68.) 64 pages, 3 plates, 28 text-figures.

STREETER, GEORGE L.—Development of the Auricle in the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 69.) 28 pages, 6 plates, 8 text-figures.

WOOLLARD, H. H.—The Development of the Principal Arterial Stems in the Fore-limb of the Pig. (Contribution No. 70.) 16 pages, 2 plates.

FINLEY, ELLEN B.—Development of the Subcutaneous Vascular Plexus in the Head of the Human Embryo. (Contribution No. 71.) 7 pages, 2 plates, 2 text-figures.

BUGLES IN THE NIGHT. By Barry Benefield, author of "The Chicken-Wagon Family," "Short Turns," etc. 12mo, 309 pages. $2.00

This is the story of Easley Wheatley, C.S.A., who one day has the notion that life for him is over and retires behind the doors of a home for Confederate veterans. Then on a rare evening's escapade he meets young Alice Kibbe, who is desperately in need of all the courage and gentleness and gaiety which old Easley possesses. They travel far north and east—she from the life into which fate was about to force her, and he from the home for decrepit soldiers where his spirit and vigor made him ironically out of place.

Embued with true Benefieldian whimsical bravado they face the bitter battle of New York: and finally, at their last stand on the "Old Lame Duck" a discarded scow on a small tidal creek in South Brooklyn, romance and many surprising changes come into the life of Easley Wheatley and the tall white creature who is his "daughter."

The publishers and all who have read BUGLES IN THE NIGHT in advance of its publication, believe that Mr. Benefield has written another book as great as "The Chicken-Wagon Family."

THE WAY OF SINNERS. By F. R. Buckley. 12mo, 385 pages. $2.00

In THE WAY OF SINNERS F. R. Buckley has written a new kind of story—a modern novel in a medieval setting. Francesco Vitali, shop-boy, merchant, bandit and leader of a mercenary troop, has his parallel in every modern American city from New York to San Francisco. In his rise to leadership of the condottieri—war being Italy's chief industry at the time—he is but the prototype of the many men who consolidate and lead the more hum-drum industries of today. The many women he meets on his life-journey are decidedly modern for all their brocaded gowns and silver-heeled slippers. Even his love affairs savor of the present day, despite the stiletto play and the abductions under arms.

This is a wise and witty story, wide in its appeal and varied in its moods. But it impresses one with its cool intellectuality, its fine philosophy, and the wit and brilliance that is so characteristic of Francesco, his gay and loyal friends and his brave and worthy foes.

DAPHNE'S IN LOVE. By Negley Farson, author of "Sailing Across Europe," etc. 12mo, 225 pages. $2.00

Here is a stimulating story of the mad, frenzied mill-race of modern life; a story of Daphne Howard, young and beautiful, and of the two men she loved. Daphne comes to Chicago in search of a job. Her boldness pitches her headlong into the bitter business struggle of the city, and her beauty makes her the desire of all men.

Daphne's peculiar indecision, coupled with her impulsive nature, lead her into many precarious and saddening situations. The story races through a series of scenes as fleeting and glamorous as Daphne's mad career. The Chicago gold coast, the colorful bathing beaches, blatant roadhouses and cabarets are part of the intriguing mirage that is the background of Daphne's life.

Negley Farson has had a picturesque and adventurous career, and he knows this Chicago life of which he writes. He has made an impressive story of Daphne Howard's escapades among men.

DELIA DEMONSTRATES. By Berton Braley. 12mo, 349 pages. $2.00

A wholesome tale of modern business life, of a sophisticated and clever young commodity demonstrator, who meets men on their own level, and who achieves not only her own success, but introduces new ideas and modern methods into the business houses with which she comes in contact.

Delia Dean, a snappy, up-to-date, self-reliant young woman, demonstrates the excellence of Filagree Biscuits in grocery stores throughout the country, and makes a host of friends along the way. She is slangy, breezy, a good pal—and men like her. Delia educates Henry Parsons so that he becomes a progressive grocer; she helps a young lawyer buck the trolley interests; she reforms a drunkard; in one chapter she puts a church on its feet and in another a newspaper.

Delia Demonstrates is a brisk and entertaining story; a tale that is as gay and dashing as Delia Dean herself.

COME TO MY HOUSE. By Arthur Somers Roche, author of "Devil-May-Care," etc. 12mo, 225 pages. $2.00

This story abounds with all the mad welter of modern life, with people who labor but little and play hard and spend most of their time suffering from the boredom of a world filled with too many pleasures. "Johnny" Century, young and beautiful, becomes engaged to Murty Pell and then casts about for a cure for boredom. One night in a moment of idleness she dashes off impulsively on a nocturnal escapade with Floyd Benning, a young man whom she scarcely knows. In the morning her bit of heaven has crashed down upon her.

This novel is one of the finest which Mr. Roche has ever written in his whole career as a writer of stories that have captivated the fancies of a million readers.

THE ANATOMY OF VIRTUE. By Vincent Sheean. 12mo, 322 pages. $2.00

The screen of this distinguished story is broad and striking; it extends from the year 1899 to the present day, and presents a rare and incisive study of modern English life and society.

Judith Quayle, a remarkably pretty American heiress, while still a very young girl, marries Tony, the young debonair and dissipated Duke of Leftwich. Judith lives as the neglected wife of this wandering nobleman through tragic and eventful years and on to an end that is both bitter and beautiful.

The reader will find in this ironic tale of Judith and Tony, their life together and their years of futile separation, one of the most compelling novels of recent times. Vincent Sheean, an author whose life has been spent among the people in all parts of the world, writes with a force and understanding that comes from his profound study of human ways.

NOT FOR PUBLICATION. By Clara Sharpe Hough, author of "Leif the Lucky," etc. 12mo, 250 pages. $2.00

Here is the story of Dave and Serena Morley, two distinctly modern people, and the strange rift which is caused in their domestic life by two forgotten figures which creep furtively out of the past. It is the story of a newspaper editor who holds to professional ideals, and of his wife, who believes that he should unquestioningly sacrifice a point in professional ethics where it peculiarly encroaches upon an unexpected phase of their personal lives.

Not for Publication is a novel of ideas as well as action. The problems which weigh down upon the domestic happiness of Dave and Serena Morley are actual and plausible. But seldom have they found such deep and sympathetic analysis and portrayal as in this novel by Clara Sharpe Hough.

THE RINGTAILED RANNYHANS. By Walt Coburn. 12mo, 250 pages. $2.00

A red-blooded story of the Montana hill country, of Western range life and frontier fracases, of men who grinned at hardships and laughed at death.

Calamity Connor and Hurricane Smith, two old timers, after a long and unexplained absence and with a record none too savory, come trailing back to the scenes of some of their early adventures, and immediately and spectacularly become involved in a feud which has its culmination in a frontier saloon. This is the beginning of a series of exciting encounters for the Ringtailed Rannyhans—a band of notoriously bad men, but for once on the right side.

The Ringtailed Rannyhans is a rapidly paced story of thrilling suspense which will hold the reader to the very last sentence.

DIRT ROADS. By Howard Snyder. 12mo, 325 pages. $2.00

A story that is written with all the vigor, the bitterness, the deep-rooted passion and fine humanity of the people which it describes: the poor tenant farmers in the corn belt of northeast Missouri. This is the story of Ellic Wingate, who bravely fights against inclement forces of the gods, literally tearing an existence from the earth which he has broken and tilled.

Into Ellic's impoverished home comes Jennie Pourst, a fine, honest, homespun young widow. Jennie falls in love with Ellic, but she bravely sets her love for him aside to minister to the needs of his invalid wife and pathetic children. After Sarah's death the love of Jennie and Ellic is revived in a flaming passion which even then is not untinged by tragedy and despair for Ellic.

Dirt Roads is a novel of character and distinction which Mr. Snyder has written with expert force and restraint.

THOSE QUARRELSOME BONAPARTES. By Robert Gordon Anderson. 12mo, 400 pages. $2.50

A new life of Napoleon Bonaparte written with the impartiality and fidelity to fact, but with the romantic novelist's love of color and pageantry.

There is a graphic completeness in Mr. Anderson's story which has not been achieved in previous biographies. Here you walk and talk with Napoleon, follow at his heels. Here you mingle with his family—his admirable mother, turbulent brothers, fascinating sisters—an odd crew—down even to that great old man, his uncle, the arch-deacon, and the fighting marshals who climbed from poverty to the top with him.

Those Quarrelsome Bonapartes is one of the high spots of Napoleonic literature.

HIGHLIGHTS OF MANHATTAN. By Will Irwin and E. H. Suydam. Royal 8vo, 300 pages. Profusely illustrated. $6.00

In this volume a distinguished writer and a skilled artist have captured the color and magic of the great and many-sided island of Manhattan in picture and prose.

Here are impressions of that quaint, forgotten boulevard, Second Avenue, with its winking, outworn electric signs; of Fifth Avenue by daytime and in the dark, lonely hours of the early morn; of small green squares and brownstone houses that knew the dignity of another day; of the life that goes on beneath the roar of New York's elevated railroads and above the rushing traffic of its crowded streets.

This volume will be treasured by everyone who has yearned to come a trifle closer to the secrets of the mysterious and endlessly fascinating island of Manhattan.

BIOGRAPHY—THE LITERATURE OF PERSONALITY. By James C. Johnston. Foreword by Gamaliel Bradford. 12mo, 300 pages. Illus. $2.50

In this day of the "new biography," when more than a million readers are anxiously awaiting each new interpretation of old lives produced by modern life-writers, this fine examination of biographical methods, materials, and the governing ethics of the art, makes a book of supreme importance.

Professor Johnston studies the aim of biography from every angle, he analyses its many methods and classifies its numerous manifestations. In the brilliant chapter on "The Remains of a Dead Man's Personality" he discusses with rare insight the "literary portrait," the letter as biography, and the other important source materials.

Gamaliel Bradford in his significant preface says: "Those interested in biography will find in these pages an ample accumulation of material and an earnest and enthusiastic discussion of the manifold aspects in which a matter or such universal and of such timely interest can present itself."

FATHER MISSISSIPPI. By Lyle Saxon. Royal 8vo, 350 pages. Illustrated. $5.00

From a lifetime spent along its shores Mr. Saxon has become steeped in the spirit of romance and tragedy which flows through the history of the "Father of Waters"—a tale more than a century long of man's struggles to explore, to utilize, and to harness this raging yellow flood—the Mississippi. The beginnings of the levees, the wave-crests that have time and again swept them away, the enormous losses of life and property, the deeds of heroism, the renewal of the fight to keep lands and homes from inundation, the high-light of the steam-packet days, the growth of great cities, and the vast flood of this year—all these the author tells with a sympathetic interest.

DESERT WINDS. By Hafsa. 8vo, 350 pages. Illustrated. $3.50

Here Hafsa has written what is unquestionably one of the most original "travel" books of the times. Not content merely to describe the glamour and magic of distant lands, she has penetrated the glamour and analyzed the mystery by getting close to the hearts of native people. She has acquired their innermost thought, examined their customs and drawn out their secrets.

The author of DESERT WINDS, an experienced world traveler, recently visited Algiers, traveled by automobile to Bou-Saada and from there over the mountain pass to Laghout. Everywhere she stopped she managed to mingle with the people of the towns and the cities, with dancing girls, shopkeepers, and strange people of the Berber tribes and other nomadic races in the northern Sahara. She tells the story of her experiences in this remarkable volume.

THE WISDOM OF LANG-SIN. By Sir Thomas Barclay. Tall 12mo, 200 pages. $2.00

For the purpose of expressing one of the shrewdest commentaries on the life and manners of present day Europe Sir Thomas Barclay has created the character of Lang-Sin, Confucian philosopher and sage, and into this book has put his wisdom. The son of Lang-Sin is about to journey to the lands of the West, and this is the advice and counsel which the old philosopher gives him.

Nothing quite like this book has appeared since the famous letters of Lord Chesterfield to his son. Lang-Sin discourses on language and deportment, on religion and worship, on the women of the eastern and western worlds, on government and the masses, on politicians and war, and scores of other things. Lang-Sin's aphorisms and sayings are kernels of wisdom, and his passing references to European customs and affairs are pointed and brilliant.

SOME FAMOUS SEA FIGHTS. By Fitzhugh Green and Holloway H. Frost. 8vo, 350 pages. Illustrated. $3.50

The most spectacular battles of the sea in all history are retold here with a new color and pageantry and dramatic description by two authors who are also famous as experts on the tactics of naval warfare.

Commander Green is a graduate of Annapolis and of the Naval War College. During the war he held an important post in the British Grand Fleet. Lieutenant-Commander Frost is the man who was selected by the War Department to study the Battle of Jutland and prepare an official account of it for our own naval experts.

Both Commander Green and Lieutenant-Commander Frost are still active officers in the United States Navy.

THIS SMOKING WORLD. By A. E. Hamilton. 12mo, 280 pages. Illustrated. $2.50

Why do men and women smoke tobacco? Why do they develop a passionate love or hate for it? Is it merely nervous habit, or an addiction to a mild narcotic drug?

These are but a few of the questions that are answered in this fascinating book on the origin, growth and effects of the custom of tobacco smoking. The author has approached the subject without prejudice or preconceived bias. He takes the fair attitude of the scientist and treats the question with a fine sense of humor.

This is the first impartial study of the whole question of tobacco smoking—historical, biological, medical and social—since the days of John Fiske. It is an unprejudiced, comprehensive and good-humored review of a custom which, like dancing and music, has conquered the greater part of the human race.

This Smoking World is a book for everyone, fumiphobe and tobaccophile alike. It is fascinating and scientific. It presents the real facts about tobacco-smoking.

TO THE FOOT OF THE RAINBOW. By Clyde Kluckhohn. 8vo, 276 pages. Illustrated. $3.50

The romantic record of 3000 miles of wandering through the picturesque country of the Southwest Enchanted Land.

The author of this tale starts out on horseback, a complete tenderfoot. He meets a fellow wanderer and they join forces. They travel through this beautiful country of the Southwest, for which the author has the eye of an artist. Here are descriptions of picturesque Pueblo dwellings, prehistoric ruins, dangerous mountain passes and cloud-capped mountain peaks, strange Indian dances, and finally the awesome splendor of the Rainbow Natural Bridge.

The superb descriptive passages in this volume are supplemented by the author's cheerful and humorous account of the trials and hardships which attended his travels.

EARLY AMERICAN GLASS. By Rhea Mansfield Knittle. (Century Library of American Antiques.) 8vo, 400 pages. Illustrated. $4.00

The ever-widening interest in early American glass and the demand for more authoritative information on the subject are responsible for this remarkable book by Rhea Mansfield Knittle, who has devoted years to research and study in this field.

Mrs. Knittle discusses the locations of the various early American glass furnaces, their sizes, construction, ownership, fuel problems, etc. In her free-flowing style she describes the various types of early American glassware, the diversity of patterns and molds, and the technique of designers and blowers.

This volume will be of vital interest not only to collectors and connoisseurs, but to the student of American history, economics and industrialism and to dealers and decorators.

THE LOCOMOTIVE GOD. By William Ellery Leonard. 8vo, 427 pages. Illustrated. $4.00

Here, the author of "Two Lives" published several years ago, has written one of the most curious, powerful and astonishing autobiographies of recent years.

It is the honest and compelling story of a poet and scholar, a man of acknowledged brilliance and achievement. But he is a strangely erratic man. His whole life has been affected by terriffic psychological abnormalities.

The Locomotive God is important as a contemporary human document, distinguished by its power and sincerity, and the peculiar nature of the life which it concerns. Many people of importance in the world today figure as characters in the story. Sometimes, as in the story of the author's adolescence, the straightforward frankness of this book seems brutal and harsh, but at other moments it becomes placid and soft like the pathetic whisper of a tormented soul.

AFTER YOU, MAGELLAN. By James F. Leys, Jr. 8vo, 300 pages. Illustrated. $4.00

With the same sweeping gesture of bravado and high spirits that is implied in his title, the author set out in search of adventure and romance. Mr. Leys is an adventurer at heart, and as a young man just out of college he yearned more for excitement than for a career. How he found it—and more of it than he expected—is the story which this thrilling book unfolds.

He challenges a fellow traveler to a race around the world—and wins it. He works his way to Hong Kong and then through the Orient.

Mr. Leys puts into his narrative all the color and movements of the out-of-the-way corners of the world and pictures scenes and incidents as they are seen only through the eye of a vagabond traveler.

THE SILENT FORCE. By T. Morris Longstreth, author of "The Lake Superior Country," "The Laurentians," etc. Royal 8vo, 350 pages. Illustrated. $4.00

A richly dramatic and anecdotal history of the Mounted Police of Canada—and every word true; a comprehensive story of the boldest, most adventurous and efficient force ever organized to plant order and defend the law in the outposts of civilization.

No up-to-date history of the Mounted Police, in fact no other such history, exists. The Silent Force is biography written with the unofficial collaboration and personal interest of the men themselves. Because of his friendship with these men, his sharing of bread and tent with them, and because of his appreciation of their courage and spirit, Mr. Longstreth has been able to gather unusual material and to divulge a realistic picture of the Force—a picture never before made public.

COUGARS AND COWBOYS. By David M. Newell. 12mo, 275 pages. Illustrated. $2.00

These stories are intimate glimpses of life in the cattle country, a land of purple cliffs and towering rim-rock, where the slinking cougar prowls in the dark canyon-slides and the mighty grizzly bear shuffles through the manzanita thickets.

Mr. Newell, who has spent his life in this country and knows well the manners of its men and their adventures, here tells the stories of Old Man Jim, and how he squared accounts with the ranchers of Burnt Corral County; of Dusty Jeff, who bluffed a town for six whole years and ended in the sheriffs office; of Mba-tsossa, and how he hunted down the cattle-killing jaguar, and many other tales.

Mr. Newell, who is a master of the graphic arts as well as an artist in prose, has prepared a series of remarkable illustrations for this volume.

NAPOLEON IN CAPTIVITY. By Count Balmain, (Russian Commissioner on the Island of St. Helena, 1816-20). Translated and edited by Julian Park. 8vo, 238 pages. $3.00

This remarkable volume is an intimate contemporary account of the life of Napoleon Bonaparte during his exile on the Island of St. Helena. It was written by Count Balmain, the agent of the Russian Empire who was stationed at St. Helena, together with the agents of Austria and Great Britain, to see that the mutual agreement of the great powers on the expatriation of Napoleon was faithfully executed.

The Balmain document is an intelligent, vivid and amusing record of this strange anticlimax of Napoleon's career. It reveals the true character of the little man who tried to conquer the world and failed. Only a small part of this story has been published heretofore; and this is the first complete English translation.

STANDING ROOM ONLY? By Edward Alsworth Ross, author of "The Changing Chinese," etc. 8vo, 400 pages. Numerous charts. $3.00

With science rapidly overcoming the famines, plagues and death-dealing diseases of the world, the death rate among civilized and advanced peoples has been reduced by almost half. If the human race continues to increase at its present astonishing rate it will double its number every sixty years. What will this mean in another century? Standing Room Only?

This is the world problem which Dr. Ross holds under consideration in this volume. Here he opens up a new vista of the future relations of the races and peoples of the world. The scope of this book is amazingly wide; and Dr. Ross has approached his task with the assurance and impartiality of a scientist and treated his subject in the brisk and entertaining style of a brilliant writer.

Standing Room Only? is a stimulating and provocative book. It is bound to be a storm centre of controversy.

SOME MEMORIES OF A SOLDIER. By Major-General Hugh L. Scott. Royal 8vo, 400 pages. Illustrated. $5.00

The story of a soldier who for more than a half century has held a high place in the military force of the United States.

In this volume Major-General Scott recounts his adventures as a soldier with a gusto that brings back all the color and action of his campaigns. From the brisk stories of adventures among the Indians on the western plains as far back as 1876, this book takes you on to the abolition of the slave trade in the Sulu Archipelago, the adventures on the Mexican border in 1915 and finally the great adventures of the late war and its aftermath.

Some Memories of a Soldier is undoubtedly entitled to a high place as the most brilliant and distinguished military autobiography of the day.

CLOUDLANDS OF FRANCE. By Amy Oakley, author of "Hill-Towns of the Pyrenees," etc. 8vo, 475 pages. Illustrated. $4.00

Again the graceful pen of Mrs. Oakley, the pictorial art of Mr. Oakley, have captured the beauty and magic of the mountain lands of France. The Cloudlands through which they wander are that spectacular and famed region stretching northward from Nice and the glittering Mediterranean, to the magnificent altitudes of Chamonix and Mont Blanc. It is the road known to history as the "Route of the Alps."

This Route of the Alps, with its romantic history, its picturesque peoples, and its glorious mountains, has been a favorite route of wanderers through the ages. No book heretofore has dealt with it so intimately and so completely, none has so beautifully set down the wonders of its scenery.

Cloudlands of France is uniform in binding and format with Hill-towns of the Pyrenees.

THE RADIANT STORY OF JESUS. By Alphonse Séché. Translated by Helen Davenport Gibbons. 8vo, 400 pages. $3.50

When this astonishingly brilliant life of Christ first appeared in France during the past year it immediately caused a sensation that extended over the entire continent. For it is a distinctly new rendering of the story of Jesus—tremendous, moving and filled with inspiration.

THE RADIANT STORY OF JESUS is not a sentimental, idealized life of Christ. It is a faithful version of the story told in the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, carefully correlated and written with charm and distinction.

THE RADIANT STORY OF JESUS moves with a swiftness and a prose style never before attempted in a life of Christ. American readers will undoubtedly join in the judgment of Continental critics that Alphonse Séché has written a story of Jesus that will pass on through many generations.

THE NEW PERSIA. By Vincent Sheean, author of "An American Among the Riffi," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Illustrated. $2.50

A frank, outspoken and avowedly impartial book on present-day Persia, containing a provocative and stimulating account of this little understood nation which is now trying to rise again out of the ancient ruins of its glorious past. Mr. Sheean uses the words of a contemporary Persian—Mehr Banu, a wise and understanding educator—"Persia does not need compliments or poetry; Persia needs the truth." It is the truth about Persia which Mr. Sheean presents in this volume; and while the result is stimulating, it is bound to be, in some quarters, a somewhat bitter pill.

Mr. Sheean gives a clear, succinct and fearless statement of the present economic, financial and political status of Persia. His review of the current diplomatic struggles of foreign nations in Persia is pointed, enlightening and, at times, startling.

THE WEALTH OF THE SEA. By Donald K. Tressler. 8vo, 375 pages. Illustrated. $4.00

A popular, comprehensive and fascinating story of the nature, the uses and the economic importance of the great variety of products which come out of the sea. The author describes the origin and evolution of such maritime treasures as jewels, perfumes, foodstuffs and condiments, chemicals, sponges, furs, leather, oil, whalebone and many other things. The business of searching the sea for each one of these commodities is a fascinating industry in which the participants find lively sport and absorbing romance.

For the general reader, as well as for students of commercial geography, biology, chemistry, navigation, etc., this volume offers a splendid survey of one of our most romantic commercial developments.

STYGIAN FREIGHT. By Cale Young Rice, author of "Selected Plays and Poems," etc. 12mo, 125 pages. $1.50

Cale Young Rice, a poetic genius, a born maker of songs, a recognized master among the modern American lyric and dramatic writers, embodies in his latest offering a group of ironic, satiric and tragic poems so supremely beautiful that the poignant solemnity of his subjects is almost submerged in the rare artistry of his creative genius.

STYGIAN FREIGHT is a book of poems possessing wide range and pleasing variety in style. It is a volume which maintains Mr. Rice's poignantly appealing spiritual quality, and proves anew his right to one of the foremost places among the American poets.

CANDLE DAYS. By Marion N. Rawson. 8vo, 300 pages. Illustrated. $3.50

A faithful and intriguing reproduction of the ingenuity, the skill and the vivid simplicity of our forefathers.

It tells you how they shod their horses and made their ploughshares; how they hacked and whittled and shaved the boughs of trees and made the rugged and beautiful furniture of the time; how they tanned the hides of animals for leather; how they spun and wove the wool of sheep into fabrics, and then colored them with the pigments drawn from berries and vegetables. The superstition and cruelty of early health cures and queer treatments of many ailments are described here.

Candle Days is a distinctive contribution to the literature descriptive of the early American scene.

I'VE GOT YOUR NUMBER—a Book of Self-analysis. By Doris Webster and Mary A. Hopkins. Sq. 8vo, 100 pages. $1.00

Here is a book containing something new and ingenious in the way of group pastimes —a unique, amusing and not unkindly method of analyzing the characters of your friends. The basic idea of the game is the revelation of character, which is accomplished by two carefully arranged sets of questions—one for men and one for women—an ingenious "key" system, through which is revealed a series of brilliant and startlingly accurate character sketches.

I've Got Your Number will give you shrewd insight and knowledge of your character and of the characters of your friends.

CHRISTMAS IN MODERN STORY. By Maud van Buren and Katharine I. Bemis. 12mo, 375 pages. $2.50

Here are stories which present all the glitter and cheer, the humor and pathos, the briskness and buoyant spirits so characteristic of the Christmas season. Who but William J. Locke can depict the awakening of the "Three Modern Wise Men" as he does in his contribution to this volume? What other author can bring such magic charm to a Christmas tale as Dr. Henry van Dyke does in "The Sad Shepherd"? Here are twenty other stories by well-known modern authors.

CHRISTMAS IN STORYLAND. By Maud van Buren and Katharine I. Bemis. 12mo, 320 pages. $2.00

An anthology of holiday tales for children.

Two sympathetic and observing librarians out of their long experience in catering to the wishes of young readers and studying their reactions to different types of stories, have found that all children deep in their hearts love stories dealing with the glamorous, mysterious and joyous happenings of the Christmas season and that these are the stories which their young confidants call for and read over and over again.

THE CLAIM JUMPERS. By Charles A. Hoyt, author of "Prairie Treasure," etc. 12mo, 225 pages. Illustrated. $1.75

A story of the Dakota prairies in the eighteen-eighties, written for older boys by an author who lived throughout the exciting experiences of frontier days.

The Claim Jumpers is the story of a courageous family and their neighbor adventurers on the early American frontier. It is also a story of cattle thieves and interlopers, in which claim jumping and open warfare supercede an interest in farm and domestic life.

A vigorous story of pioneer days, of absorbing interest to every boy who has a yearning for adventure.

THE SECRET OF SPIRIT LAKE. By Joseph B. Ames, author of "The Mounted Troop," etc. 12mo, 219 pages. Illustrated. $1.75

Another fine tale of Scout adventures in the West, and most particularly of Tulasco Troop, made famous through previous stories by Mr. Ames.

The story opens at the Tulasco camp on Spirit Lake—an old abandoned cabin which has been purchased for the troop by Tex Laranger, Scoutmaster. The members of the troop are enjoying a peaceful holiday, when suddenly mysterious dangers begin to threaten them.

Adventure and mystery leap from every page of this story. It has the same keen sense of Western scenery which has made Mr. Ames' novels so popular with adult readers.

SHIP OF DREAMS. By Edith Ballinger Price, author of "Garth, Able Seaman," "Silver Shoal Light," etc. 12mo, 267 pages. Illustrated. $1.75

Here is a tale of adventure and romance, of tall ships, deep-sea tramps, stolen ivory and African jungles, all knit together with a warm, keen and bristling humanity. It is the story of David Garth and how he went to sea and found strange adventures.

This latest story of David Garth, with its fine delineation of character and its charming structure of plot and sequence, is a most thoroughly satisfying Price tale.

A practical guide for those whose business it is to interest the public in social work and to raise funds for the maintenance of social work organizations. It is not a manual of advertising. Its aim is solely to acquaint the social worker with the mediums and methods which underlie successful social work publicity. The book will furnish the social service worker with fresh ideas, help him to analyze his own particular problems, point out to him the pitfalls that should be avoided, and explain to him the manner in which various publicity mediums can be used to the greatest advantage.

CENTURY READINGS IN THE AMERICAN SHORT STORY. Edited by Fred Lewis Pattee, Ph.D., author of "The American Short Story," etc. Royal Octavo, 500 pages. $3.50

A definitive collection of stories presenting the most significant examples of the short story that are to be found in the works of American writers of the past one hundred years, with critical discussions of each author's works, in some cases quoting the author's own estimate of the art of short story writing. Because of its comprehensiveness, its logical organization, its discriminating choice of selections, and its scholarly notes and comments, this anthology promises to become the standard collection of American short story models. The specimens represent the works of fifty-two authors.

PROBLEMS IN SHAKSPERE'S PENMANSHIP. By Samuel A. Tannenbaum, M.D. Publication of The Modern Language Association of America. Profusely illustrated. Royal Octavo, 241 pages. $4.00

This is the second scholarly work selected by the Modern Language Association of America for publication under the terms of the Revolving Publication Fund established for the Association by the Trustees of the Carnegie Corporation of New York. It presents an exhaustive and scientific study of Shakspere's penmanship and throws new light upon Shakspere's character and literary works. Illustrated with many facsimiles made from photographs, tracings and a full-size, three-page, half-tone reproduction on India paper of Shakspere's will made from a photograph.

HUMAN WASTE IN EDUCATION. By Anna Yeomans Reed, Ph.D. The Century Education Series. Octavo, 250 pages. $2.50

This is the first attempt to present to the general public an impartial factual study of the results brought about by American compulsory education laws. It is an important and timely book that should be read by every parent and every voter. It makes available, in a clear, non-technical fashion, the data bearing upon the effects of our education laws which the author has been collecting and studying for twenty-five years. In this book, Dr. Reed discusses the whole question of fixing by law a minimum age for quitting school and gives facts and figures to prove that, under the present system, an increase in the minimum age limit results inevitably in an increase in what she terms the "human waste in education." The book makes clear that the need of the day is not more compulsory classroom education, but a better balance of work, play, and instruction based upon individual needs, desires, and capacities.

THE CENTURY HANDBOOK OF GEOGRAPHY. By S. S. Visher. The Century Handbook Series. 16mo, 350 pages. $1.25

This book meets a need that has never before been satisfactorily supplied. It presents in a geographical order 13,000 names of countries, cities, towns, rivers, etc., followed by such facts and information as are likely to be of interest and importance to anyone who desires to inform himself regarding any particular section or sections of the world. Heretofore this information has been accessible only in supplements of large and comparatively expensive dictionaries. A full index provides a means for immediate reference to any name in the "Handbook."

NEW CENTURY FICTION

BUGLES IN THE NIGHT. By Barry Benefield, author of "The Chicken-Wagon Family," "Short Turns," etc.

An old Confederate soldier and a beautiful young girl find adventure and romance in the turmoil of New York life. All those who have read BUGLES IN THE NIGHT, in advance of its publication, say that here Mr. Benefield has written another book as great as the unforgettable "The Chicken-Wagon Family." $2.00

DAPHNE'S IN LOVE. By Negley Farson, author of "Sailing Across Europe," etc.

A dashing, brilliant story of adorable Daphne Howard and her adventures among men. It is crowded with living people: people who play the game of life for all it's worth. It is one of the greatest human stories written in many years. $2.00

THE WAY OF SINNERS. By F. R. Buckley.

A modern novel in a medieval setting that impresses the reader with its cool intellectuality, its fine philosophy and the wit and brilliance that is so characteristic of Francesco Vitali, the amazing hero of the book, his friends and his foes. $2.00

THE ANATOMY OF VIRTUE. By Vincent Sheean, author of "An American Among the Riffi," etc.

The screen of this story is broad and striking. On it one sees the vivid portrayal of the incidents in the life of Judith Quayle, now the wife of Tony, Duke of Leftwich, a pathetic and pitiable character in spite of his many vagrancies and dissipations. It is a vivid story presenting a rare and penetrating study of English society life. $2.00

COME TO MY HOUSE. By Arthur Somers Roche, author of "Devil-May-Care," etc.

One wild reckless hour in the life of Johnny Century, a beautiful, impulsive and altogether modern young woman, and the exciting consequences which follow it. This is one of the best novels which Mr. Roche has written in his career as a writer of stories that have captivated the fancies of thousands of readers. $2.00

NOT FOR PUBLICATION. By Clara Sharpe Hough, author of "Leif the Lucky," etc.

In this remarkable story of a modern newspaper editor and his wife, domestic happiness clashes with professional ideals and duties and the happy marriage of Dave and Serena Morley is headed straight for the rocks of futility and divorce. It is a spirited novel of ideas as well as action and is concerned with problems that exist among active people everywhere in present-day life. $2.00

DIRT ROADS. By Howard Snyder.

A distinguished story that is written with all the vigor, bitterness, deep-rooted passion and fine humanity of the type of people which it concerns; the poor tenant farmers of the Missouri corn-belt. It is the story of Ellic Wingate, and his invalid wife Sarah, and Jennie Pourst, the fine, homespun young widow who brings love and beauty into his impoverished life. $2.00

THE RINGTAILED RANNYHANS. By Walt Coburn.

A brisk and red-blooded story of the Montana hill country where the Ringtailed Rannyhans, a band of notoriously bad men, are engaged in a thrilling fued with a gang of high-handed cattle thieves. It is full of action and suspense that hold the attention of every reader to the very last sentence. $2.00

ABOUT CHELSEA HOUSE BOOKS

CHELSEA HOUSE is the book department of one of the largest and oldest periodical publishing houses in the United States, with a record covering over seventy years in the fiction field.

The best serials appearing in such magazines as POPULAR, FAR WEST, WESTERN STORY, DETECTIVE STORY, SEA STORIES, et cetera, are selected for publication in book form under the Chelsea House imprint. These magazines have been the means of introducing some of America's best-known writers to the American reading public—O. Henry, Peter B. Kyne, Charles E. Van Loan, James Oliver Curwood, and many others.

The members of the editorial staff of Chelsea House are experts in the fiction field. They have had years of experience in catering to the taste of the large body of the American reading public. They know the kind of story that will appeal to the general run of readers. It is not their aim to publish books that will be read only by a limited circle.

THE TRAIL TO SAN TRISTE

By George Owen Baxter

Author of "The Whispering Outlaw," "Train's Trust," "Wooden Guns," et cetera.

12mo, 318 pages, $2.00 net.

Three of them were crooks—men wanted by the law, rascals of desperate courage, of rare resourcefulness. That was why Joseph Simon chose them for the peculiar errand of finding a man to impersonate the lost heir of the Vereal family. This was the first step of his scheme for possessing himself of the immense treasure hidden in the vaults of the Vereal stronghold. The impersonator completed the quartet of fearless characters to undertake Simon's perilous quest. He was known simply as "The Kid."

THE DUMB-BELL

By W. B. M. Ferguson

Author of "The Black Company," "The Clew in the Glass," et cetera.

12mo, 316 pages, $2.00 net.

"Babe" Armstrong, middleweight champion boxer, a central character of this story, was a real king in the world of cauliflowers—modest, retiring, studious, seeking seclusion and rest in his leisure time between his ring engagements. But his manager, Joe Carp, had other ideas. He believed in capitalizing his champion for all the traffic would stand.

How the whole affair resulted, how the Babe's aversion to the limelight reacted to his own disadvantage, so that he became a lost man, without an identity, without even a name, a champion defeated by circumstances, and how he fought his way back to his old position in the face of the most disheartening obstacles, makes a splendid tale of manhood tested in the crucible of adversity.

PROSPECTIN' FOOLS

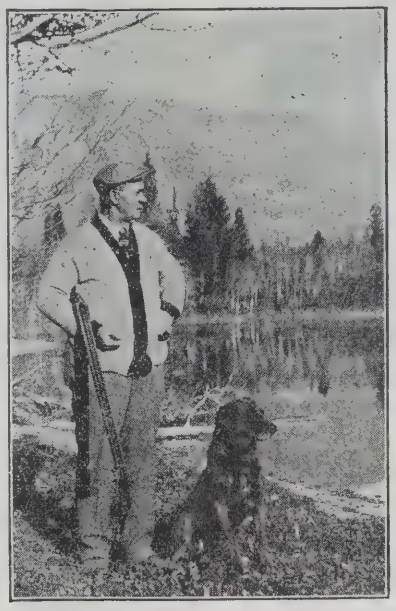
By A. M. Chisholm

Author of "Yellow Horse," "The Red-headed Kids," et cetera.

12mo, 320 pages, $2.00 net.

There is a freshness of viewpoint, an unfailing fund of humor, an originality and a realistic tang to A. M. Chisholm's stories of the West that mark his work as distinctive—in a class by itself.

Here he takes his readers through the wilderness of the last West—the interior of British Columbia—with two hard-boiled prospectors, "Skookum Bill" Hutchins and Sam Dobbs. Part of their adventures takes place in the wilds, and then the scene shifts for a while to the city of Vancouver, where they go to squander the proceeds of their toil.



A. M. Chisholm, with his gun and his "dawg," Windermere Ted, near his home in British Columbia.

THE LOST GALLEON

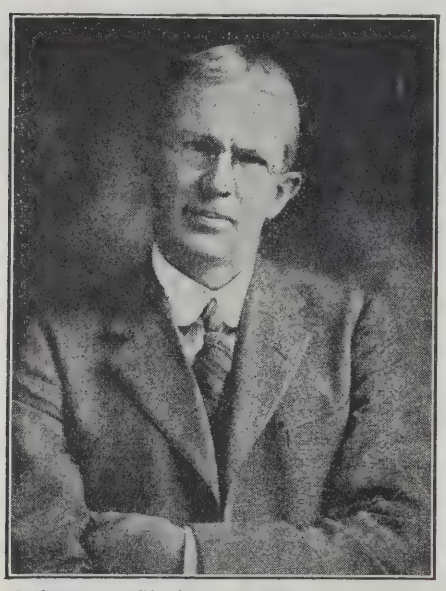
By Ellery H. Clark

Author of "Carib Gold."

12mo, 309 pages, $2.00 net.

Back in the days when Morgan and his pirate followers sacked and looted Panama, a Spanish galleon, bearing a cargo of gold and silver and precious stones, slipped through the buccaneer's fingers and fled to the remote Southern seas, where all trace of her was lost for centuries. The story of the lost galleon was set down in histories and other narratives, and many would have liked to lay hands on her vast treasure.

Finally, Hal Nickerson, a venturesome young Yankee sailor, of the clipper-ship era of a hundred years ago, obtained a definite clew to the whereabouts of the missing vessel.



Ellery H. Clark, author of "The Lost Galleon."

There were others who were after the wealth of the old Spanish galleon, and these were unscrupulous men who would not hesitate even at murder to attain their end; so that Nickerson's quest was attended by grave perils.

THE SADDLE TRAMP

By Arthur Preston

Author of "The Limping Sheriff."

12mo, 312 pages, $2.00 net.

The little desert rag town of Fandango, with its tents and its three pine shacks, held no attractions for "Star" Kirby—world adventurer, soldier of fortune, saddle tramp—and he had no interest in its feud with the near-by town of Encantadora. But when the leader of the Encantadora faction ruthlessly killed his horse, Kirby definitely declared himself in on the war. From that point on, adventures came thick and fast to Kirby. Not the least of them was his quest of a strange tribe of Indians living in a hidden valley.

LIGHT-FINGERED LADIES

By Armstrong Livingston

Author of "On the Right Wrists."

12mo, 318 pages, $2.00 net.

When Aline Charteris consulted Detective Peter Creighton, her affairs were in a desperate state. She was in the clutches of an unscrupulous thief and blackmailer, who had forced her to become his accomplice in two robberies as the price of returning some compromising letters written as a schoolgirl. Owing to the prominent social position of the Charteris family, the situation was a difficult one for Creighton to handle, but he was equal to the emergency.

This is a clever tale of intrigue, plot, and counterplot, told in a racy, humorous manner, with one surprise following another in quick succession, so that there is not a dull moment in the whole book.

The thoroughbred colt, Sandollar, was the pride of "Lucky" Petrie's stable. From "Sandollar," by Charles Neville Buck.

SANDOLLAR

By Charles Neville Buck

12mo, 308 pages, $2.00 net.

There is one phase of modern life that always retains its picturesqueness, its never-failing lure, and its romance. This is the world of the thoroughbred horse. Here is a tale of the turf that will live in the memory alongside of such famous stories as "Black Beauty," "Garrison's Finish," and "Checkers." The reader is carried right into the atmosphere of the race tracks. He is taken behind the scenes at the big races and given intimate glimpses of jockeys, trainers, owners, bookies, and other characters of turfdom.

Interwoven with the story of the splendid horse, Sandollar, is the romance of Martin Petrie—or "Lucky" Petrie, as many called him—and June Lee Middleton, the girl from the South who had come to win fame in New York as a sculptress.

TIN HATS

By Fred MacIsaac

12mo, 320 pages, $2.00 net.

Chris Graham's father had failed in business, and Chris had been obliged to leave college and take a job. It wasn't a very good job—just a twenty-five-dollar-a-week clerkship. Chris was in a rut, and he was the kind of fellow who would probably remain in it until an earthquake removed the rut.

And that was just what happened, for the Great War came, and Chris, like millions of other young Americans, was hurled into the conflict. How the timid, fastidious, round-shouldered, bespectacled clerk was transformed into a soldier, and the kind of soldier he made, is the story—and a wonderfully big, vital, human-interest story it is.

THE WHISPERING OUTLAW

By George Owen Baxter

12mo, 320 pages, $2.00 net.

He showed himself only at night. No one ever saw his face. No one knew his name. No one ever heard his voice, for he spoke only in a whisper. Lew Borgen was his trusted lieutenant, and there were many who thought that Borgen himself was "The Whisperer." Then one day a crisis arose that caused the real Whisperer to make himself known to his followers, but after that his personality was more of a mystery than ever.

The Whisperer eventually squared himself with his enemies, with the law, and with the woman he loved, but the manner of his doing so makes as thrilling and glamorous a tale of the West as has ever been written.

THE LIMPING SHERIFF

By Arthur Preston

12mo, 320 pages, $2.00 net.

A decoy ad, inserted by an employment agency in San Francisco, lured a number of men to their deaths on the desert. The game was a profitable one for the scoundrels who were behind it. Then "Limpy" Jimps, sheriff of Caldera County, began to notice things. Dead men may tell no tales, but they leave traces, and in the course of his rides about the foothill trails of the county Jimps picked up the first clew to the strange series of disappearances.

John Jay Chichester, author of "The House of the Moving Room," out for a romp with his pet Boston terrier, "Blinky."

THE HOUSE OF THE MOVING ROOM

By John Jay Chichester

Author of "The Porcelain Mask" and "The Bigamist."

12mo, 311 pages, $2.00 net.

Corinne Drummond made Baird Morrow believe that he was a genius and encouraged him in pursuing a literary career. His wife, Thelma, on the other hand, discouraged these ambitions. In her view, his talent was mediocre—or worse. Both women loved Baird, and he would have been more than human if he had not found greater satisfaction in the affection of the one who flattered him and promised to further his aims.

Out of such a situation, it was inevitable that tragedy should come. The House of the Moving Room, a quaint old weather-beaten mansion on the Long Island coast, was the scene of a mysterious murder, which called forth the highest detective talents of "Wiggly" Price, a newspaper man, who has figured in other stories by Mr. Chichester.

THE CRUISE OF THE COLLEEN BAWN

By Frank Carruthers

Author of "Terror Island."

12mo, 310 pages, $2.00 net.

A telegram from his company ordered Sid Livingston to leave Denver at once and report to a man named Gregory in San Francisco. How this telegram led to the young railroader finding himself aboard the Colleen Bawn, for a cruise filled with the most exciting incidents, makes the start of as fine a tale of adventure on land and sea as the heart can desire.

Few authors know the inside of railroading as well as Frank Carruthers. He knows the sea, too, and, moreover, he is a rarely gifted story-teller, as those who read his "Terror Island" can attest.

THE TWO REDS OF TRAVOY

By Clay Perry

Author of "Heart of Hemlock."

12mo, 320 pages, $2.00 net.

In the heart of the forest wilderness of northern French Canada, designated as the Travoy, dwelt William LeGrand and his twin sons, known as "The Two Reds"—great giants of men, of tremendous strength and courage, with features so similar that it seemed as if nature had used the same mold to cast them. When Gwen Harris, a city-bred girl, visited the Travoy to look over a timber tract that her father had bought for her, she met these mighty men of the woods, and the succession of dramatic events that followed constitutes the story.

There is much forest lore and information about woodcraft, lumbering, and reforestation intermingled with the narrative, so that it presents a very real and vivid picture of life in the heavily timbered wilderness country where its scenes are laid.

TRAIN'S TRUST

By George Owen Baxter

12mo, 320 pages, $2.00 net.

When Steve Train first undertook the mission of finding Jim Nair, the outlaw, and delivering to him the $50,000 which Comstock, the rancher, owed him, he did so with the intention of pulling a crooked game and keeping the money to split it with his partner, John Rainier. But many circumstances arose in Train's quest of the outlaw to change his original purpose of stealing the money. One of these was his meeting with Tom Curtney and his daughter, Alice.

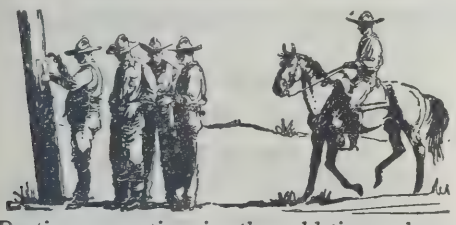
THE CLEW IN THE GLASS

By W. B. M. Ferguson

12mo, 318 pages, $2.00 net.

A year before, Morney had been in love with the woman, but she had gone out of his life—jilted him. Then he came to Pinelake, not knowing that she was living there as the wife of one of its leading citizens. Pinelake was one of those small towns that the devil made, and close on his arrival there Morney found himself involved in tragedy.

The woman he had once loved and her husband were killed within a few minutes of each other, and Morney's position was an extremely uncomfortable one.



Posting a notice in the old-time placer camp of Yellow Horse. From "Yellow Horse," by A. M. Chisholm.

YELLOW HORSE

By A. M. Chisholm

12mo, 314 pages, $2.00 net.

The old-time placer camp of Yellow Horse was raw and rough. The gold in the sands and bars and riffles of its creek brought adventurers from the corners of the earth—honest miners, tinhorn miners, birds of passage, birds of prey, tenderfeet and old stampeders, sight-seers and gunmen.

Any one who enjoys his Bret Harte and Mark Twain will surely spend some pleasant hours with the hard-boiled citizens of Yellow Horse.

WOODEN GUNS

By George Owen Baxter

12mo, 318 pages, $2.00 net.

When "Big Jim" Conover sustained an injury to his right hand, he was no longer the formidable fighting man that he had been before. No longer could he depend on his speed on the draw to win his victories; his only weapons were the "wooden guns" of bluff and subterfuge from which the story takes its name. The injury which changed him from a desperate gun fighter into a leader of men was really a blessing in disguise.

A fine, virile story of the romantic West, told in George Owen Baxter's best manner.

TERROR ISLAND

By Frank Carruthers

12mo, 319 pages, $2.00 net.

The hardships incidental to being marooned on a volcanic island in the Pacific did not trouble Hugh MacLaren so much as the fact that a woman shared his misfortune, and that the woman in question was Alison Jeffard, the very last person in the world he would have chosen as his companion in such an adventure.

The story of these modern castaways is superlatively well told, with just enough touches of novelty to make it seem entirely plausible that the events narrated could happen in this age.

The books listed in the following pages sell at 75 cents each. They are all new, copyrighted stories that have never before appeared in book form, comprising fiction of the most popular type —Western, detective, mystery, adventure, and love stories.

The books are well bound and printed from large, clear type, on good paper. In appearance they are the equal of most books put out by other publishers to sell at $2.00.

ORDER BY NUMBER

(1) UNSEEN ACRES

By Harry Golden

The man who shot an inoffensive ranchman, held up a stagecoach, and did other sundry lawless acts, started Jack Smith on a course of vengeance.

The scenes are laid in the strange, rugged Western lava-bed country.

Harry Golden, author of "Unseen Acres," rests after a good hunt.

(2) THE HOUSE OF ROGUES

By Christopher B. Booth.

This is the sort of detective story that thrills everybody. In it there is an old house with a secret passageway.

It is really a splendid piece of writing, and so plausible that the interest and glamour of it do not wear off for days after the book has been finished.

(3) JERRY PEYTON'S NOTCHED INHERITANCE

By David Manning

Just because Jerry Peyton's father had been a bandit, certain people in a Western community proceeded to visit the sins of the father upon the son.

Through an act of grave injustice, it was proved that Jerry was a better man than his father. The telling of the story makes a very human narrative, full of action.

(4) THE BRAND OF SILENCE

By Harrington Strong

Sidney Prale left New York for Honduras with plenty of friends. He returned with only a single friend upon whom he could depend.

The cause was not of his own making, but people thought so. This splendid detective story deals with the determined effort of Prale to prove his real worth.

(5) JOHN STANDON OF TEXAS

By Johnston McCulley

As an adventure story, this is unique. Most of its scenes are laid in the wide, open spaces of southwestern United States and Mexico.

There is some lively fighting, but through it John Standon gives a splendid demonstration of American courage and resourcefulness.

(6) GEMS OF PROMISE

By Emart Kinsburn

Just over the border in Mexico, a bleached skeleton lay resting beside an ancient firearm. The weapon was inscribed "Gabriel Gamez, A. D. 1812."

You would not think that this incident would lead Morgan Tuttle, saddle tramp, through a series of enthralling adventures while in search of treasure, would you? But it did.

(7) THE BLACK STAR

By Johnston McCulley

This is the story in which Johnston McCulley's famous character, Black Star, was first introduced to the reading public. Here, too, will be found Roger Verbeck and his man, Muggs, who were out to capture Black Star.

(8) THE MAN FROM MICHIGAN

By Charles Wesley Sanders

Jim Wallace, born and raised in Michigan, hears of a gold mine in California rich beyond the wildest dreams.

There is something particularly appealing about a treasure hunt, and this well-written story grips the reader from the start.

(9) BLACK STAR'S CAMPAIGN

By Johnston McCulley

Black Star, master criminal, who conducts a campaign of organized loot in this story, is a dominating figure.

Against the intelligence of this super-crook are pitted the mental resources of Roger Verbeck, who frustrates Black Star's attempt to plunder the city.

(10) BULL HUNTER

By David Manning

Bull Hunter is big, clumsy, slow-witted, and a butt for the rude pranks and ridicule of his comrades.

The story tells of Bull's awakening, and how he demonstrated that he was not really dull, but only needed to be shown how to use his tremendous strength to advantage.

The process of taming Diablo was a difficult one. From "Bull Hunter's Romance," by David Manning.

(11) BULL HUNTER'S ROMANCE

Sequel to "Bull Hunter"

By David Manning

This is another series of Bull Hunter's exploits. It deals with Bull, his horse, and his dog. The trio have a number of stirring adventures.

Certain characters other than Bull are very well drawn; Pete Reeve, for example, and Hal Dunbar, who was not as good as he might have been, but who got pretty nearly everything that was coming to him.

(12) HILL-BRED BARTON'S CODE

By Charles Wesley Sanders

Billy Barton had a grievance and determined to return injustice, measure for measure. Of course, he did not get very far along this road before he discovered that it was a hard one to travel.

Ruth Dempster, a thoroughly good and likable girl, helped to show Billy the proper course for him to pursue.

(13) THE SPECTACULAR KID

By Robert J. Horton

Heralded by rumor as a killer, "The Spectacular Kid" came to the Smith River country. Every one trembled at his approach.

He was a queer character, however, with an almost effeminte love of silver ornaments, reënforced by a surprising amount of bravery and manliness.

(14) WHO KILLED WILLIAM DREW?

By Harrington Strong

John Walkins Wright felt that his niece deserved a valuable token of his love, so he gave her, as a wedding gift, a diamond collar.

It disappeared mysteriously, and to make matters worse, old William Drew, the butler, the only person, except the thief, who might possibly tell where it went, was found dead.

(15) JIM CURRY'S TEST

By David Manning

This is primarily a tale of Western adventure, but in some respects it is the story of a horse. Meg was a splendid, white mare, and she flits in and out of the pages of the story much to the reader's edification.

As a Western story, it fills all requirements. As a horse story, it will delight the lover of animals.

Thorndyke Flint discovers the safe belonging to the Japanese curio dealer. From "The Tracking of K. K.," by Douglas Grey.

(16) THE TRACKING OF K. K.

By Douglas Grey

The detective in this story is Thorndyke Flint. He is confronted by the mystery of a dead Japanese curio dealer, and the disappearance of a very rare piece of Chinese bronze of great antiquity.

The case finally resolves itself into the question: Who killed Lin Kitura? Thorndyke Flint answers it to the satisfaction of everybody.

(17) KING CHARLIE'S RIDERS

By David Manning

King Charlie ruled a very unusual kingdom, and his subjects were extraordinary and nondescript.

They certainly were not as good as they might have been, but when they decided to use their ill-gotten gains for a very surprising purpose, they set things in motion, and this story is the result.

(18) UNWELCOME SETTLERS

By James Roberts

Obeying Greeley's injunction, "Go West, young man, go West," Neil Sterret first secures a wife and afterward gives evidence of strength of character that surprises everybody, even himself. His experience with "Left Hand," a man of mystery, quick on the draw, makes a very unusual Western story.

(19) WHISPERING CAÑON

By James Roberts

Whispering Cañon is a fascinating spot. This story peoples it with some very likable folks, and some who are not quite so attractive; "Red" Saunders, for instance.

"Uncle Matt" Simms and Rance Rundel are two of the good characters, and their adventures make this story really worth while.

(20) SQUATTERS AT DABCHICK LAKE

By Emart Kinsburn

Tom Trentacosta, otherwise "Thirty Ribs," was a thorough tramp and proud of it. Moreover, he was a celebrity of trampdom—a king of the road.

When he threw in his fortunes with "Neckyoke" Talley, and his daughter, Grace, to homestead at Dabchick Lake, it was the beginning of a new life for Thirty Ribs.

(21) THE BOSS OF CAMP FOUR

By Emart Kinsburn

They sold "Spookmule" Paxton twenty thousand acres of land, and before the ink was dry on the deed they were doing their best to get it back.

Why? And who are "they?" Paxton is thoroughly capable of taking care of himself, and the manner in which he does it excites admiration.

(22) WATCHED OUT

By Eugene A. Clancy

This is a tale in which Wall Street figures. Given some crooked work on the part of some crooked people, the author makes the most of his opportunity, until in the end the reader is perfectly satisfied that John Gore, although he won happiness and fortune, deserved them.

Charles W. Tyler, author of "Quality Bill's Girl" and "Blue Jean Billy."

(23) QUALITY BILL'S GIRL

By Charles W. Tyler

"Blue Jean Billy" Race is an unusual character, a girl whose obsession is the memory of an injustice visited upon her father, "Old Quality Bill." Blue Jean is a seagoing bandit, and it does not make any difference to her whether she goes on board a boat or swims.

(24) THE COYOTE

By James Roberts

When a man is forced to flee in the Arizona desert, with a price upon his head, when he is regarded as the possessor of a very sinister reputation, then either he has played life a scurvy trick, or he has not been used fairly.

Roger Rathburn went into the desert country as an outlaw and a gunman. He came out—but that is the story.

(25) THE SCARLET SCOURGE

By Johnston McCulley

Sergeant Sam Haynes decided that the way to tackle a hard job is to work hard at it. So, when Lorenzo Brayton, investment swindler, was found dead in his office, Sam got to work.

There were dozens of persons who might have killed Brayton, but only one did it, and Haynes discovered him.

(26) ANNE AGAINST THE WORLD

By Victor Thorne

Anne, a shy little home girl, is the heroine of a romantic love story. She was driven out into the world by her desire to help her talented brother, and was led into grave danger.

Before love and fortune find her, she has a very interesting career.

(27) ROVIN' REDDEN

By James Roberts

When Joel Landon robbed a bank, he naturally resented Lem Redden's interference, but the latter fixed things so that he himself went to jail in Joel's place.

After matters were explained to Sheriff Blackburn, there didn't seem to be any way of getting Lem out except to let him break jail, and that led to more trouble.

(28) GOLDEN ISLE

By Roland Ashford Phillips

Concealing jail breakers is not usually a healthy or profitable occupation. In the case of the escape of Rex Costello from Sing Sing, however, Lloyd Bucknell found that it was very much to his advantage to hide the prisoner and afterward to take him on a treasure hunt.

(29) THE KIDNAPING SYNDICATE

By Christopher B. Booth

The friendship formed in the prison cell by Pallister, the forger, and "Twisty," the yegg, led to the inception of "The Kidnaping Syndicate." After they were released, the pair embarked on one of the most astounding criminal enterprises ever conceived by warped human minds; but there came the inevitable day of reckoning.

(30) THE HUSKS OF LIFE

By Mary Douglas

Jennie Riley was a beauty, make no mistake about that. She was forced to flee from the unpleasant attentions of the foreman of the factory in which she worked. Wandering on the streets, she picked up an envelope addressed to an artist in Greenwich Village. She took it to the address, and then life began for her.

Many loves were offered her in her new surroundings, but there came a time when she realized that errant flames of love and fleeting moments of romance are only "the husks of life," and it was then that she learned the lesson of true love.

"Black Mike" on the desert. From "The Golden Bowl," by Harrison Conrard.

(31) THE GOLDEN BOWL

By Harrison Conrard

Gold, plenty of it, appears in this story of Arizona. "Black Mike's" father and some friends had just discovered a bonanza spot so rich as to look like the treasure box of Croesus.

Notwithstanding this, Mike chose a precarious vocation which was made even more so by the inexorable natural laws of the desert.

(32) WHOSE MILLIONS?

By Joseph Montague

Wanted: An heir to an English estate worth twenty million dollars. Jim Woolworth, the man delegated to find the missing heir, is beset by all sorts of cranks, and finally by a gang of crooks.

Dorothy Denslow, the heroine, is the girl with whom Jim is in love. She is really worth loving.

(33) THE SPIDER'S DEN

By Johnston McCulley

"The Spider" was a crook, a master criminal, crippled in body and hideous in appearance. He recruited most of his gang from the ranks of respectable young men who were temporarily in financial difficulty. John Warwick happened to be one of these, and he had some exciting adventures as a member of The Spider's organization.

(34) HER DESERT LOVER

By Louisa Carter Lee

When Philip Lane opened his dining-room window to admit Beatrice Hale, Fate stalked in at her side.

All through the evil hours, the heart-breaking disappointments which followed, Fate still stood at Philip's shoulder, exercising an influence over him that could not be denied. A romantic love story of a most unusual type.

(35) OBJECT: ADVENTURE

By Ray Courtney

Kent McGregor wanted a job on a Western ranch, so he advertised in the newspapers. "Object: Adventure," his message ran.

As a result, he was hired by one O. B. Davis, but when he went out to meet his new employer at the Bar Diamond Ranch, O. B. Davis proved to be a very attractive girl. Kent's craving for adventure, however, was more than satisfied by the events that followed.

(36) THE CRATER OF KALA

By Joseph Montague

Here is a vivid story of the South Seas. Professor Lang and his daughter, Dorcas, charter the Ahimanu for a journey of exploration.

Jim Waring has a mighty tough job in protecting the professor and his daughter from "Red" Johnson, the buckaroo skipper.

(37) THE DEMON

By Johnston McCulley

"Big Charlie" Snokes, gang leader, killed Alderman Redson, political boss.

Both men had been interested in the same girl, which is only one of many reasons why things began to happen with a swiftness that was startling, and with a purpose that was unfathomable until Captain Camisell, of the detective bureau, took a hand.

(38) THE WOMAN IN MAUVE

By Georgette MacMillan

Ronald Franklin was what the world calls a confirmed bachelor. Then, one night, he met the one woman—a dark, slender girl, with the delicate features of a cameo—but she vanished almost as suddenly as she had appeared.

He found her again in a new rôle—as the notorious "Woman in Mauve," and his devotion was severely tested. A charming love story interwoven with a baffling mystery.

(39) THE CACTUS KID

By James Roberts

He hailed from Texas. They did not know his name; he would not tell them. So they called him "The Cactus Kid."

He could play any known tune with a six-gun, and was suspected of being an outlaw. Much to the surprise of every one, he put himself on the side of law and order. A breezy, delightful story of the West.

(40) AROUND THE WORLD IN EIGHTY HOURS

By William Wallace Cook

David Whitley, of Detroit, agreed to pilot an airplane around the world within a week. John Morning, the manufacturer of the plane, agreed to pay him $100,000, if he did so.

Quite a good week's salary! Did Dave earn it? Well, after reading this story, we are inclined to believe that he did.

William Wallace Cook, author of "Around the World in Eighty Hours."

(41) A SEASIDE MYSTERY

By Christopher B. Booth

The loss of Mrs. Hendershott's hand bag at the country club was the signal for a train of exciting events which followed so closely together that Jim Bliss, a New York detective, certainly had his hands full.

The most puzzling question that Jim had to answer was: "Who killed Grant Curwood?"

(42) A GIRL AGAINST ODDS

By Marcia Montaigne

Katherine Waite, walking along a country road, discovered an unconscious man. She had never seen him before, but she had him taken to her home and treated by a physician.

Much to her surprise, it developed that he was the owner of a huge estate and very wealthy. Of course, this is a good start for a love story.

Steve Brent on the trail. From "The Cavalier of Rabbit Butte," by James Roberts.

(43) THE CAVALIER OF RABBIT BUTTE

By James Roberts

A story of the cattle country where outlaws and rustlers are operating.

Every one will be interested in Steve Brent, who, although he admits that any one could write all he knows on the white spaces on the ten of clubs, nevertheless enjoys unusual gifts of mind and body.

(44) FOOLS OF TREASURE

By W. E. Schutt

An inverted, homemade American flag, a tiny island off the African coast, a vast treasure, a most interesting girl, a satisfactory male character—these are the ingredients of this story, bound together by the strongest bonds of adventure, assailed by enemies and the elements, but emerging triumphant at the end.

(45) THE EYEWITNESS

By John Paul Seabrooke

Lawyer Colby went to visit his wealthy client, Lloyd Latshaw. He was met with a most astonishing request on Latshaw's part, that a codicil be added to his will, disinheriting his young wife under certain circumstances.

Tragedy followed hard upon the heels of this request, leaving a tangle of trouble, doubt, and anguish on Colby's hands for unraveling.

(46) HER WEDDING RING

By Marcia Montaigne

When Tom Storms, a young musician, met Rose Ellison, youth called to youth, but there were obstacles. With the proverbial impetuosity of youth, they sought to override these obstacles, instead of trying to find a way around them. A story that will appeal to all who like a fine romance.

(47) TUMBLEBUG RANCH

By Emart Kinsburn

This story reveals a little-known phase of the West—the life of the construction camps that build the railroads across the great stretches of the Southwestern desert regions.

"Prince Pliny" Bates, his father, "Bellowing" Bates, the contractor, Nancy Ransom, and other characters in the story will make a lasting impression on the reader's memory.

(48) WHERE THE TRAIL DIVIDES

By Roland Ashford Phillips

A Royal Canadian Mounted Police story. Certain disturbances lead Inspector McCloud into the hands of "Blondy" Morgan and his gang.

The adventures which he and his companion, Sergeant Fraser, have, are exciting and interesting, to a degree sufficient to satisfy the most exacting demand in that respect.

(49) FOUR KNOCKS ON THE DOOR

By John Paul Seabrooke

A series of murders baffles the police and engages the attention of the famous private detective, Norman Clyde. All the victims of the unknown assassins, it develops, were born on the same day, November 16th.

How Norman Clyde solves the mystery from the slender clews that the case affords is a revelation of ingenious detective methods.

(50) THE MAN WHO MARRIED FOR MONEY

By Victor Thorne

In a fit of jealous anger, John Grant accused his sweetheart, Nancy Leigh, of accepting the attentions of his rival. Too proud to deny the charge, Nancy let him drift away from her.

Then John Grant married a wealthy woman, thinking to console himself for the thing he had lost. An absorbing romance.

(51) THE BLACK SIGNAL

By David Manning

There was something a little unnatural in the daring of Lew Melody, something frightful in his hunger for danger. But when he met Mary Furnival, known as "Sandy," throughout that rugged section of the mountain-desert country, a great change was wrought in him. A splendid tale of the primitive West.

(52) FRASER'S FOLLY

By W. E. Schutt

For eleven years the two exiles, Fraser and the man who called himself Philip Nolan, wandered up and down the western watershed of the Andes. Then they found a gold-bearing quartz ledge that proved a magnet for a sorry crew of scoundrels. A story of rogues rampant, with action crowded on action.

(53) SHADOW HALL

By John Paul Seabrooke

The name fitted the house—a place of mystery, a solid, somber gray building, square and uncompromising, with balconies on each side.

When Rachel Mallory went to Shadow Hall, she did so with a premonition of evil, and it was not long before her nameless dread was turned into reality. A story with a finely sustained atmosphere of uncanny mystery.

(54) THE LOVE BRIDGE

By Mary Imlay Taylor

To Duncan Hart, the engineer, his bridge across the mighty cañon was a dream. He had grown to love it. He wanted his sweetheart, Alice Rankin, to be the first woman to cross it; but another girl, a daughter of the wilderness, risked her life in order to be the first of her sex to go over its span. A love story laid in one of the wildest regions of the West.

Jefferson Briggs on the trail to Blind Gulch. From "The Luck of Blind Gulch," by Joseph Montague.

(55) THE LUCK OF BLIND GULCH

By Joseph Montague

The letter was written on coarse paper and transgressed all the laws of grammatical correspondence, but it brought visions of untold wealth to Jefferson Briggs, on his run-down Missouri farm. "They's gold all over the Sierra," was the sentence that constantly swam before his eyes and rang in his ears.

A splendid Western story of the days of the California gold rush.

(56) OTHER FOLKS' MONEY

By W. B. M. Ferguson

When Wayne Carrington found a wallet containing several hundred dollars, it seemed like a godsend. Not only for poor, frightened Quigley, the bank cashier who had "borrowed" from the bank and begged for help, but for himself it would mean everything. Should he keep it? That was the question that tempted Carrington.

One strange incident after another followed the finding of the wallet, and Carrington soon realized that the possession of other folks' money does not bring peace of mind.

An ingenious adventure story of everyday life—the romance that every man meets, but seldom recognizes.

(57) BLACK STAR'S RETURN

By Johnston McCulley

Never has there been a more popular picaresque character than Black Star. Suave rogue and master villain that he is, his exploits have a sardonic humor and a compelling fascination, so that one never tires of reading about them.

Johnston McCulley, author of "The Black Star," "The Scarlet Scourge," "The Avenging Twins," et cetera. From a portrait sketch by Maurine McCulley.

(58) THE GOLDEN TEMPTATION

By Victor Thorne

People referred to Clayton Carr as a "master of men." Success had come to him in everything—except love. The story of his beginning life all over again and winning his way to true love and happiness makes an unusually fine romance.

(59) BLACKIE AND RED

By David Manning

They ran away from an orphan asylum, and Andy Connell, the old prospector, gave them shelter. They hated each other and fought time and time again; yet they always stuck together.

A fine outdoor story, dealing with the adventures of two boys as they grow up to manhood in the Western mountain country.

(60) SOUTH OF FIFTY-THREE

By Jack Bechdolt

Jonathan Hayes was in many respects a primitive man. He knew little or nothing of the ways of civilization, for he had lived all his life on the bleak shores of Kalvik Island, off the coast of Alaska. When it became known that Hayes held the secret of an immensely valuable cache of sealskins, he became the object of more than one conspiracy. An adventure story with an unusual plot.

(61) THE WOMAN IN 919

By John Paul Seabrooke

At the Winsonia Hotel, where she occupied room 919, she was known as Mrs. Harlowe Green. She had married a weak-minded young scion of wealth, whose family was endeavoring to buy her off. She had other enemies, too, and one night her career of trickery and intrigue was terminated in a tragic manner. Inspector Nash's solution of the complicated problem was a fine piece of detective work.

(62) MR. CLACKWORTHY

By Christopher B. Booth

A book full of laughs and surprises, which incidentally furnishes an illuminating revelation of the confidence game as played by an expert con man, and which may prove a means of warning to the unwary who are likely to fall for some of the Mr. Clackworthys of real life.

(63) THE WAGON BOSS

By Emart Kinsburn

Here we again meet Chet Fanning, whose adventures proved so entertaining in Mr. Kinsburn's other book, "The Boss of Camp Four." Few, if any, other writers know the life of the construction camps of the West better than Emart Kinsburn. This story reveals phases of Western life of which many people have never even heard.

Rawson of the Mounted takes the trail for Back of Beyond Valley. From "Back of Beyond," by Ethel and James Dorrance.

(64) BACK OF BEYOND

By Ethel Smith Dorrance and James French Dorrance

Against the advice of Sergeant Alfred Rawson, of the Mounted Police, Doctor Kirkland and his daughter, Louise, pushed on to Back of Beyond Valley, although winter was close at hand. Soon the Yukon country was in the grip of the blizzard, and then a call for help came to Rawson from the remote northern valley.

A splendid tale of the Yukon.

(65) MR. CHANG OF SCOTLAND YARD

By A. E. Apple

Of the many striking criminal characters in the pages of detective fiction, few are more fascinating, more enthralling, than the smooth, debonair Chinaman, Mr. Chang. While the reader will shudder at Mr. Chang's deeds, he will be amazed by the quick turns and surprises with which the story is filled, as the Chinese supercriminal matches his wits against the sleuth hounds of the law.

(66) WANDA OF THE WHITE SAGE

By Roy Ulrich

The first surprise was when the girl called at Mrs. Richmond's dingy boarding house and asked to see Dan Chadwick. The second surprise came when she offered Dan a job that carried with it a retaining fee of twenty-five thousand dollars. But the third and greatest surprise came when she announced that one of the conditions of the bargain was that he must marry her. A love story, with a goodly admixture of adventure.

(67) GOOD HATERS

By George Gilbert

When her father died, Irene Carson determined to run his ranch, the Bar Z Bar, by herself. There were lots of good cowmen round about who would have been glad to share her lot, but Irene would have none of them. Finally she hired Anse Rodmere, who was about as much of a woman-hater as she was a man-hater. After that, Bar Z Bar was the scene of some exciting action.

(68) TOUCHING CLOUD

By Ethel Smith Dorrance and James French Dorrance

This story is laid in one of the wildest and most magnificent wilderness regions of the West—the Ute Indian country. Touching Cloud is the son of a Ute chief, and at the outset he is plunged into grave danger of the law on account of suspicious circumstances in which he is placed. There are many scenes of stirring adventure in this little-known region.

(69) $10,000 REWARD

By Christopher B. Booth

When Jim Travis came to Overlook Manor he found many things which did not please him. Events crowded one another rapidly in the days that followed, and it was not long before they reached their climax in a most peculiar crime.

An ingenious piece of detective fiction, with plenty of dramatic situations to keep the reader's interest aglow down to the final dénouement.

(70) THE WIFE OF ASA PINCHEON

By Anne O'Hagan

Marjorie McDermot married Asa Pincheon because she had fallen in love with him practically at first sight. Then she proceeded to learn the unfortunate truth that you never know a man until you are married to him.

An absorbing romance of married life—of young love that is sweet and thrilling, and of jealousy and passion, the things of which marital tragedy is made.

(71) THE BRUTE

By David Manning

He came out of the wilderness, a man of splendid physique, capable of conquering the world and winning a fortune for himself. But civilization got its grip on him, and he drifted into a life of drunkenness and crime. He became The Brute—a creature to be hated and dreaded. Then Crusader came into his life, Crusader, the magnificent stallion, whose noble qualities inspired an affection that aroused The Brute's dormant manhood.

(72) RED MOUNTAIN, LIMITED

By Eugene A. Clancy

This is the narrative of the adventures of Eddie Burke, a nimble-witted youth with a sense of humor and a philosophy which taught him to make lots of money and get plenty of fun out of life. When a gentleman from the West came to shoot Eddie's business partner, John J. Rodman, young Mr. Burke saw a chance to gratify his liking for both money and amusement.

(73) THE WIZARD'S SPYGLASS

By Emart Kinsburn

Assuming a dead man's identity seemed an excellent way for Kern Lambert to cover his own tracks; but his impersonation of the suicide, Judson Cross, led him into the turmoil of criminal intrigue which Cross had killed himself to avoid.

A detective story in which action, romance, mystery, and adventure are skillfully combined.

(74) QUICKSANDS

By Victor Thorne

The girl, a startling beauty, brought up in poverty, was starved for the luxuries which money and money alone could bring. Her chance came when her seamstress mother died, leaving her five thousand dollars, insurance money, which she immediately determined to spend on a whirlwind campaign for a husband with millions. Eventually she learned what constitutes real happiness, but not before she had clutched vainly at false dreams and illusions. A love story that deals with a vital problem of modern life.

(75) THE FIGHTING WADES

By John H. Hamlin

Down in the cow country around Long Shadow Valley, the Spur Tracks Ranch was run by the Widow Wade—a lonely, grim, embittered old woman, who had never recovered from the shock of her son's marriage to a gay butterfly of a girl, twenty years previously. When the child of that marriage, her granddaughter, Fanchon, came to Spur Tracks for a visit, the reception which the old ranch woman prepared for her was calculated to overawe the girl. The events that followed made a decidedly novel Western yarn.

John H. Hamlin, author of "The Fighting Wades," poses for his picture just after a deer hunt in the Lava Beds of Modoc County, California.

(76) RONICKY DOONE
By David Manning

In and around the town of Stillwater, in the mountain-desert country of the West, Ronicky Doone made his living as a gambler. He had something of a reputation, too, as a champion of lost causes. One of his strangest adventures was that which took him East to New York, in company with Bill Gregg, a chance acquaintance of the trail.

(77) BLUE JEAN BILLY
By Charles W. Tyler

In "Quality Bill's Girl," Mr. Tyler told how Blue Jean Billy, a wild, free, glorious creature of the sea, was won away from her life of outlawry by her love for Robert Wood, the detective. In this story, a sequel to "Quality Bill's Girl," something happens to put the iron of bitterness into the girl's heart against the law and its representatives, and she resumes her rôle of highwaywoman of the sea.

(78) RIM O' THE RANGE
By Ethel Smith Dorrance and James French Dorrance

Even though the Arizomex Ranch was regarded as a well-nigh worthless property, scarcely affording sufficient feed for its cattle, it figured in a pretty crafty conspiracy engineered by old H. C. Livermore, president of the Lariat National Bank of Mesquite Wells. Clever intrigue, stirring adventure, and a pleasing romance make this an unusual story of the colorful Mexican-border country.

(79) WILD BILL
By Joseph Montague

Of the many brave pioneers who figured in the winning of the West, probably none stands out more splendidly and in more noble and heroic proportions than the man who was known as "Wild Bill" Hickok.

In this story, the author reveals Wild Bill as the fine, courageous, thoroughly likable human character that he was. Hickok comes to life in these pages, with all his indomitable courage, his splendid manhood, in a glorious romance based on his picturesque career.

(80) THE GLACIER GATE
By Frank Lillie Pollock

When Doctor Rupert Lang was summoned on board a yacht lying in Mobile Bay to attend a sick man, he thought he was merely going on an ordinary errand of mercy. As a matter of fact, he was being made the tool of a crew of scoundrels seeking to wrest the secret of the Glacier Gate and its priceless store of emeralds from Morrison, the explorer, whom they had in their power.

Frank Lillie Pollock, author of "The Glacier Gate," "Rainbow Landing," and "Mirador Treasure."

(81) THE AMATEUR DETECTIVES
By Christopher B. Booth

When Tom Cotton was mysteriously murdered, it gave Andy Wicks and his sweetheart, Tess Kennedy, their long-awaited chance to test their ability as detectives. An unusual detective story which shows what a couple of keen-witted young people can accomplish in a line of investigation that is supposed to be the exclusive province of highly trained experts.

(82) MARCIA
By Anne O'Hagan

Disillusionment came to Marcia Bostwick very shortly after her marriage to Doctor Loring Bristow, and it was not long before the inevitable "other woman" began to figure in the proceedings. How she worked out her problems forms the basis of an absorbing romance of married life, with many high lights of drama and tragedy in its pages.

(83) COWGIRLS—PLUS

By George Gilbert

When her father died, leaving his ranch to her stepmother, Prima Jensen decided to ride for a job. Prima was a crackajack cowgirl; she could ride herd, brand, break horses, and swing a lariat with the best cow hand. As a result of a newspaper ad, she hired out to Henrietta Bascom, who was inexperienced in the ways of the cow country. How she helped the tenderfoot ranch woman out of her difficulties makes as novel and diverting a tale of the Western cattle country as one can wish to read.

Gordon MacCreagh, traveler, adventurer, explorer, has put some of the vivid experiences he has lived into his fiction. He is the author of "The Inca's Ransom" and "Poisonous Mist."

(84) THE INCA'S RANSOM

By Gordon MacCreagh

Down through the centuries, ever since the first coming of the white men, the fabled gold mines of the Incas of Peru have been the objective of covetous adventurers. Mamu, the ancient seer of the Incas, protected the gold from the marauding Spaniards, and in modern times his descendant, also known as Mamu, kept faithful watch over the treasure.

(85) THE CRIMSON BLADE

By Madeleine Sharps Buchanan

The job of ticket seller in the New Palace Theater proved a big temptation to young Milton Barnes, but he resisted it successfully until his friend, Maizie Montour, suggested a scheme whereby he could safely annex a good slice of his employer's money. In getting away with his loot, however, Barnes found himself involved in a darker, more gruesome crime. The murder mystery in which he became entangled was a complicated one, and it required exceptional ingenuity to solve it.

(86) THE AWAKENING OF ROMOLA

By Anne O'Hagan

Romance had apparently died for Romola Ventnor. She was thirty-two, comfortably married, and devoted to her four children. But Romola was not without attraction for men other than her husband, and in one instance a love affair of dangerous proportions developed.

(87) RONICKY DOONE'S TREASURE

By David Manning

Adventure never stayed long away from Ronicky Doone. He was a born soldier of fortune and champion of lost causes. When, therefore, he saved Hugh Dawn from being killed by a band of outlaws, he started on a new trail that led him on a treasure hunt in company with Dawn and his daughter Geraldine, better known as "Jerry."

(88) FAST MONEY

By Eugene A. Clancy

Jim Coulter and Wall Street did not mix. Before the Exchange opened that day, he had been worth three hundred thousand dollars. At four o'clock the same afternoon, his money was gone. Eventually he evened the score with the crooked speculators who had cleaned him out, and the manner of his doing it makes an entertaining and ingenious tale.

(89) THE GREEN BAG

By John Paul Seabrooke

The mysterious murder of Mrs. Sarah Copping, known as the meanest person in Crown Point, aroused little sympathy for the victim, but it gave a lot of trouble to District Attorney Jack Hall and his friend, Luke Osgood, who tried to get at the bottom of the affair. A green bag containing a large quantity of valuable jewelry figured prominently in the investigation.

(90) LENNISTER OF BLUE DOME

By James Roberts

No one had ever heard a first name applied to him. He was just Lennister. There were many wild rumors concerning his past, but he was credited with breaking up rustling bands in Wyoming and had done good work as a "special agent" for various cattlemen's associations in the Musselshell country. Now he was hired to put an end to the rustling activities of Bolt Blodgett and his gang of rustlers on Blue Dome range, and this proved one of the most perilous adventures of his career.

(91) TWO-GUN GERTA

By C. C. Waddell and Carroll John Daly

A rollicking Western yarn, dealing with the adventures of "Red" Conners, who has been doing cowboy stuff in the movies and decides to take a vacation trip across the Mexican border. He is hired by Miss Gerta O'Beirne, otherwise known as "Two-gun Gerta," to manage her property, the Voreza Ranch. There is a good deal of mystery about the place, and Red has some startling adventures in getting at the bottom of things.

(92) RAINBOW LANDING

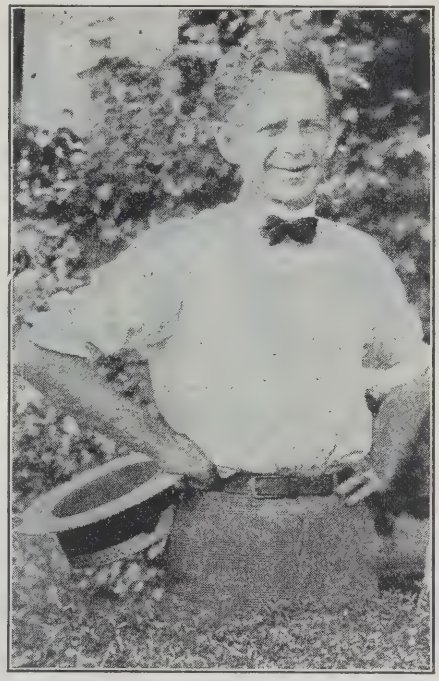
By Frank Lillie Pollock

It was a grim chase that led Lockwood to Alabama's pine woods to work in a turpentine camp. But when he found his man he also found some one else who made him desire something better than to kill. There is a relentless grip to this story from beginning to end. Incidentally, it contains a lot of interesting information about Alabama's turpentine industry.

(93) THE PHANTOM ALIBI

By Henry Leverage

The crime was already solved when Sidney Marway, special investigator, was called in on the case. The evidence against Andrew Knight, brother of the murdered man, was overwhelming, and he was under sentence of death when Marway went out to the little Pennsylvania town where the crime was committed. When Marway got to work, however, he uncovered a lot of new evidence and finally placed the guilt where it really belonged. A dramatic mystery story by the author of "Whispering Wires."



Henry Leverage, author of "The Phantom Alibi" and "The Purple Limited."

(94) MARK TURNS WEST

By Mary Imlay Taylor

When Mark Brent returned to his home in the West after an absence of several years, his chief possession was a pouch of diamonds, which he had acquired in the course of his wanderings. These stones had brought trouble in their wake before, and they continued to exert a sinister influence on Mark's fortunes. A fine tale of adventure in the mountain country of the West.

(95) ON THE TRAIL OF FOUR

By David Manning

Himself an outlaw, with a price of fifteen thousand dollars on his head, Hugo Ames set out from his hole-in-the-wall country of the Western mountain wilderness to ride on the trail of the men who had killed his friend, Truck Janvers. And what a series of perilous adventures he encountered in his search for the slayers of the old prospector!

Ames' first objective was the town of San Marin, and there, posing as a Mexican gentleman of leisure, he soon made his way into the very lair of the killers and accomplished his purpose, but with results that were a complete surprise to him.

(96) STRAIGHT CROOKS

By Howard Fielding

A curious experiment in criminal reclamation was the quasidetective bureau started by the famous criminologist, Woodburn Newcomb, under the name of the Practical Scientific Reform Association. In charge of this organization were three notorious and picturesque criminals, ostensibly "going straight."

The real trial of the association's stability occurred when the affair of the Burgoyne pearls came on the carpet, and Newcomb, the master mind of the organization, was well out of the way in the Far East.

(97) POISONOUS MIST

By Gordon MacCreagh

Out of the rubber jungles of the Amazon, strange rumors of natives who traded quills of gold for merchandise reached Bill Blair, as he loitered in Manaos. To Blair, it was the call of adventure, and he lost no time in organizing an expedition to go to the source of the treasure. His objective was the almost unknown "Creek of Poisonous Mist," and it is doubtful if he would have come through his adventure with his life, but for the loyalty of his native follower, Ohkohthithero, otherwise "The River Cat."

(98) THE LOOTED BONANZA

By E. Whitman Chambers

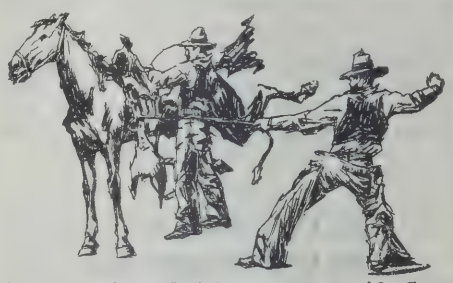
The boom days had passed in that part of the rugged Sierra country. Formerly, gold-mad miners had wrested millions in treasure from the heart of the mountains. Now the region was given over to the sheepmen. But there was one man who had faith in his mining property, known as Crimson Castle, and he stuck to it determinedly with the stubbornness of an old man who hopes to realize a long-cherished dream. This man was Pete—otherwise "Cap"—Curtis.

When Donald Belding, a mining engineer, went to investigate the Crimson Castle in behalf of his company, he found that, although the old mine was generally considered worthless, efforts were constantly being made to acquire the property. This set the engineer to thinking and investigating.

(99) JUST BUCKAROOS

By Robert Ormond Case

If you want to meet real cowboys, taken directly from life, you will find them in the two leading characters of this book —"Lonesome" McQuirk and "Windy" de Long. There's nothing of the overdressed moving-picture cow-puncher about them. They're plain, everyday hombres of the Oregon ranges, middle-aged, hard-bitten, shy of women, skilled in the handling of cards and six-guns, thoroughly loyal and courageous.



"Lonesome" McQuirk prepares to ride Starchaser. From "Just Buckaroos," by Robert Ormond Case.

(100) THE PURPLE LIMITED

By Henry Leverage

It was one of the most remarkable railroad robberies that criminal ingenuity had ever conceived. To hold up a train, rifling the express or mail car and relieving passengers of their valuables, is a simple matter, but in this case a gang of thieves had made away with the whole train, the Purple Limited, one of the crack flyers of the C. M. & Western.

The account of how Darrah, the division superintendent, Larkins, the car checker, the railroad detectives, and others followed up the trail of the Purple Limited until they learned the secret of its disappearance, makes as baffling and engrossing a mystery story as this popular writer has ever produced.

(101) MASQUERADE

By William Morton

Being held up by masked robbers is always an exciting experience, and Anne Carfax was properly thrilled when the adventure befell her while she was driving her car along a lonely stretch of country road. But the excitement did not end there. Within a few minutes, Anne learned that her rescuer was none other than "Gentleman Joe," alias "Smiler" Carey, the escaped convict for whom the whole countryside was searching. She felt that she owed him something for driving away the thugs who had held her up, so she protected him from the sheriff and then hired him as her chauffeur.

(102) SPANISH NUGGETS
By Emart Kinsburn

It was the diary of a tramp known as "Kokomo, the Crow," otherwise Miguel Vincente, that caused young Tupelo Troy to give up the easy life of a gentleman of leisure in Los Angeles, and set out on a quest for buried treasure in the big-timber country of northern California. With him went his newly acquired wife, Madroña, a half sister of the writer of the diary and the heiress to the wealth when it should be found.

(103) THE MOUNTAIN FUGITIVE
By David Manning

Mischief-maker, town bully, overgrown idler, such was Leon Porfilo as a boy. In the hope of mending his ways, his mother placed him under the tutelage of Father McGuire, the parish priest of the little desert town of Mendez, and though that good man taught him a lot and reformed his waywardness to a great extent, Leon's natural propensity for getting into trouble soon asserted itself, and it was not long before he was a fugitive in the mountains, wanted by the law.

(104) THE TELLTALE PRINT
By Christopher B. Booth

The penalty that old men must pay for having young wives was not long in coming to Hopkinson Perrin, following his marriage to lovely Myra Fleming. Jealousy and suspicion haunted his mind with their agonizing terrors. It was not long before this strained situation reached a tragic outcome, and the events that followed furnished a mystery that was, on the face of it, unsolvable.

(105) FLUID OF THE SUN
By Clair Lombard

It was a mighty dream of water-power development that brought the young engineer, Gail Halleck, to the big-timber country of Whitewater Valley, where François Gascoigne reigned as lumber king. When Halleck reached his destination, and proceeded to put the plans of his company into execution, he found that the ousting of the old lumberman would not be an easy task.

(106) SILVER SPURS
By Joseph Montague

To "Dixie" Tyler, the silver spurs that he always wore served as a symbol of the urge that made a rover of him, looking always for what lay beyond the mountains.

Herding the logs to the sluice gate. From "Fluid of the Sun," by Clair Lombard.

And so, when he rode into Robador Cañon and fell in with a trio of scoundrels, he was right in his element when they tried to start something with him, and he easily showed himself their master with the six-gun.

This was the first episode of his adventures in that part of the Southwestern cattle and sheep-range country, and those which followed proved him a man of rare courage.

(107) THE HOUSE OF CARSON
By Arthur Mallory

When he set out to spend a few weeks as the guest of the Carsons at their home on Chautauqua Lake, Arthur Ward thought that he would have a quiet, uneventful time; but that was where he was mistaken. Even as he was being driven from the railway station on the evening of his arrival, he got an inkling of the devastating fear, the terrible sense of disaster that haunted his host, George Carson.

There was no apparent reason for this nameless terror that held George Carson in its grip, but as Ward prolonged his visit, one episode piled on top of another until the mystery reached its terrible climax.

(108) BANDIT'S HONOR
By David Manning

More of the adventurous career of Leon Porfilo is related in the pages of this stirring volume. In "The Mountain Fugitive," the curious chain of circumstances by which Leon was driven into the mountains, a fugitive from justice, was revealed. In

"Bandit's Honor" the author relates how Leon fought his way back to an honorable position in the world.

(109) HONEY OF DANGER
By Frank Lillie Pollock

A fugitive in the forest wilderness of northern Ontario, Delaine, the chemist and artist, thought he had found a safe haven from the sleuth hounds of the law on an isolated bee ranch. As it happened, however, there was fresh trouble brewing at this place, and it was of more serious nature than that which he had fled to escape. Before long, Delaine found himself involved in a criminal conspiracy of appalling magnitude.

(110) HAWKS OF HAZARD
By Joseph Montague

Yielding to the irresistible call of adventure, Vance Loudon embarked at Samoa as a passenger for a cruise on the trading schooner Manawa. The fare took half his worldly capital, but the voyage was rich with the promise of strange scenes among the remote Madegburg group of islands, in the Pacific, and Loudon could not withstand the temptation.

(111) THE AVENGING TWINS
By Johnston McCulley

Their uncle had been ruined by a powerful group of business men. From a legal point of view, these influential rascals had done nothing wrong. The law could not be invoked to punish them for the suffering and misery they had caused; and yet they had taken advantage of the elder Selbon. The twin sons of the ruined man, Peter and Paul Selbon, determined to right their father's wrong.

(112) ARIZONA GOLD
By E. Whitman Chambers

Down in the little desert town of Aztec, Arizona, old John Sanderson had a hard fight on his hands to carry on his gold-dredging operations in opposition to the powerful North Star mining interests. The Sunken Buttes gang of desperadoes and outlaws were also working for the North Star, to ruin Sanderson and prevent him from using his water rights.

When Jerry Harding went to Aztec and arrayed himself on Sanderson's side, it looked as though he were espousing a lost cause, but Harding was a fighting man who didn't know the meaning of the word "quit," and he stuck to the finish.

(113) THE EDGED TOOL
By William Morton

Never was there a more tangled web of mendacity spun than that into which John Fraser was lured, when he went to work under the direction of his cousin, Alan Hooker, at The Towers, and it was no deep-laid design of his own that turned him from an unwitting accomplice into an "edged tool" in the hands of a clever scoundrel.

(114) THE CARVED TRAIL
By Emart Kinsburn

A cheap, cloth-covered suit case, offered for sale at an express company's auction in San Francisco—and Christopher Horn's last thirty-five cents! Vagabond and adventurer that he was, Horn could not resist the temptation to acquire the suit case. In it he found a clew to the missing heir to a fortune—Dwight Letts, alias "Frisco Slim," hobo. It was a strange trail that Horn set himself to follow as a result of this find—the carved trail of trampdom, marked by a string of monikers carved on trees, water tanks, and railroad shacks.

Mary Imlay Taylor, author of "Mark Turns West," "The Love Bridge," and "The Man Who Awoke."

(115) THE MAN WHO AWOKE
By Mary Imlay Taylor

When John Richieson awoke one morning in a strange room with his appearance greatly changed, he had doubts of his own identity. Everything combined to confirm his fears. People addressed him as "Horace Barney," and assured him that the fine home in which he found himself belonged to him. Mystery piles on mystery in this absorbing tale of a lost personality.

(116) WESTERN TOMMY

By David Manning

The reader must decide for himself whether there was more good or bad in Tommy Mayo, otherwise known as "Western Tommy." But from the very first chapter to the last, it is a glorious tale of Western adventure, of hard riding and fast shooting, of high courage and daring deeds, of the youth, Western Tommy, and the magnificent black stallion, Hagan.

(117) MIRADOR TREASURE

By Frank Lillie Pollock

The girl Constancia puzzled Robert Tourneur. Although a pupil in a fashionable deaf-mute school, she had the full faculty of speech and hearing, but she did her best to conceal the fact. Tourneur sought to learn why she should practice such a deception—and he found out.

(118) BEYOND THE FRONTIER

By Joseph Montague

It was a difficult and dangerous journey on which John Claiborne, exquisite dandy of the Louisiana levees, set out from his plantation, on that long-ago day, to cross the Rockies with Frémont and Kit Carson. The author presents a vivid and colorful picture of the long trail which the Pathfinder and his companions traveled to reach California, where gold had just been discovered in Captain Sutter's mill race on the American River—a lure for argonauts from the corners of the earth.

(119) THE AVENGING TWINS COLLECT

By Johnston McCulley

Getting the best of a gang of slick rogues without recourse to the law and punishing them in a way that hurts them more than any punishment that the law could inflict, is a difficult and dangerous proposition. This is what the Avenging Twins, Peter and Paul Selbon, undertook to do when they went after the group of big financial magnates who had ruined their uncle.

(120) GRIZZLY GALLAGHER

By Reginald C. Barker

With his huge frame and silver-tipped black hair and beard, Grizzly Gallagher was a typical old-time Western mountaineer. Out in the pack-trail country of Idaho, where Gallagher made his living from the wilderness, he seemed to have a difficult job on his hands in making a man of his old partner's son, the willful, red-haired, eighteen-year-old lad, Ted Blaine. But Ted had good stuff in him, and Gallagher's training brought the fine gold of the youngster's manhood to the surface.

Reginald C. Barker, author of "Grizzly Gallagher," knows the delightful people of whom he writes, and makes you love them.

(121) SUCKER MONEY

By Robert H. Rohde

Probably there has never been a more fruitful source of easy wealth than the exploitation and sale of oil stock to gullible investors. In this story of adventure and crooked finance, the author relates how Carter Lydston, acting in perfect good faith, took a job as stock salesman with the L. B. Leach Investment & Securities Corporation and sold many thousand dollar's worth of Southwestern Mutual oil stock to people who trusted him. Then came the day of revelation which showed him that he had unwittingly been a party to a cruel and unscrupulous swindle.

(122) THE TWO-GUN KID

By Robert J. Horton

When "Chick" Calder rode into the little mountain town of Crow River, he sensed a certain hostility in the atmosphere, and this impression gained ground the longer he stayed in the place. When he applied for work, he was plainly given to understand that he was not wanted, and he found that the nickname, "The Two-gun Kid," was being applied to him. The chief citizen of Crow River was a man known as Bancroft, and the game he was playing was something of a mystery, but in time Calder got wise to it, and from that point there were exciting developments.

(123) POWDERED PROOF

By Madeleine Sharps Buchanan

Little Nancy Barnes, wife of the club steward, was a vivid yet rather pathetic figure in the fashionable life of Dahlgren. She was particularly interesting to the men of the Dahlgren Country Club, most of whom felt that she deserved a better fate than to be married to the dull-witted caretaker.

A highwayman known as "The Black Bandit" was terrorizing the country round about Dahlgren with his frequent holdups, and so when Nancy was found dead beside the swimming pool of the club in the middle of the night, suspicion was about evenly apportioned among various club members and the robber.

Kathleen Dancy charms the rough miners with her violin. From "The Girl from Shanty Creek," by Emart Kinsburn.

(124) THE GIRL FROM SHANTY CREEK

By Emart Kinsburn

Out in a remote corner of the California desert country, Sim Fannan had discovered an ancient Indian temple containing a vast treasure in gold plates. In spite of the efforts of a gang of desperadoes to follow him and learn the secret of his gold, he always succeeded in giving them the slip and sending them off on a false trail into the mountains.

His enemies finally got a line on the whereabouts of his find by stealing a map showing its location, and his secret was in real danger. In his time of peril, he found a stanch friend and ally in Kathleen Dancy, whose violin helped him to victory.

(125) PETALS OF CATHAY

By Joseph Montague

At the behest of wealthy, eccentric Stuart McVea, "King" Keeler undertook a strange mission into the wilds of Tibet—to a point eighty miles south and west of Lhasa. There, in a glen fourteen thousand feet above sea level, he was to find a cave in which McVea had hidden a petal of gold thirteen years previously. In McVea's eyes, this thin leaf of yellow metal was a priceless talisman beyond all human value, for it contained the answer to one of the great riddles of life.

(126) THE OUTLAW TAMER

By David Manning

A lot of men called "Sandy" Sweyn a half-wit. That was because the lad was different from themselves. He had an uncanny gift of understanding animals. The wildest and most refractory broncho would yield to his persuasive methods after expert horse breakers had failed. When he came into the employ of the scheming rancher, Peter Dunstan, the tasks which that hard boss set for him finally drove him out into the mountain wilderness, and there his adventures were of such character that his name grew to be a byword in that rugged Western country.

(127) MR. CLACKWORTHY, CON MAN

By Christopher B. Booth

Here they are again! Mr. Clackworthy, master confidence man, smooth spoken, grandiloquent, full of clever schemes for the undoing of rascals more unscrupulous than himself. A brilliant, gay, yet benevolent rascal! And his roughneck henchman, James Early, alias "The Early Bird!" A droll pair indeed! This second series of their adventures in con is every bit as entertaining as the first volume. The exploits of Mr. Clackworthy and his assistants are masterly revelations of the bunko game as played by an expert.

Christopher B. Booth, author of "Mr. Clackworthy, Con Man," "The House of Rogues," and other entertaining detective stories.

(128) ALIAS THE THUNDERBOLT

By Johnston McCulley

On his return to the United States after an absence of two years, John Flatchley found himself in possession of a large fortune left him by an uncle; but when he learned that the wealth was the result of a series of crooked deals in partnership with a gang of unscrupulous financiers, he determined to recover it from his uncle's partners and restore it to their victims. In the thrilling series of adventures that ensued, he had the aid of a waif of the underworld known as Saggs, who acted as his valet by day and served as his faithful henchman and companion in his nocturnal escapades.

(129) WOLF COUNTRY

By Stanley Shaw

A northern wilderness region little known to white men is the Ungava Peninsula, where the scenes of this story are laid. It comprises a vast area between Hudson Bay, Ungava Bay, and the Atlantic Ocean. In this remote land of immense forests and wilderness solitudes, the lives of Neal Trevana, his wife Alice, and Jack Davidge, the wolfer, became entangled in a curious skein of mystery and intrigue.

(130) THE SUNSET TRAIL

By Joseph Montague

The tale of a caravan of prairie schooners with cover tops painted red and the magic word "California" lettered on the canvas, setting out to cross the plains from Fort Independence, conquering the Rockies and the high Sierras, to reach the promised land that lay beyond. Many picturesque characters from the history of the early West are woven into the pattern of this romantic tale of the emigrant train and its adventures—Frémont, the pathfinder and patriot; John Sutter, the thrifty Swiss captain whose vast land grants brought him enormous wealth, which he lost when men became maddened in their quest for gold; Kit Carson, the famous scout and Indian fighter.

(131) THE WHITE ROOK

By Hugh McNair Kahler

A master cracksman with a sense of humor who will delight lovers of mystery is "The White Rook." His favorite trick was to leave an ivory white-rook chess piece at the scene of his various robberies, thus affixing his "signature" to the deed. In this way he made a laughingstock of the police and detectives who sought to lay hands on him.

(132) "HELL BENT" HARRISON

By A. T. Locke

Being a star rider and roper in the corral of a ranch and performing in a circus are two very different things. This is what "Hell Bent" Harrison, cow-puncher, learned when a series of peculiar circumstances landed him in a circus troupe. As a circus performer Harrison made a big hit, and the story of his adventures is highly entertaining. The combination of the scenes of circus life with those on the ranch makes it an unusual and diverting Western story.

(133) WHO DARES?

By Loring Brent

The ad was a challenge, an offer to test the courage of any man who would present himself for the job. "Who Dares?" it was headed, and its conditions called for a man of coolness and knowledge as well as of physical hardihood and grit.

To Jimmy Webb, adventurer and mining engineer, the ad had a special appeal, for he had been informed in a mysterious manner that it held the key to the secret of his father's violent death some years previously and that the job would be his if he would apply for it. The manner in which he completed his task of bringing to justice the slayer of his father brings this remarkable adventure story to a stirring climax.

(134) THE CANYON OF CONFLICT

By George C. Shedd

Down in Turquoise Canyon in the Humberto Mountains of New Mexico, Mark Pitkin had the reputation for being a peaceful man. Mark controlled the water rights of the valley because his grandfather had been smart enough to file on them back in the days when there had been few white men in that part of the West. The time came, however, when Mark's title to the water was questioned, and the formerly peaceful place came to be known as "The Canyon of Conflict."

(135) THREE SEVENS

By Perley Poore Sheehan

Down in the "punishment block" of San Pedro Penitentiary, Daniel Craig, alias "Three Sevens," was the victim of a mistake of justice. Then a sudden turn of fortune brought him an opportunity to escape—a startling opportunity that carried with it the chance to release all the other convicts. Reckless of consequences, blinded by the injustice that he had suffered at the hands of society, Three Sevens grasped the opportunity.

Wes Wilder surveys Splayfoot Ranch. From "The Padlocked Plateau," by Emart Kinsburn.

(136) THE PADLOCKED PLATEAU

By Emart Kinsburn

In official circles, Wes Wilder was known as "Clean-up" Wilder, because he was a foe of crookdom and crime, and generally could be depended on to finish anything that he started. But when he tackled the job of putting an end to the activities of a band of rustlers who were stealing cattle from old Tom Valley, owner of Splayfoot Ranch, he found his reputation as a man hunter at stake.

(137) MUTINY

By Frederick R. Bechdolt

It was a strange and perilous quest on which Robert Dolan set out from Frisco under sealed orders from William Jaspro the lawyer. Dolan had sensed danger and mystery from the start, but it was chiefly his desire to be of service to the lovely daughter of old Langton, living out at the pink house on the marshes, that induced him to undertake Jaspro's mission.

(138) THE MUSTANG HERDE

By David Manning

Sammy Gregg was not the kind that or would pick out as likely to be successf in a frontier region of the West whe the more rugged types of manhood ha gained ascendency. He was a little fello of frail physique, but he was determined make a success out in the Western catt country. His venture with a mustang he was one that would have daunted the mo daring and experienced men of the Wes ern trails, but in spite of his lack of phys cal strength, Sammy Gregg was imbue with the mighty spirit that has conquere the greatest obstacles, and it was this spi that enabled him to make his purchase the mustang herd a success.

(139) THE THUNDERBOLT'S JEST

By Johnston McCulley

In this entertaining volume the reader once more meets John Flatchley, alias "The Thunderbolt," and his faithful henchman, Saggs, as they complete their pleasant task of evening the score with a gang of clever rogues who have been guilty of some pretty large-scale swindling, though keeping strictly within the law. The Thunderbolt's methods bring about justice of a rough-and-ready kind, even though they do not meet with the approval of the authorities.

(140) THE FLYING COYOTES

By Raymond S. Spears

This is the story of a son's magnificent loyalty to his father. "The Flying Coyotes" was the name given to a gang of bandits who terrorized the Western country in which they operated. Even in their own ranks there was cowardice and treachery. It was one such deed committed against his father that caused "Short Joe" Fitzgammon to throw in his lot with the forces of law and order in tracking down the bandits guilty of the dastardly act.

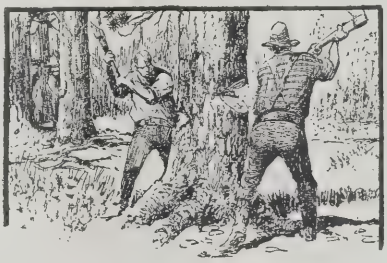
In the course of his adventures on the trail of the outlaws, Short Joe found himself in desperate peril time and time again. And the story of Savie Reno is linked with his.

The account of his bringing the miscreants to justice makes a thoroughly exciting, quick-action, Western yarn.

(141) STRANGE TIMBER

By Joseph Montague

A splendid man of the forests was Bob Britton, woods manager for the Lynde Lumber Company. The life of the lumber camps was a necessary part of his existence. When the chance came to Britton to leave his camp in the Maine woods and go adventuring in search of a different kind of timber, his reckless nature responded, and he set out on a quest that brought him into a situation of desperate peril. But his training enabled him to fight his way through to success and to win a girl who was well worth fighting for.



Cutting timber for the Lynde Lumber Company. From "Strange Timber," by Joseph Montague.

(142) ISLAND RANCH

By Thomas K. Holmes

It was a great many years since Island Ranch had been a paying proposition. In the hands of Doris Morly and her brother Cole, it was not likely to become a source of profit to its owners. It was when Aleck Carter, an oil prospector, got interested in the property that the interesting events began to happen and the ranch became the scene of some exciting adventures.

Supplementary List No. 0217—35M-7-27

JAPAN, THE AIR MENACE OF THE PACIFIC
By Colonel W. Jefferson Davis

Author of "The World's Wings," etc.

Introduction by the Honorable James D. Phelan, former United States Senator from California

"Colonel Davis was legal adviser and represented the war department as counsel at the Congress on International Aviation Legislation. During the war, and since the termination of hostilities, he has participated actively in the development of American aviation, and in my judgment no one is better qualified to present this subject."—William Mitchell, former Assistant Chief of Air Service.

Colonel Davis does not wave the yellow peril. He does not attack Japan. The purpose of the book is not to antagonize our neighbor in the Pacific, but he does set forth very clearly and dramatically the racial antagonisms, the commercial rivalry and the international clashings of our nation and Japan. The book deals particularly with Japan's preparation in the air and on the sea, and the author warns his fellow countrymen of our own great inadequacy in this direction.

PRESIDENTIAL SHRINES
From Washington to Coolidge

By WILLIAM JUDSON HAMPTON, D.D.

Author of "The Religion of the Presidents," "Our Presidents and Their Mothers," "The Shrine Invisible," "Dodging the Commandments," etc.

The author of this book has included a valuable collection of sixty-eight historical photographs and the information contained about each of our presidents from Washington to Coolidge will be of rare value to the student of American History as well as to every American whether native born or from abroad.

The site of the birth of nearly every President of the United States is well known, though in nine instances not only is the house gone, but there is no marker on the site.

JAMES CROFTS
The Beauty Man and His Love

By FRED ERICK

The Pen Name of a Well-Known Newspaperman

The Career of James, Duke of Monmouth and Buccleuch is English History, and historians have not minced matters, or made him out to be a saintly character; so it has been necessary for the author of this volume to stick fairly closely to facts; and he has done so. Mr. Erick found plenty of material in "James Crofts"; called that because he was brought up in his childhood by a man of that name. It is the brief but dashing career of this young man that the author presents. —The Boston Transcript.

$2.00

Prosperity Through Personality

By H. E. CONLIN, B.S., M.A.

The book points out a practical way to attain success. The author points out the essential features in one's character that will enable him to become successful and a winner in life, at the same time showing the student how to use them efficiently. Every sentence is instructive as to the process of attaining prosperity and avoiding failure. The book is not a scientific treatise on psychology but a practical instruction in the use of practical methods. Many sentences or paragraphs are worth the price of the entire volume.—Mercury, New York.

$1.50

One Hundred and One Legends Of Flowers

By ELIZABETH TODD NASH

Author of "Yuletide in Many Lands," "A Puritan Pastor," 'Easter Customs," "Hallowe'en," "Fifty Puritan Ancestors," "New Years the World Around," etc.

These legends interesting as they are in substance, would lack much in value if not clothed in pertinent literary form. This the author has done with exceptional charm of style, as she is a woman of established literary attainment.

Her love of writing comes from many ancestral lines—Thomas Nashe, dramatist and sartaric writer, 1567-1601; Thomas Nash, an English writer, 1588-1648; Treadway Russell Nash, English historian of Worcester, 1735-1811.

Present day living writers of the author's family include such well known names as George A. Wilcox, the poet; Constance Wilcox (now Princess Pignatelli), author of "Told in a Chinese Garden," and Marrion Wilcox, who wrote "History of War with Spain," "History of War in the Philippines," and is editor and co-author of the "Encyclopedia of Latin America," while her daughter, Nina Wilcox Putnam, after writing several books, departed from the choice almost classic English of her relatives and has become a popular writer who is known to everyone who reads the popular magazines and newspapers of this country, being called "the woman humorist of America" and its feminine "Mark Twain."

$3.00

A History of Delaware

By WALTER A. POWELL, A.B.

A Comprehensive History of Delaware with the most important events and salient facts, from the discovery of the territory to the present time. The book presents a sketch of the Indians inhabiting the territory; the colonial history; the first colony settled by the Dutch; the revolt of the colonies which culminated in the Declaration of Independence and the War of the Revolution; her share in the framing of the Constitution of the United States; the War of 1812; the question of slavery; the political history; the growth of its industries; history of the famous Delaware Curve; the religious, cultural and educational interests of the people. The many beautiful illustrations add greatly to the book's charm and usefulness for all.

THE FOOLISH QUESTION BOOK

By H. I. Phillips

H. I. Phillips is a nationally known humorist and if he wasn't this single book would make him so. Gallantly he has come to the defense of the long suffering cross-examined public. Mr. Phillips has given a long series of queries, such as one has become uncomfortably familiar with, and under each question he has provided a witty or nonsensical answer that makes the whole book a joy. Use this witty little volume and enjoy yourself.

Here are a few samples culled therefrom:

What is meant by a dead language? Anything that begins with, "Have you any real old rye?"

What is the yellow peril? A banana peel.

What are mushrooms? A bridal suite.

Where are bisons found? On the back of nickles.

What is the highest peak in all Asia? You don't mean Colorado, do you?

What was it that Michelangelo said when he first saw Venus de Milo? "Give this little girl a hand."

"No home should be without it."—Life.

ANSWER THIS ONE

By Franklin P. Adams (F. P. A.) and Harry Hansen

This book has been compiled by two newspaper men who for years have written for a vast audience and whose works are quoted and reproduced all over the country.

Franklin P. Adams (F. P. A. of the "Conning Tower" of the New York World) is the best known columnist in the country.

Harry Hansen is literary editor of the New York World and the man whose views on books and authors are quoted at countless dinner tables.

In over eighty quizzes such a wide range of subjects is covered that there is something here to hold the attention of everybody, hence it is A Book of Questions for Everybody.

American History, foreign countries, travel, sports, canals and railroads, romance and chivalry, things intimately connected with women's sphere, motion pictures and the theatre, natural wonders, the earth, the air, the sea and the sky—all these are drawn upon to make "ANSWER THIS ONE."

The answers, of course, are all in the back of the book.

NEW DETECTIVE STORIES

THE LAW OF THE TALON

By Louis Tracy

This is a story of the American northwest and of Scotland, wherein a man who had been supposed to be dead goes back to Scotland to claim his inheritance and there meets strange adventures and falls under suspicion. The unraveling of the crime and the activity of a remarkable husky dog, together with some good character drawing, make up a story that will please all lovers of mystery.

Cloth, Net $2.00

THE MURDER IN THE GARDEN

By Francis D. Grierson

Dainty, dancing Christine Moineaud has vanished—and Caesar, the big lion in the zoo, has died of indigestion. A human neckbone is found in his stomach—the only clue to a fiendish crime. The two Grierson detectives, Professor Wells and Sims of Scotland Yard, solve this particularly gruesome crime.

Cloth, Net $2.00

FROM SIX TO SIX

By W. Bert Foster

"From Six to Six" is the period of horror and bloodshed in the home of an old New England sea captain. From six in the evening until six the following morning, the characters are lead through a tangle of startling situations. An attempt is made to murder the sea captain. The house is full of guests, a badly assorted lot of relatives and friends, and cared for by Oriental servants. All the details lend themselves to mystery and complication with a denouement that is thrilling and convincing.

Cloth, Net $2.00

FINDINGS IS KEEPINGS

By John Boyd Clarke

Discriminating detective story readers will welcome heartily Harry Vale, the quick-witted rookie policeman who has a penchant for discovering clues where his co-workers find only blind alleys. A case of mistaken identity, three wills and a murder form a nucleus of a plot that is both startling and original. The apprehension of the criminal is accomplished through the unusually clever deduction and keen mental acumen on the part of rookie Vale.

Cloth, Net $2.00

THE PHANTOM PASSENGER

By Mansfield Scott

An escaped murderer has taken refuge on a private yacht in an effort to leave New York. On the first night out the wireless is tampered with and the operator suspected; the substitute host is thrown overboard on the second night and on the third a kindly professor who knew too much is stabbed to death. A rapid series of baffling complications follow which do not reach a definite climax until the end.

Cloth, Net $2.00

CRIMSONED MILLIONS

By John Willoughby

Quiet Captains' Haven on Long Island was unused to excitement. The disappearance of Helen Bogart, heiress to a fortune, set the town on its ear. The discovery of her body, arranged as if in soft slumber, provided a sensation never to be forgotten. V. V., the famous "Lone Wolf" of the Flying Squadron, New York Detective Bureau, is assigned to the case and his great skill in solving this, the two succeeding murders and the exposing of the evil forces at work on the experiment farm maintained by the Bogart millions, makes one of the most fascinating mysteries of the year.

Cloth, Net $2.00

NEW DETECTIVE STORIES (Cont'd)

THE HAND OF HORROR — By Owen Fox Jerome

In this mystery story Mr. Jerome has managed to give a touch of the horror of Edgar Allen Poe without detracting from his detective plot. The excellent work of Philip MacCray in solving the mystery will not be forgotten any sooner than the sinister figure of Doctor Dax who floats through these pages in such a vivid manner that his presence can almost be felt at one's shoulder. Cloth, Net $2.00

HALF A CLEW — By Richard H. Watkins

Roger Turrentine, commercial pilot, turns detective when he runs into a miasma of mystery more opaque than any mist he ever encountered in the air. In following the blind trail he boldly enters the trap set for him by a subtle enemy whose hate extends beyond the grave. But though the trap is sprung, the man within it is too accustomed to deadly dangers, too quick in emergencies to be hurt. By daring and by deduction he fights on and after a struggle which takes him from the air to perils underground and under water he defeats his foes and emerges with the treasure that was bait. Cloth, Net $2.00

THE SNARL OF THE BEAST — By Carroll John Daly

Another mystery detective story by the author of "The White Circle" which was highly recommended by Doctor William Lyon Phelps and Thomas Masson. Cloth, Net $2.00

THE CRIME AT RED TOWERS — By Chester K. Steele

In the mysterious murder of Hartley Keyes, the multi-millionaire, Holden Dix, the retired world famous detective, believes he has at last discovered the crime without a clue. Suspicion points to at least a half a dozen people who might have had hate as the motive. A broken hat pin and match, split into four equal pieces, are the only foreign articles found in the murder room. The hat pin throws suspicion on Peggy Earle, Mr. Keyes' stenographer, and the match eventually leads to the discovery of the murderer. Cloth, Net $2.00

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE — By Louis Tracy

The advent of a new Tracy story is held as a cause for rejoicing among his large following of detective story readers. For exciting drama that keeps you on the edge of your seat from the first line of the first chapter until you bump up against "finis," "A Mysterious Disappearance" sweeps the reader along until he is ready to cry enough. Cloth, Net $2.00

THE THREE DAYS' TERROR — By J. S. Fletcher

An acid more powerful than any explosive ever imagined by man is discovered and the formula is in the hands of a secret few who threaten the Prime Minister with the destruction of London if a fabulous sum of money is not delivered to them before a set date. The Prime Minister ignores the threat and then starts the three days' reign of terror. It ends with the apprehension of the criminal society in the North Sea. Cloth, Net $2.00

THE SMILING DEATH — By Francis D. Grierson

A well dressed man is found murdered in a London street, another victim of "The Smiling Death." The master mind of these crimes is known to the police but it takes the keenest detectives of the Scotland Yard force to track down the criminal. This is an unusual aspect in a detective story and Mr. Grierson's masterful unravelling of the mystery makes this story perhaps even greater than his "The Limping Man." Cloth, Net $2.00

FICTION

WASTE CORNER

By Ruth Manning-Sanders

Of "The Twelve Saints", Mr. Clement Shorter wrote in the London Sphere: "A very clever novel. I expect great things from the next book by Ruth Manning-Sanders." "Waste Corner" will increase Mrs. Manning-Sanders' reputation. It is a beautiful and moving study of character with a profound sense of tragedy, and though sombre in parts, is never monotonously so, but relieved by a true element of human kindliness. Cloth, Net, $2.00

MRS. MERIVALE (Prize Novel)

By Paul Kimball

DREAMS, WHAT THEY MEAN TO YOU

By Gabrielle Rosiere

Here Is The Most Practical And Most Complete Book Ever Published Interpreting Your Dreams

What bearing have our dreams upon our lives and our happiness? Do they give us an insight into future events fateful to us? Do they go by opposites as some people say? Are dreams the subconscious in us asserting itself freely while the mental senses are dormant and so are a key to our true natures?

What does it mean when you live tragedy in your dreams, when someone you love is unhappy, when you take a long journey, when you dream of great riches or pitiful poverty, when you wake sobbing or are hysterical?

Science tells us that dreams have distinct and exact meanings, a bearing upon our characters and are the unfettered outpourings of our very natures. The dreams listed in this book portentious of tragedy, happiness, good fortune, or ill, are indexed and alphabetically arranged so that you can turn at once to the correct interpretation of the dream you have just had. Cloth, Net $1.00

Marvels In The Science Of Mind Training

The success of a man in this world is in direct ratio as to whether or not he has a trained mind. The person who forges ahead is he who carefully trains his mind so that he can use it to its full power commercially for success, socially and intellectually. It is a vital necessity to every man to have a receptive mind that he can rely upon to work out his problems, that will grasp the essentials of any thought, that he can depend upon for memory and for accuracy.

The remarkable system of mind training set forth in this potentially powerful volume tells in a simple, easily-grasped manner how everyone can have a thoroughly trained and highly developed mind, insuring the success of the student who desires to make of himself a man above the average in brain power, earning capacity, and who wishes to attain a definite successful goal in this life. Cloth, Net $1.00

CLODE BOOKS OF EXCEPTIONAL INTEREST

NAMES, DATES AND NUMBERS

By Roy Page Walton

This Book Reveals That In Your "Self" Lies Your Puissant Ordained Powers For Success

THE FAMOUS HOWARD BOOKS

THE HOWARD BOOKS

Dr. Howard's books are famous the country over and are recognized as the outstanding works on the ever vital subject of sex. They have acquired this esteemed place as a result of their authority, their wholesomeness and their penetrating and inspired statements of frank truth. They are such books as the wise and thinking parents desire to put into the hands of their growing children. They are volumes for all men and women who put a value on happiness and health and wish to have a guide to carry them safely by the greatest and most worrisome problems with which the human race is confronted and which such books as these will render less menacing and tragic.

These volumes, collectively and each alone, find their greatest appeal among those people who, unafraid to throw off the mantle of false modesty, desire to seek out truth which, interpreted in the light of present-day scientific understanding, will bring to them both mental and physical health and contentment throughout their lives.

FACTS FOR THE MARRIED

Every Married Couple And Those Looking Forward To Marriage Should Read This Inspiring Book

Sex knowledge means contentment, happiness, harmony in the married state. Ignorance of sex truths, according to eminent authorities, is the one great cause of marital disaster, divorce, separation. Here is a broad-minded fearless discussion of the intimate problems which every married couple face and will be the salvation for thousands of men and women. Those, too, who are about to enter into the married relation will find this book inspiring and comforting. This vital volume is written in the ingenious form of consultations between man and wife—a method particularly fitted for the intimate character of the subject. Read this searching soul-probing book. It tells who should marry and who should not; how parents may have strong and healthy children; explains pre-natal influences. The chapter on the "Morality of the Child" should be read by every parent.

SEX PROBLEMS SOLVED

This Volume Turns a Purifying Beam Upon The Most Worrisome Problems in Life

Many men and women do not reach their destined goal in life, complete happiness in marriage, full physical contentment. The reason is sexual disorders and mismanagement. Sex properly regarded and controlled is a powerful force for good. Sex chaotic and running pell-mell ruins lives, makes people old before their time, destroys happy marriages and stunts success. This very remarkable book is an all-revealing fearless and corrective discussion of sex and the all-important part it plays in your life and mine and in the lives of our wives and children. To sex mis-adjustments, say the eminent authorities, must be blamed the great proportion of tragedy in marriage and mental disorders of the adolescent boy or girl. It is the great duty of every human being to read this astounding book. A few of the chapter headings are: 1. Worry and the primitive forces of nature. 2. The sexual problem of the neurasthenic. 3. Why you worry over unknown fears. 4. Internal sex forces and their effect upon efficiency. 5. How emotions—fear, anger, love, jealousy—cause injury to bodily health. 6. Character and sexuality. Cloth, Net $1.00

PLAIN FACTS ON SEX HYGIENE

The Black Menace That Threatens Our Homes Is Held Up To Frank Scientific Discussion

THE BEST IN RELIGIOUS THOUGHT

The Cole Lectures, by Cornelius Woelfkin

Expanding Horizons: The Cole Lectures, Fall, 1926.

By CORNELIUS WOELFKIN, D.D., Copastor, Park Avenue Baptist Church, N. Y. $1.50.

As preacher, teacher, and writer, Dr. Woelfkin has been interpreting the facts of a vastly enlarged work for nearly half a century. He has kept in constant touch with the advancing thought of this marvelous time and has been able to understand the significance of its discoveries.

In these lectures the vital truths of Christianity are presented as they appear to the eyes of one who knows the present day, and the old faith is seen in the new setting. Here is mature and balanced wisdom tested in the fires of experience.

While the book is not written as autobiography, it is in fact a record of the pilgrimage of a courageous soul into the land of spiritual promise indicated by enlarging horizons. The author has put into it his best.

A Great Thinker Speaks

Reality in Religion: The Quillian Lectures for 1927.

By GILBERT T. ROWE, D.D., Editor Methodist Quarterly Review. $1.75.

The author presents religion as an experience of actual communion with a real God, and therefore the most persistent and creative force in human life. He contends that the facts of religion are as real and observable as the facts of any other field of investigation, and that the laws of religion are as ascertainable and as verifiable in experience as the laws of nature. He holds that theology can again become "the queen of the sciences" through the use of the scientific method. It is claimed that Christianity is the final religion because it fulfills all religions.

Religion in English Literature

The Persistence of Spiritual Ideals in English Letters: The Fondren Lectures of 1926.

By HENRY NELSON SNYDER, L.H.D., LL.D., of Wofford College. Net, $1.50.

Dr. Snyder has departed from the usual form of religious lectures and presents a graphic and thoroughly interesting history and interpretation of the spiritual ideals in English letters. The study illustrates how dominant spiritual ideals have been in the English race from the beginning, and although receiving new interpretations, have not greatly changed through the centuries. This is significant, and one of the main currents that has always been a vital element in what is most characteristic in English letters.

A Dean of Canadian Teaching Writes on Reading

In Conference with the Best Minds.

By LORNE PIERCE, S.T.D., Ph.D., F.R.S.C., Editor Publishing House of the United Church of Canada. 12mo. $1.75.

Dr. Pierce, founder of the Lorne Pierce Medal of the Royal Society of Canada (the highest distinction a Canadian can win in letters), writes thirty-one brief, pointed chapters on preaching and reading. These chapters will carry the reader into the best possible society and enable one to converse with men who will instruct him by their wisdom and charm him by their wit; who will soothe him when fretted, refresh him when weary, counsel him when perplexed.

The bibliography at the end of each chapter is alone worth the price of the investment in the book.

Three Famous Educators on an Important Theme

God and the New Knowledge.

By BROWN, KIRKLAND, AND MIMS. $1.

This book, published for the Cole Lecture Foundation, "is fair to both sides," writes Malcolm L. MacPhail in the Presbyterian Advance. "Now that the tensest hour of the fundamentalist-modernist controversy is past, men are coming into a mood when they are ready to consider all the facts. By far the best book that I have seen to put into their hands is a little volume entitled "God and the New Knowledge," by three members of the faculty of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.

"There is a peculiar pleasure in being able to write the preceding statement, because many of us in the North have been inclined to accept the impression made by secular papers that no fair and intelligent consideration of these questions could be expected from the South.

"Chancellor Kirkland, recognized educational leader of the South, contributes a chapter on 'Evolution and Its Limits.' Professor Brown writes on 'Modernism and Fundamentalism.' Dr. Mims (author of 'The Advancing South') has a chapter entitled 'The Bible Once More.'

"The authors," continues Dr. MacPhail, "have rendered a service to the Church throughout the country."

Facts and Figures from Phelan

Handbook of All Denominations: 1927 Edition.

By M. PHELAN. 12mo. $1.25.

By far the most compact volume giving with painstaking care a concise account of the origin, history, faith, and usages of all Christian doctrines. It is fair, impartial, and without prejudice. The material is arranged alphabetically, making it an excellent and ready reference book.

BIOGRAPHY

Biographical Studies of the Greatest Theologians of All Time

Princes of the Christian Pulpit and Pastorate.

By HARRY CLAY HOWARD. Octavo. $2.50.

Fifteen fascinating biographical studies in the lives and times of St. Francis of Assisi, Savonarola, William Tyndale, John Knox, John Wesley, Horace Bushnell, David Livingstone, Frederick W. Robertson, Charles Haddon Spurgeon, Phillips Brooks, Joseph Parker, Alexander McLaren, William Booth, Alexander Whyte, John Henry Jowett.

Herein are recorded stories of the lives and times of certain men who have written themselves indelibly into the history of the Christian Church. Some of them held the torch of faith and service during the Dark Ages. Some were contemporaries of the Renaissance. Several proved the salvation of Great Britian. Others kept aware of its origin and the debt it owes the spiritually minded founders of its colonies.

Many of these princes were the "heretics" of their day. Some were murdered for their devotion to honesty, truth, and unselfishness. But to-day they are seen in their true light. Only one has been canonized; but who can say that any one of them had not the qualities of saintliness?

The biographer has placed the reader under peculiar obligations, not the least of which is that as one reads of these lives and times he can very clearly see that he, too, "can make his life sublime."

Biography by Bishop Candler

Bishop Charles Betts Galloway.

By WARREN A. CANDLER, D.D., LL.D. 12mo. $1.50.

The gifted pen of Bishop Candler displays rare skill in the field of biography. He knows how to seize the salient facts of his character's life and present them in such clearness and proportion that the person lives and moves before the reader's view as the man really was.

Bishop Galloway was one of the most distinguished preachers of his Church in his generation. He was recognized as the most brilliant orator of the South, and his influence in both Church and State was beyond calculation. His voice and pen sent a blazing light far beyond the bounds of his own denomination.

The Story of the South's Greatest Evangelist

George R. Stuart, Life and Work.

By W. W. PINSON, D.D. $2.

The influence of Dr. George R. Stuart has been felt by more people in America than that of any other Southern minister of the past twenty years. His field of work began in the small pastorate, became enlarged as he went into the larger metropolitan Churches, and later became nation wide as he associated with the great evangelist Sam P. Jones and still later when he became one of the highest-paid Chautuaqua lecturers appearing before great audiences all over America.

Those who knew George R. Stuart will meet him again in these vivid chapters and live over the rich fellowship of other days. Those who did not know him will find themselves face to face with a vivid, virile, and alluring American in "Citizen Stuart" as the author characterizes him in one of his chapter headings.

SERMONS

The Greatest Preaching in the South

The Southern Methodist Pulpit—1927.

Edited by J. W. ROWLAND, Editor Richmond Christian Advocate. $1.75.

This book represents a cross section of the best ministerial talent in the South. The best sermons of sixteen of the most popular preachers in the M. E. Church, South. Such outstanding men of the day as Clovis Chappell, Forney Hutchinson, P. R. Knickerbocker, A. Frank Smith, Ivan Lee Holt, and G. T. Rowe have contributed what they consider their best sermon of the year.

Sermons That Help the Minister to Preach

Out of the Ashes.

By REV. GEORGE W. ALLISON, Minister Irvington Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, Ind. $1.50.

Those who are tired of the conventional type of ordinary sermons usually found in published collections will find refreshing relief in these new and somewhat unique sermons from one of the most popular ministers in the mid-West. The style is simple, natural, and direct, yet each sermon contains an abundance of homiletic material of an unusual nature. They are earnest, unaffected and, best of all, convincing.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATIONAL

Encouraging the Spirit of Worship in Children

*The Worship of the Little Child.

By EDNA DEAN BAKER. 12mo.; cloth. .75 cents.

This text deals with the problem of training Beginners in the forms and methods of worship. The value of Miss Baker's book to the teachers of Beginners is well indicated by the chapter headings. Chapters I and II deal with the meaning of worship in the life of the child and the possibilities of developing the desire for worship in the mind of the child. Chapter III is a splendid analysis of the Beginner's concept of God, the differing ideas that children have about God, and the danger in permitting wrong conceptions to go uncorrected. Chapters IV, V, VI, and VII deal with the problems of cultivating the spirit of prayer and guiding the Beginner in prayer. Chapter VIII deals with the problem of music as an aid in worship and discusses the type of music best suited for Beginner use. Chapter IX discusses the offering and methods for teaching worship through the offering. This is followed by a chapter on the motivation of service and conduct, teaching worship by creating the correct motives. The author is a recognized authority on the subject of worship in child life and writes from years of experience in working with children. Her book is not a manual. It is a fundamental discussion of the underlying principles of worship for the little child.

*This title is published for and edited by the Teacher Training Publishing Association.

The Story of Christ as St. Mark Tells It

St. Mark's Life of Jesus.

REV. ANDREW SLEDD, D.D., Ph.D. $1.

This is not just another life of Christ. The purpose of the writer is to lead the reader though a careful and intimate study of the record of the life and doing of Jesus as it has been preserved for us in the Gospel according to Mark. The first chapter is devoted to securing the proper background of appreciation for what is to follow. It contains a condensed statement of the national, political, social, and religious conditions that prevailed at the time Jesus began his ministry. There is also a discussion of the religious ideals and aspirations of the Jewish people themselves. Chapter two opens, as does the Gospel of Mark, with the preaching of John and the appearance of Jesus, his baptism, temptation, his return to Galilee, and his entry upon his ministry.

The whole of chapters six and seven are taken up with a discussion of the doctrine of the cross as it appears in the conversation between Jesus and the twelve as he tried to reveal to them his real messianic mission. The vividness of style in which the book has been written leads the reader through the Gospel of St. Mark as though he would engage in an intimate biographical study. Dr. Sledd, in his study of the message of Mark, has become so intimately acquainted with every little detail in the life of Jesus that his pen picture makes the Master live again, and one can easily visualize his movements from day to day. With the book in hand, the reader can in imagination walk side by side with the Master through his whole career and can share with him the emotions, ideals, and aspirations which flow from his great heart. It is not a new life of Christ, because the author has but reproduced for us the Gospel of Mark. It is new in its style of intimacy and detail.

BIBLE STUDY

Bible Guide for Classes and Studies

A Guide to the Study of the English Bible.

By HERSEY EVERETT SPENCE and JAMES CANNON III, of Duke University. 12mo. $1.25.

This is a revised edition of the syllabus by Professor Spence which has been used, since its first publication several years ago, in several universities and other institutions where a general course is given in the content of the Bible. In its present form the book is the product of the joint labors of Professors Spence and Cannon, who have incorporated in it the results of their experience since its first issue. It contains seven maps which were not in the first edition.

DEVOTIONAL

Devotional Studies That Inspire

The Life in the Spirit.

By BRUCE S. WRIGHT, D.D. 12mo. $1.25.

Eighteen devotionals for the home or for the pulpit, by the author of "The Children's Six Minutes," "Moments of Devotion," etc.

A man who can talk to children is also one who can talk to adults; for, after all, there is a little bit of the child left in all of us. We like things told to us plainly and simply and briefly, particularly those things in connection with devotions. Dr. Wright is such a writer.

"To my mind, Bruce Wright is one of the best in the Northern Methodist Episcopal Church to-day," says William H. Leach, editor of Church Management. "Neither his spoken nor written sermons are long; but they are always interesting, and he finds plenty of hearers. He always places the spiritual note in the front position, and no one has ever questioned his sincerity nor his spiritual insight."

The reader, if a layman, will find much to meditate upon in these eighteen devotionals. If a preacher, there is much that he can use as material for the mid-week meeting and in his Sunday talks to the young people.

SONGS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Another Hit by the Author of "Phunology"

Parodology: Songs for Fun and Fellowship.

By E. O. Harbin, Author of "Phunology." Net, 75 cents.

In this collection of songs, the author has rendered as helpful a service to community, camp, banquet, and organization directors and song leaders as in "Phunology," which is now in its twenty-third large edition. Grouped under Stunt Songs, Organization Songs, Pep Songs, Greeting Songs, Camp Songs, Banquet Songs, Old Songs, Rounds, Spirituals and Favorite Hymns are hundreds of the most popular parodies, selections, and melodies of the century. Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Epworth League, Christian Endeavor, and Scout camps, conferences, and banquets will be able to make good use of "Parodology."

MISCELLANEOUS

A Bit of the Old South by John Trotwood Moore

Tom's Last Forage.

By John Trotwood Moore. 16mo. Fabricoid, 75 cents; paper, 35 cents.

Of Mr. Moore's many popular negro stories, none has been so generally acclaimed as "Tom's Last Forage." Although it has never before been published in book form, yet it is said to have been as often read by professional readers as any story ever written of the Old South and the negro.

The late William Jennings Bryan, reading it at a reception tendered him at Columbia, Tenn., said: "It more nearly expressed the relationship existing between the old-time Southern gentleman and his negro slave than any story ever written."

The facts of the story were suggested by an incident in the life of the author's father, the late Judge John Moore, of Marion, Ala., who is said to have been the greatest of Southern nisi prius judges. Of him it is said that no man ever lived in Alabama who more generally held the love and devotion of all his people, white and black, than did Judge Moore.

Published first in a Chicago magazine, in 1897, "Tom's Last Forage" became at once a favorite, and so great has been the demand for its preservation in book form that the publishers have issued it in this small volume. It does not appear in any of Mr. Moore's other books.

	Bible Study for Bible Students. By J. Brad Craig, Director of Training Work, the United Presbyterian Church	$1 35	A
	Two attitudes may be assumed in studying the Bible. First, an individual may choose at random any selection, read it and study what some one has said concerning it, and after repeated selections and readings, consider that he is posted on the Bible. Second, he may follow some definitely outlined course, following progressively the progressive revelations of God and considering the Bible such, study its institutions, characters, and religious teachings. This book follows the second method, and will be found helpful for elective study in groups and classes.
	The Bishop of Cottontown. By John Trotwood Moore. (See also Moore, John Trotwood, Works of)	1 00	A
	Besides being an interesting and enthralling story of love and adventure, this book presents a vivid picture of the South just after the Civil War. The first days of the cotton factory are accurately described, as well as the severe struggles the Southern planters had to undergo to get back on their feet after the ravages of war. The chapters abound in characteristic stories of the negroes and their reaction of freedom, and both humor and pathos are combined in the drama that is unfolded. The climax is reached in a thrilling horse race, which is so vividly told that the reader finds himself cheering with the rest for the faithful old bishop and his superb blind horse as the bell rings on the last lap of the race.

Care and Feeding of Southern Babies. By Owen H. Wilson, M.D. ..... $1 25 A

"This small volume should prove an excellent guide to mothers, nurses, and baby welfare workers in the South. It goes a long way toward combating many popular superstitions, and yet does not attempt to go into all the details and, therefore, accomplish an impossibility. The book is filled with much hard common sense and carries with it the personality of the author. The book is safe and sane."—The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Chapel Talks. By John Carlisle Kilgo, edited by D. W. Newsom ..... 1 25 A

One of these ten-minute talks will help you begin your work with an inspiration that will last throughout the day, just as did the students of Trinity College when Bishop Kilgo delivered them at chapel time each morning. They are brief and to the point on timely subjects, such as "The Dollar," "Small Things," "Friendship," "The Voter in America," "War," "Faith," and others.

"Dr. Kilgo always gave the best that he had to his students, and he was a master of short speech. His talks were always heard with eagerness. The fire is still in them, and this volume will doubtless inspire many young men to lead high and useful lives."—Methodist Quarterly Review.

Characteristics of the Christian Life. By C. M. Bishop, D.D., LL.D. Paper ..... 35 A

A special course for young people and adults, the purpose of which book is to meet the demand for a course of study for adult Bible classes in applied Christianity. The usual lesson helps, prepared largely for teachers, have been wholly inadequate on this subject. Dr. Bishop has spent his life in the ministry, most of it in the pastorate, the rest as president of a Methodist university, and his wide study and experience amply qualify him for the writing of this work.

Choice of a Career. By Garfield Evans and Ina C. Brown. Paper ..... 50 A

The title suggests a question that every young man and young woman must answer at some time. This little book is helping many to select a vocational service in accord with the will of God.

Christ of Our Novelists. By H. W. Featherstun. 16mo.. 75 A

The author, by illustrations from the best writers of fiction, shows how people who read can be led to Christ by the high ideals and devotion to right of the leading characters in the stories they find so fascinating. Thus he shows how great a part books play in the building of character.

Christian Doctrine, A Manual of. By Rev. John S. Banks. 12mo. The same in Spanish, see Spanish Publications..... $1 50 S

Bishop Tigert said of the book: "He has compressed into this small volume an amount of clearly stated and vigorously argued theological thought that seems almost incredible. The author's power of succinct and luminous statement and cogent argument has, with his careful and wide reading, resulted in one of the best treatises possible within so narrow a compass."

Christus Auctor: A Manual of Christian Evidences. By Bishop W. A. Candler. 12mo. Same in Spanish, see Spanish Publications..... 1 00 A

The author sets forth the proofs of Christianity by which its claims to be accepted as the revelation of the only true God are attested.

"This is one of the best books on Christian evidences that have been published for a long time." (Christian Guardian, Toronto.) "A great and timely book." (Pacific Advocate.)

Christus Comprobator; or, The Testimony of Christ to the Old Testament. By Bishop C. J. Ellicott. With an introduction by Bishop Warren A. Candler. 191 pages. 12mo..... 1 25 A

Some years ago, when a wave of destructive "Higher Criticism" swept over England, the learned and devout Bishop Ellicott, Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, prepared and delivered seven addresses, his subject being "The Teachings of Our Lord and Master as to the Authority of the Old Testament," and the extent to which he authenticates the divine origin and character of the different books of the Old Testament to which he was pleased to refer. The good effect of these addresses was felt throughout England. The untechnical form in which the lectures are cast makes them especially useful to busy laymen and young preachers who are not prepared or inclined to deal with such a subject in any other form.

Coke, Life of Thomas. By Warren A. Candler, one of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. 304 pages. 12mo..... 1 50 A Great achievements, whether they be of individuals or the masses, are usually the result of the uncommon devotion of some great man. The establishment of the Methodist Church and the promulgation of its doctrines during the early years centered upon the lives of a few devout leaders, among whom was Thomas Coke. In the propagation of Methodism he was second only to John Wesley, and in some respects he was superior to that great man. Layman or preacher will profit by a close study and application of the life of this illustrious character.

	The contents of this volume were published originally as contributions to various newspapers and periodicals, most of them appearing first in the Atlanta Journal, one of the great newspapers of the advancing South. Through the gracious consent of the newspapers, these timely editorials on contemporary issues are now available in book form, revealing a lifetime of study and experience with the temper of the American people. The book is unique; the editorials short and pungent, the range of subjects wide.
	Dictionary, A Bible. By Bishop J. C. Granbery. 12mo.	1 00	A
	A Bible dictionary of moderate size and price, adapted to the wants of Sunday school teachers and private students of the Bible has long been needed and often called for by our people. We are very glad, therefore, to be able to furnish such a book and one we believe admirably suited to the purposes indicated. We can, therefore, most confidently indorse and do hereby recommend the book to all who would have a convenient and reliable work of the kind.

	Dr. Chappell has made a careful study of the whole problem of evangelism through the Sunday school and has taught courses in evangelism in many of our Standard Training Schools. The conclusions reached as a result of this study and his experiences have been brought together in this volume. While this book deals primarily with principles, it furnishes also many valuable suggestions as to methods, and will meet a long-felt need among Southern Methodists who are seeking to prepare themselves for effective service as teaching evangelists.
	Evidences of Divine Being. By E. A. Maness. 12mo. Boards.....	75	A
	Dr. Maness has made no effort to give an elaborate system of argument for the proof of a Divine Being. His book is an expression of practical evidence and certain outstanding proofs which lead the mind to believe in God. It is helpful to faith to marshal the evidences of God's being, and the proofs of his existence will drive doubt from the Christian heart and help to close the mouth of the critic.
	Evolution of a Churchman, The. By Thomas Smoot..	1 00	A
	This is a most unusual title. Winslow, an outline of whose religious evolution is given, is a composite. Like the "Wandering Jew," he has been a traveler over the earth since the Crucifixion and has lived in many unsuspected places. The author has met him in the city, village, and countryside; on railway trains and steamships; in business groups and literary circles. Often, he has found him in some cloistered retreat, as student of theology, trying to learn "what it's all about." Always, he has been misunderstood, and frequently condemned by those who should sympathize with him and condone his shortcomings. He is still with us, and his tribe is destined to increase. Shall we invite him into the house and give him counsel and advice, or shall we close the door in his face and let him continue to wander—and wonder?

The story of the pioneer is always a source of interest and inspiration. To follow those who have blazed the trails to new discoveries and have given to the world a knowledge of regions hitherto unknown; who have penetrated to the outskirts of the world and from that vantage ground have beckoned their fellows to high endeavor, is an experience which always enriches the heart and broadens the mind. Such an experience comes to the one who reads this fascinating story of a great life. Bishop Lambuth was endowed with the instincts of the explorer, and during his life he gratified this instinct by his extensive travels in laying the foundations of the kingdom in "regions beyond." To read this book is to get a new vision of the importance of the world evangelism.

The problem of the teacher is by means of his chosen subject to lead the pupil out into the broader fields of thought and to give him an appreciative attitude toward it. Only as truth is received in this vital fashion does it become a means for nourishing the life of the pupil and to learn how so to present truth as to bring about such a response is an essential part of the teacher's preparation. To one who is interested in human life, the field of investigation here suggested is one of the most fascinating that modern research has opened up for us.

	Life of Stephen F. Austin, The. By Dr. Eugene C. Barker. Octavo. Embossed cover, gold edges This book places a new portrait in the gallery of the makers of the United States. Stephen F. Austin was the founder of Anglo-American Texas. For seven years he was its absolute ruler, its chief executive. For another eight years he was its guardian and director. He shaped the present land system of the State, its present judiciary system, and he framed the first homestead law. No other of the forty-eight Commonwealths composing the United States owes its position so completely to one man as Texas does to Austin.	5 00	A
	Literary Programs and Diversions. By Mrs. Maud B. Little, Author of "Literary Leaves" This book will be of real assistance to the entertainment committees of young people's organizations and others who plan for self-development as well as for diversion. There is a collection of programs for every month in the year, with suggestions for carrying them out. Both serious and light selections are included. These may be used as outlined or fitted into any programs societies may now be following. The book will be found a wholesome addition to the material now available.	1 50	A

	Meaning of God, The. By Harris Franklin Rall, Ph.D., D.D. Quillian Lectures, 1924. (Emory University.) 12mo.	$1 50	A
	The author contends that religion is not a species of bondage and God is not a tyrant, but offers a freedom which the soul of man cannot realize alone. He sets foth the significance of religions by pointing out the meaning of God, and takes his stand frankly with the Christian faith convinced that the meaning of the world and of life has come to men through the God and Father of Jesus, and makes plain what such a faith means for the thought as well as the life of the man of to-day.

	Meaning of Methodism, The. By Gilbert T. Rowe, D.D., Litt.D., Editor of the Methodist Quarterly Review.	1 00	A
	This book is intended to show how Methodism reproduced apostolic Christianity by calling the Church from the blind alleys of Sacramentalism, Institutionalism, and Intellectualism, back to the great highway of Christian experience. It is a sympathetic interpretation of the revival movement which quickened the spiritual life of the whole of Protestantism and resulted in the various branches of the Methodist Church. The author deals candidly with questions of scholarship and science and indicates the relation of Methodism to Roman Catholicism, to the rest of Protestantism, and to the progress of the modern world.
	Message of Jesus, The. By Harvie Branscomb, Professor in Duke University. Bible Text Series.	1 00	S
	What was the message of Jesus while on earth? What was his attitude toward the different phases of humanity? Did he stress some things more than others? These and many other vital points are satisfactorily and completely answered in this discussion of the ministry of Jesus. Mr. Branscomb has made no effort at scholarly display. Conclusions and deductions are made in such manner that there is no room for doubt as to the unaffected sincerety of the author.

	This book comprises the Fondren Lectures for 1925 delivered by Bishop Mouzon before the students of Southern Methodist University in April. There was a feeling among those who heard the lectures as they were delivered in the chapel of Kirby Hall that in them the Bishop has effected a fusion of the historic ardor of their faith with a more than usually clear understanding of the problems of the Church as it confronts the contemporary world. The opening lecture entitled, "The Evangel and the Bible," is based upon the conception that the Bible, intelligently interpreted as a revelation of men's hearts confronting a seeking God, must be raised. As a whole, the lectures lose nothing by being printed, for they contain so much of substantial truth, memorably phrased, that the book will cast its own light and strength.

	Persistence of Spiritual Ideals in English Letters, The. The Fondren Lectures, 1926. By Henry Nelson Snyder, L.H.D., LL.D., of Wofford College. Dr. Snyder has departed from the usual form of religious lectures and presents a graphic and thoroughly interesting history and interpretation of the spiritual ideals in English letters. The study illustrates how dominant spiritual ideals have been in the English race from the beginning, and although receiving new interpretations have not entirely changed through the centuries. Practical Studies in the Fourth Gospel. By Bishop W. A. Candler. In two handsome 12mo. volumes. Volume I covers the first ten chapters, Volume II the remainder of the book (the set) ..... $1 75 A Volumes sold separately ..... 1 00 A

This work is a great commentary on the Gospel of John that merits an even larger circulation than it has had. It is neither critical nor exegetical; it is meditative and devotional.

One prominent pastor writes: "I know of no commentary on the Gospel of John that brings these profound truths to the surface with such gratifying clearness as do these Practical Studies. The work from beginning to end interprets the Fourth Gospel to be the good news concerning Jesus Christ, God manifest in the flesh to redeem the world through the blood of the everlasting covenant."

Program of Jesus, The. By Edwin DuBose Mouzon. The Cole Lectures for 1925. 12mo. Cloth ..... 1 50 A

This volume sustains the very high intellectual and literary standard which has characterized the Cole Lectures since their inauguration in 1903. The eminent Southern Bishop throws a flood of light on the vital question, "What is the program of Jesus for human society?" He does not believe that Christianity originated a few days after the death of Jesus; he finds its origin in the master life and teachings. Bishop Mouzon shows that as a man Jesus wrestled with human problems in establishing the kingdom of God, and that his temptation had to do with the kind of kingdom to be set up in the world. He insists that Christianity is much more than an "other world" affair, and says: "No Christian can remain indifferent to the evils in the life of modern society." A practical, deeply impressive presentation of real Christianity as revealed in the purpose and program of its Founder.

"This book, while conforming to all the principal requirements of a true biography, is a most concise and interesting epitome of Methodist history, extending though nearly one hundred years, and embracing those mightiest events which mark the epochs of our wonderful Methodism. The author brings into play an artistic literary touch, a fine historical sense, an accurate knowledge of times and events, and that discrininative appreciation of values which insures proper perspective and proportion."—Christian Advocate.	75	A

	Spiritual Adventuring. By Bertha Condé. Author of "The Business of Being a Friend," "A Way to Peace, Health, and Power," "The Human Element in the Making of a Christian."	$1 00	A
	Life is full of possible adventures, some merely furnishing thrills, but others leading to fruitful discoveries. The author points out the rich experiences that wait those courageous folks who dare to follow Jesus's plan for life. She follows no outworn philosophy. There are twelve chapters for weekly study in discussion groups or in personal devotions. The first five show the dimensions and character of the spacious spiritual life; the last seven deal with sone of the special and practical teachings of Jesus—the use of one's resources, world citizenship, getting, spending, the cost involved in meeting some of the standards of the Christian life, the choice of worth-while careers.

COKESBURY RELIGIOUS EDUCATIONAL TEXTS

STANDARD TRAINING COURSE

THE Standard Training Course, which has been in use for more than ten years, is prepared coöperatively by several large denominations undertaking a thorough training. Each year the course is improved by the addition of advanced texts and the elimination of those which have outlived their usefulness for one reason or another. It is planned to meet the needs of the average teacher whose educational equipment is represented by the last two years in high school and the first two years of college. Teachers whose educational advantages have been limited to less scholastic training than this will find the Cokesbury Training Course of real help to them.

The Cokesbury publications in the Standard Training Course are:

Teaching in the Sunday School. By Goodrich C. White. — $1 00 — S

The author of this book is Dean of the College of Liberal Arts in Emory University and has undertaken in this text to set forth in nontechnical language the fundamental principles involved in the teaching process. The opening chapter, "Getting and Holding Attention," is in itself evidence of the skill of the author in presenting the entire subject. The illustrations used are taken from practical situations in Sunday schools scattered throughout the country. The book is replete with concrete illustrations, and every chapter is concluded with a series of pertinent questions for thought and discussion. The arrangement of the material is in excellent form and serves well the purpose for which the book was written. A splendid text for use by individual students or the leader of the local training class.

The Program of the Christian Religion. By Rev. John W. Shackford, D.D..... — 80 — S

The chief business of the Christian worker, whether he be preacher, teacher, or Church officer, is to interpret the Christian message. Our own generation has seen an awakened interest in the study of the religious meaning of the Christian truth as it comes into contact with the problems of everyday living. In "The Program of the Christian Religion" the author has undertaken to answer the question "How can the Christian Church meet the world's religious needs?" His first answer to this question is that we may have a correct conception of God as Father, of Jesus as the world's Saviour, and of the fellowship of the Spirit. The author treats the kingdom of God as a social ideal in the process of becoming a social order that harmonizes with the life and teachings of Jesus. To accomplish this purpose the author outlines a program of missions, world-wide in its scope, of education that is comprehensive and complete, a program of service to every human need, and a program of evangelism that is all inclusive and in harmony with the laws of developing life. The book is filled with the sound "meat of the gospel" and has outlined a real worship program for building the kingdom through the agency of the Christian Church. Its study will enrich the life and enlarge the vision of all who read it.

The Training of the Devotional Life. By Kennedy and Meyer. . . . . $0 60 S

Worship is as old as the race. It is, and always will be, an important element in religious education. Nothing is more essential to the development of the religious life than an understanding of and appreciation for the value of worship. Childhood and youth respond most naturally to the worship appeal. It is important that their ideas of the character of God and our relation to him and to our fellows should be correct. Our forms and materials of worship determine the ideals and attitudes that govern their later life. This text deals with the vital problem of training in worship. It discusses such problems as the kind of prayer we ought to pray, the value of prayer to the growing life, the place and importance of music, testimony, and offering, and the proper use of Scripture in developing the devotional spirit and attitude. This book should be read by every pastor, Sunday school teacher, and parent.

Learning and Teaching. By Sheridan and White. . . . . 80 S

This is one of the first and most widely used of the textbooks issued for the Standard Training Course. Its practical vaue lies in the fact that it was written by men well trained in the field of education who wrote out of the experience of years of successful teaching. Their conclusions are based upon actual experience. The text will help any Sunday school worker to an answer of many of the more perplexing questions which confronts him each time he stands before a class. There is a splendid discussion of "How Children Learn" and helpful suggestions on the relation of the teacher to the learning process and to the child himself. In concrete form this text covers the whole range of subjects involved in the work of the teacher. It is written in language within the range of the understanding of the average Sunday school teacher, and the illustrations are apt. Some of the topics treated are: "Understanding the Pupil," "Getting and Holding Attention," "Story-Telling," "Using Illustrations that Illustrate," "Activity and Its Relation to Learning," "Planning the Lesson," etc.

Evangelism in the Sunday School. By Rev. E. B. Chappell, D.D. . . . . 1 00 S

This book has been written primarily for those who are devoting their time and talent to the religious education of childhood and youth. The author does not concern himself with controversy over theology, but approaches the discussion of his subject with a clear-cut definition of the origin and meaning of the word "evangelism" as used in the New Testament. Following his definitions, the author offers a discussion of the agencies employed in evangelism, the evangelistic methods to be employed. He then turns to a full-chapter treatment of such subjects as "Evangelism of Early Childhood," of later childhood, early and middle adolescence, and of young people and adults. The text offers a treatment of this subject at once in harmony with sound educational theory and religious experience. This book should be in the hands of every parent, Sunday school teacher, and pastor.

The Missionary Message of the Bible. By Edmund F. Cook, D.D. . . . . 1 00 S

The author of this book has devoted many years of his life to a study of the missionary problem. He has served as missionary secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and is at present Sunday school secretary of missions and missionary education for that Church. The book is not a thesis on missions nor a treatise on the Bible, but is designed to serve as a guide to the study of the missionary teachings of the Bible. The author treats his subject after a statement of the theory of the missionary enterprise by a study of Israel as a people with a missionary commission, a study of the missionary vision and message of the prophets, centering the entire treatment about Jesus as the Master Missionary and concluding with a study of the missionary zeal of the great apostle to the Gentiles and the outreach of the early Church in trying to spread the gospel message. One cannot read the book without a clearer and fuller appreciation of the divine plan as it expresses itself in the missionary enterprise of the twentieth century.

The Bible: Its Origin and Growth. By Costen J. Harrell. — $1 00 — S

It has long been recognized that one of the serious handicaps of the average Sunday school teacher lies in the fact that he is often unfamiliar with the history of our English Bible. An intelligent appreciation of our Bible—how it came to be, how it has been marvelously preserved, and how it happens to contain just what it does as scripture—is very necessary for an intelligent interpretation of its great teachings. "The uniqueness of the Bible message has won for it a distinct place in the literature of the world."

It has been difficult to secure textbooks on this subject which are at one and the same time based upon Biblical scholarship and containing a genuine devotional spirit. In its preface, the author states that no one ever truly understands anything until he knows something about its origin, and in the text he has undertaken to give us the very best that has been preserved in the history and tradition of the Church as it relates to this sacred book. Dr. Harrell writes out of long years of careful study as a successful pastor and has tested the lessons out in his own prayer meeting services. The writer has purposely avoided technical and ambiguous references. This is a book that ought to be read by every lover of the Bible and particularly by those who undertake to teach it.

SPECIALIZATION TEXTS

Training Juniors in Worship. By Mary Alice Jones.... — 1 00 — S

This text deals with the problem of training junior children—ages nine, ten, and eleven—in the use of the material and in the forms and methods of worship, and in the art of worship itself. The author has made a careful analysis of the subject from the viewpoint of the worker with juniors and of the juniors themselves. The chapter headings will indicate the thoroughness with which the author has undertaken to discuss the subject. Chapter I deals with an adequate definition of what worship really is. Chapters II, III, and IV discuss the problem of guiding the junior's thoughts about God and of his approach to God and the meaning and methods of prayer. Chapters VI and VII deal with the problem of music as an aid to worship. This is followed by chapters dealing with the devotional use of the Bible, the sacrament as an aid to worship, motivation of service and conduct, concluding with a very practical and helpful chapter on building the worship program and the atmosphere for the worship service. The author has produced this book from a rich background of editorial experience and from practical work in a junior department in Sunday school. The text is not a manual, though it contains many practical suggestions. It is a fundamental discussion of the underlying principles of worship and training in worship.

Organization and Administration of the Intermediate Department. By Hugh H. Harris..... $0 70 H

This is a specialization unit in intermediate work of the Standard Training Course. The author shows a practical working knowledge of the theory and practice of religious education involved in work with boys and girls of intermediate age. There is no age group in the Church school so thoroughly misunderstood and more often neglected. It is indeed an age that furnishes a constant problem to the Church school worker, and the author has undertaken in this book to deal with the practical problems involved. The form of organization and the place and purpose of the adult leader, the value of pupil initiative, responsibility, and participation are clearly pointed out and the methods indicated by which these principles may be observed. The book is at once in harmony with sound educational principles and with the practical conditions under which the average worker must labor. It points the way for a better understanding of the early adolescent group.

Community Forces for Religious Education (Early Adolescence.) By G. Walter Fiske..... 60 H

The author introduces his discussion of the community forces with the statement that the aim of religious education is Jesus's way of living, or, as he states in another place, "Christianity is supremely the way of life." This immediately brings the Church school worker face to face with the fact that we can no longer withdraw from the community in which we live and develop a Christian character while removed from community contacts. The purpose of the author in this book is to help the Church school worker to a better understanding of the multitude of forces which play upon the life of the adolescent boy and girl and which make for or against his religious development. The subjects treated by the author indicate the scope of the book. The world of the early adolescent, which includes his home, his play, his work, his school, his friendships, the moral and religious values in extra-Church agencies, are all treated by the author. The text concludes with a challenge discussion of the Church school's responsibility, particularly with the early adolescent group, and its responsibility for meeting their religious needs.

BIBLE TEXTS on the Level of the Standard Training Course

One of the greatest needs of workers with children and young people is that of a series of Bible textbooks based upon the very best scholarship of the day, omitting the controversial problems which are raised by scholars, but guiding the reader in his own study and interpretation of the Scripture. Textbooks being issued by the Cokesbury Press have been written for this purpose. The books which are described below are recently from the press and are to be followed at frequent intervals by other books written on the plan of a "book-by-book" study of the Bible.

understanding of the making of the New Testament and the forming of the early Christian Church. The first two chapters deal with the background of Jewish history and the social life of the Jewish people. Following this, there appears a discussion of the religion of the Roman Empire and a study of Judaism at the time of the birth of Christianity. The book is clearly and plainly written and is admirably suited for the Sunday school teacher or Bible students who stand in need of a better knowledge of the times and circumstances under which the early Christian Church began its work.

There is a very splendid discussion of the Judaism of the New Testament times and of the forces that were at work in preparation for the birth of Christianity. One chapter is devoted to the public ministry of Jesus, another to the fall of the Jewish state and the beginning of the Christian Church. Following this is the story of Paul's contribution to early Christianity and the beginnings of the organization which we know as the Christian Church. The two concluding chapters deal with the Church in process of development and the development of the Christian literature which has come to be recognized as our New Testament. The book will serve as a splendid background for a subsequent study of the life of Christ, the history of the Church, or the work of Paul.

The Message of Jesus. By Rev. Harvie Branscomb..... $1 00 S

Professor Branscomb has offered a very fascinating and careful study of the message of Jesus; the book is timely. Not for many generations past have Christian people been so interested in the message of Jesus as they are to-day. What did Jesus think about this or that as relating to the great problems of our day is an all-absorbing question. The first chapter opens with a discussion of the record of the teachings of Jesus and the way in which he taught. The chapter on Jesus and the Old Testament is exceedingly helpful to the Bible student who is perplexed with present-day Bible criticism. Following in order, the author has set forth a discussion of Jesus's teaching about God, the kingdom, righteousness, living, humility, sincerity, domestic life, money, and rewards. There is a fascination and a freshness in the method of treatment that will interest the reader from the opening paragraphs to the close of the last chapter.

St. Mark's Life of Jesus. By Rev. Andrew Sledd, D.D., Ph.D..... 1 00 S

This is not just another life of Christ. The purpose of the writer is to lead the reader through a careful and intimate study of the record of the life and doing of Jesus as it has bee preserved for us in the Gospel according to Mark. The first chapter is devoted to securing the proper background of appreciation for what is to follow. It contains a condensed statement of the national, political, social, and religious conditions that prevailed at the time Jesus began his ministry. There is also a discussion of the religious ideals and aspirations of the Jewish people themselves. Chapter two opens, as does the Gospel of Mark, with the preaching of John and the appearance of Jesus, his baptism, temptation, his return to Galilee, and his entry upon his ministry.

The whole of chapters six and seven are taken up with a discussion of the doctrine of the cross as it appears in the conversation between Jesus and the twelve as he tried to reveal to them his real messianic mission. The vividness of style in which the book has been written leads the reader through the Gospel of Mark as though he would engage in an intimate biographical study. Dr. Sledd, in his study of the message of Mark, has become so intimately acquainted with every little detail in the life of Jesus that his pen picture makes the Master live again, and one can easily visualize his movements from day to day. With the book in hand, the reader can in imagination walk side by side with the Master through his whole career and can share with him the emotions, ideals, and aspirations which flow from his great heart. It is not a new life of Christ, because the author has but reproduced for us the Gospel of Mark. It is new in its style of intimacy and detail

The Life and Letters of Paul. By Rev. Thomas Carter, D.D..... $1 00 S

This interesting work on the life and letters of Paul was issued in 1921 and has from the beginning been exceedingly popular. The book is written in two sections. The first twelve chapters center around the person of the great apostle and the Gentile world. In graphic story the author carries Paul from his birth to his death and portrays for the reader all of his recorded experiences. The book opens with a splendid portrayal of the world into which Paul was born—the Roman, Greek, and Hebrew—and explains the great forces that contributed so much to his character and work. Then follows a discussion of Paul's experience, his disciplines, and his preparation for his life's work. Chapters five to twelve recite in chronological order the missionary journeys and other ministries in which Paul engaged, and the reader cannot help but secure a new appreciation of this outstanding figure of New Testament times. The last twelve chapters concern themselves with a discussion of the epistles or letters which are attributed to the pen of Paul. With each letter the author points out the time of its writing, those to whom it was written the purpose of the letter, and the message which it contains. An excellent and readable book, splendid for use in training classes, young people, and adult classes at the Sunday morning hour, and for systematic study in connection with the prayer meeting service.

COKESBURY TRAINING COURSE

THE Cokesbury Training Course has been prepared to meet the need of the thousands of Sunday school workers, pastors, and others who carry on the work of the kingdom under the limitations of the small Church. The books are all written in simple style, undertaking to deal with problems in a practical way; and technecial treatment and phrases are omitted. Each book has been written by a person familiar with the small town and open country situation and for the purpose of meeting a specific or definite need. When the series of texts for this course are completed, it will contain as broad a range of subjects as is now provided for in the Standard Training Course, adapting the principles and methods to the conditions of work in the small school.

The Small Sunday School, Its Plans and Work. By L. F. Sensabaugh..... 60 S

In the preparation of this book the author has been guided by his own personal experience as a superintendent and teacher in the local Sunday school and in his contacts with the thousands of small Sunday schools as a Conference superintendent. A. M. Locker, for many years superintendent of field work for the International Council, says of the book: "It is the first of its kind to meet the needs of the small Sunday school; it is the finest outline of suggestions for officers and teachers in the small school that I have ever seen." A pastor writes: "I have given my life to the country Church, and my constant embarrassment has been to secure a training text suitable to their needs. I hail this book as a godsend to our small schools." Another says: "The book follows the well-known principle of taking people where they are and giving them a definite, constructive program that will lead them where they ought to go."

The Life of Christ. By Umphrey Lee..... $ 60 S

Another new book on the life of Christ which will readily find its place among the best sellers on this subject. The style is fluent, clear, and easy to read. The author draws upon all four of the Gospels and gives to us in brief compass a picture that is at once concise and complete; and he avoids all the critical and controversial problems that have been raised by theologians and scholars. The purpose of the author seems to have been that of putting before the reader a composite life of Christ—that is, a life of Christ as he sees it through the eys of the four Gospel writers. The opening chapter draws a beautiful picture of the land of Palestine, the home at Nazareth, and the early education and youth of Jesus. In rapid succession, like a moving panorama, the author follows the travels, associations, and teaching of Jesus back and forth through the land of Palestine, in and out of Jerusalem, to the end of his life. No important event in that full life of Jesus seems to have been overlooked. One chapter is devoted to a study of Jesus as his comtemporaries saw him. Here the author has given us a picture of what his own family thought of him, what his neighbors thought of him, and what the common people thought, the patriots and the religious leaders. This is an excellent book; its use is recommended for a Bible unit in connection with the training courses for the workers in the small school. It is admirably adapted to courses for use in young people and adult study groups and for high school students. It is a worth-while contribution to this field.

The Sunday School Worker, His Life and Work. By L. F. Sensabaugh..... 60 S

The purpose of this book is to emphasize the importance of the personal element, and, as the title indicates, deals with the quality of life and work that is so essential for success. A prominent Sunday school worker, in speaking of the value of this book, writes: "The style is enthusiastic, inspirational, spiritual. The discussions are enlivening, with a wealth of apt illustrations which will appeal to the people who are serving as officers and teachers in the small Sunday school." The real purpose of this book is to vitalize the whole process of religious education, to prevent Sunday school workers from losing sight of the things of the spirit in their effort to master methods.

PRIZE POETRY

The Singing Heart and Other Poems. By Margaret Belle Houston. First Prize, Second Annual Book Publication Contest of the Poetry Society of Texas..... 1 25 A

Mrs. Houston writes little soft singing rhymes about walled-in gardens, old years, March rain, butterflies, and youth when it is gone. She prefers to take her subjects from everyday emotion and dress them with the garments of delicately romantic imagination, and in this vein is at her best.

THE Universal Library has been designed with a view to providing readers with the master pieces of literature of every age and country. To unlock the gates to the charmed circle of the literary giants calls for great selective discretion, and the editors have striven to incorporate in the library only those books which have received the imprimatur of time. Catholic in its range of titles, the list will appeal to all readers.

It is the Publishers' intention to issue a new volume every month.

The Dickens Set in 25 vols.

COLLINS' "FAMOUS AUTHOR" SETS mark a new era in publishing. Two faults have always been found with the average set: (1) the large size; (2) the expensiveness, and these have undoubtedly prevented a wide sale.

THE COLLINS' SETS overcome these difficulties, and the extensive sales are sufficient indication that the Sets have appealed to the popular taste.

EACH VOLUME is tastefully produced—clearly printed, and bound in fine maroon leather, and is a delight to handle and to read.

David complaineth — PSALMS 56—58. — of his enemies.

9 Destroy, O LORD, and divide their tongues: for I have seen violence and strife in the city.
10 Day and night they go about it upon the walls thereof: mischief also and sorrow are in the midst of it.
11 Wickedness is in the midst thereof: deceit and guile depart not from her streets.
12 For it was not an enemy that reproached me; then I could have borne it: neither was it he that hated me that did magnify himself against me; then I would have hid myself from him:
13 But it was thou, a man mine equal, my guide, and mine acquaintance.
14 We took sweet counsel together, and walked unto the house of God in company.
15 Let death seize upon them, and let them go down quick into hell: for wickedness is in their dwellings, and among them.
16 As for me, I will call upon God; and the LORD shall save me.
17 Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud; and he shall hear my voice.
18 He hath delivered my soul in peace enemies turn back: this I know; for God is for me.
10 In God will I praise his word; in the LORD will I praise his word.
11 In God have I put my trust: I will not be afraid what man can do unto me.
12 Thy vows are upon me, O God: I will render praises unto thee.
13 For thou hast delivered my soul from death: will not thou deliver my feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the light of the living?

pitched in Shunem: and Saul gathered all Israel together, and they pitched in Gilboa.

5 And when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was afraid, and his heart greatly trembled.

6 And when Saul enquired of the LORD, the LORD answered him not, neither by dreams, nor by Urim, nor by prophets.

7 Then said Saul unto his servants, Seek me a woman that hath a familiar spirit, that I may go to her, and enquire of her. And his servants said to him, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit at En-dor.

8 And Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and he went, and two men with him, and they departed from me, and answereth me no more, neither by prophets, nor by dreams: therefore I have called thee, that thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do.

16 Then said Samuel, Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing the LORD is departed from thee, and is become thine enemy?

17 And the LORD hath done to him as he spake by me: for the LORD hath rent the kingdom out of thine hand, and given it to thy neighbour, even to David:

18 Because thou obeyedst not the voice of the LORD, nor executedst his fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore hath the LORD done this thing unto thee this day.

12 And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of the land.

13 And he spake unto Ephron in the audience of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me: [h] I will give thee money for the field; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My lord, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred shekels [i] of silver; what is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.

16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron; and Abraham [j] weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.

COLLINS' TEACHERS' BIBLES

A complete and concise Library of Biblical Information based on

THE BIBLE READERS' MANUAL

OR

AIDS TO BIBLICAL STUDY

Edited by Rev. CHARLES H. WRIGHT, D.D.

Compiled for the use of Teachers, Religious Workers, Young People's Leaders, and Bible Students. This comprehensive fund of information consists of:—

COMPLETE CHRONOLOGY AND HISTORY OF THE BIBLE comprising;—

Old Testament Chronology.
Chronology of the Period between the Age of Malachi and the Birth of Christ
Chronological Conspectus of New Testament History.

A parallel work of great importance affording a wonderfully illuminated background of world history to the writings of the Holy Scriptures.

CONCORDANCE, specially prepared to facilitate reference to every text in the Bible. The plan adopted is based on Cruden's well-known Concordance. The word is first given in heavy black type and the texts in which the word occurs follow in smaller type in the order of the Books of the Bible.

BIBLICAL GAZETTEER & INDEX TO SCRIPTURE ATLAS

Intended to assist the Biblical Student in determining the geographical position of the various places mentioned in the Bible and to give a practical knowledge of the incidents connected with each place.

SIXTEEN PAGES OF COLORED MAPS

A carefully selected series of Biblical Maps of inestimable value to the Student and Teacher.

COLLINS' TEACHERS' EDITIONS

are noted for the unusual completeness of their center-column references, 80,000 in number. These, along with the designation of the year at the top of each reference column and a brief synopsis at the beginning of each chapter, are a valuable complement to the Teachers' aids.

COLLINS' TEACHERS' EDITIONS are issued in a wide variety of types, sizes and bindings, and may be obtained printed on either India Paper or Bible Paper. In the following pages are given full particulars of these editions which may be had in the following sizes:—

ONPAREIL 24mo.—A beautiful black-faced type in a handy pocket edition.
MERALD 16mo.—Large clear type in a size just convenient for everyday use.
MERALD 16mo, RED LETTER EDITION—The same edition as above but having in addition all prophecies relating to Christ and all words spoken by Christ printed in red.
REVIER 16mo.—A big, black-face type, handy size, sumptuous bindings.
OURGEOIS 8vo.—The edition par excellence in Teachers' Bibles. There is satisfaction and delight in the very handling of such a book, and an atmosphere of grandeur to which no other editions attain.

The great REVELATION, 13. red dragon.

4 And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth: and the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for to devour her child as soon as it was born.

5 And she brought forth a man-child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and knoweth that he hath but a short time.

13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which brought forth the man-child.

14 And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place,

Collins' Clear-Type Press issue many editions of the Bible and New Testament with colored illustrations. Many of these illustrations are beautifully reproduced from the Old Masters and a number from the oil paintings of the greatest modern artists. While these imaginative pictures of Bible incidents have an almost universal appeal, they do not meet the needs of many people who do not believe that these incidents and even Christ should be so portrayed.

¶ The pictures in this edition are three-colored reproductions of famous scenes in the Holy Land. They are beautifully reproduced and the Publishers believe that they will be of great value to Bible Students.

[102] Of divorce ST. MARK. and marriage.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.
50 Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his saltness, wherewith will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

CHAPTER 10.

AND he arose from thence, and cometh into the coasts of Judea by the farther side of Jordan: and the people resort unto him again: and, as he was wont, he taught them again.
2 ¶ And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife? tempting him.
3 And he answered and said unto them, What did Moses command you?
4 And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.
5 And Jesus answered and said unto them, For the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept:
6 But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female.
7 For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife;
8 And they twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain, but one flesh.
9 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.
10 And in the house his disciples asked him again of the same matter.
11 And he saith unto them, Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her.
12 And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.
13 ¶ And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them: and his disciples rebuked those that brought them.
14 But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.
15 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little
